

Chapter 17

The Social Engineering Mandate and the revelation of 666

There is no path of moral justification for the Catholic Church in its role to cover up for priests implicated in the pedophilia scandal. However, the faithful, particularly the laity, are able to remain steadfast as these course of events were already set according to God's plan. Paul's prophecy regarding a falling away has been fulfilled starting from Vatican II, and now the last part of his prophecy is ready to be presented. In correlation with Paul's prophecy regarding the revealing of the lawless one, John's prophecy in Revelation calculates the number of this man to 666. Many Bible Scholars consider Daniel's 490 year prophecy as yet to conclude, however, a hermeneutic of it having already ended would allow us to place Paul and John at the forefront of prophecy. Paul and

John's prophecies speak of a lawless sinful man who is coming to make his mark upon the world. Many believe this man's arrival is to take place in the last week of Daniel's 490 year prophecy. However, as already touched upon, the fulfillment of Daniel's prophecy having already taken place would eliminate that viewpoint and at the same time not discount John and Paul's prophecy of a coming lawless one. If one determines that Peter's break from circumcision did not constitute an Antichrist prophecy, then one can conclude that the coming of a lawless one is still a relevant eschatological perspective. Another aspect that comes into this prophecy relates to a person who has the understanding to calculate and identify this beast.

"Here is a call for wisdom: Let the one who has insight calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man, and that number is six hundred sixty-six."

With Paul's prophecy having an order, the first being something that's taken out of the way, and the next being a revelation, we can gather that this revelation of 666 is contingent on something being moved aside.

Solving the riddle of the beast (666) leads to a greater understanding of what the seven seals mean as Christ revealed it to John of Patmos. Christ has opened the seals and the time has come for humanity to more fully understand it. It is written in the Bible that Christ will return when the falling away has taken place(Vatican II), and the man of sin (the one who caused this falling away due to his mysterious presence in the world from the beginning) is finally revealed. It can be said that calculation of the number of the beast is what essentially reveals and then destroys this immortal Man of sin ....not by force of arms, but strictly by Christ's revelation and our understanding of it. Through understanding the Word of God revealed by Christ and written down by John of Patmos in Revelation, humanity can no longer be held captive by the man of sin who has operated secretly in the world from the beginning and led mankind astray throughout the ages. Understanding the riddle of 666 and the seven seals brings humanity to its next stage of existence. This new perspective of knowledge will permeate the earth and serve as a unified foundation of peace for all of its inhabitants for many ages.

666 is already at work in the world and has been for ages. It is humanity's lack of understanding of it that allows for its continued influence. The discovery of how it influences humanity will lead to a major scientific inquiry on how to make this knowledge better humanity. An overt understanding and implementation of 666, as opposed to its surreptitious influence based on lack of knowledge, will bring widespread debate on the nature of how it aligns with Scripture and whether or not its identification constitutes a doomsday or peaceable scenario.

More knowledge of what the number 666 entails will lead to a social engineering project that will attempt to make use of this newfound knowledge. The reason unlocking 666 would be considered to work for humanity is because it gives each person a very important understanding of how humans are wired to operate in the physical realm. This awareness, much like in the way technology makes our daily life less physically strenuous, will make human social existence less complicated and less strenuous. Before humans can adopt and integrate 666 into their daily lives, science will have to confirm its significance in the scientific realm. How will they do this? Well they've nearly done it before as what exactly 666 stands for has already been touched upon in the scientific community. The difference now is that there's more information regarding it. Once science confirms the meaning of 666 to have significant scientific value, along with each major religious denomination agreeing on the understanding of it and its relation to the seven seals, humans can then form a program to adopt and integrate this formula into their daily lives. Now, there is one problem. In order for it to work in a very efficient way, some kind of indication would be required so that humans can identify each other and the nature of the person they are dealing with at any given time. This is where fulfillment of prophecy regarding the mark of beast comes into view. The mark of the beast is mentioned as something bad in Scripture, as some form of homage to the beast. However, if we have used a perspective that writings related to change have a tendency to lean toward a more harsh rhetorical tone when being described by the previous tradition, it becomes more difficult to discern exactly what this mark of the beast means from the point of view of something new. If this new is analogous to what Christianity was to Judaism, then one can possibly justify going along with it. This debate will drive the perspective that the mark referred to in Scripture is a mark that humans already had for ages, but were not aware of and gave allowance to it by their ignorance of it, with the visible indication of it being something that would hold back the beast's influence on humanity by allowing humans to observe and adjust in the presence of it's influence on humans. It could be understood that without this, humanity would just continue in ignorance and eventually destroy itself. Others can see the mark as something that jeopardizes the soul of all believers because by going along with it, the person would be knowingly placing themselves in a system that tries to accommodate their sin, which would thus remove all aspects of penitence, a pre-requisite for salvation.

Another aspect of 666 is how it changes the way the law and morality is applied to human beings. At this present time, it's fair to say that each person who exhibits a certain characteristic is held accountable, socially or morally, exactly as anyone else who exhibits those same characteristics. The application of 666 will modify how a person is held accountable. It won't be a license to exhibit certain characteristics that the person is prone to committing. It will be more of an open understanding into his particular natural tendencies according to where the person is marked. An example would be seeing someone in public marked in a certain way and knowing before ever approaching him, what his natural tendency as a person would be........ that would fall short of the normal societal standard for that particular characteristic. That person, because he is marked as deficient in that quality, would be given a little more leeway by both society and the law as it applies to how the lack of that certain quality is judged. A good analogy is how a track runner's time in a certain event is often judged by the wind. If he sets a world record, but his time in the event was found to be aided by the wind, he isn't given credit for breaking the official world record. Think of the mark as running a time in an event hindered by the wind.

Because humans are naturally wired to divide themselves, 666 wouldn't be something that ends division. It would just redefine it or add another important element to it. Whereas now humans are most prone to make distinctions amongst themselves and others based on physical outward features, like the color of one's skin, the size of one's nose, etc., 666 would draw a distinction based on how each human relates to 666 and the appropriating bodily mark indicating exactly where and how. An example would be how 666 could mark someone as a racist-type of person by being placed on a certain part of his body, no matter his ethnicity, and how that mark effectively puts that character of racism within the context of a category that identifies other predisposed racist humans with the same mark, no matter what their ethnicity may be. So now, instead of a racist person speaking for his ethnicity because that's how humans currently define and distinguish themselves, he would now be speaking for his own character type as humans began to re-identify each other based on the 666 outward identification of character and personality types. The same would go for, not only the racist characteristics, but all character types such as anti-social, violent, debauch, etc.

It was mentioned earlier that what 666 means was already touched upon in the Scientific community. The reason the investigation didn't gain the traction that it could have was due to the fact that it was only backed in terms of Statistics and probability, which, in turn, left it open for improper replication by those seeking to satisfy a bias or opposing argument. However, it did get many in the scientific community talking about it and some studies confirmed his findings. Ultimately, however, it was rejected by the scientific community as later studies couldn't draw a statistical significance. While what was found in that investigation was not pointed out by original researcher to be specifically related to 666, its subject matter falling in line with my findings makes it to where it could actually be considered an inquiry into 666. What's also interesting is that the major points of reference mentioned in the study relate directly to where the Scripture says the mark is taken(forehead and the right hand). The difference between that study and now is that another element comes into play, which would subsequently provide support to those findings.

After identifying 666, one will be able to look back and see how that study comes together with the mark of the beast. With all the new evidence, the scientific community can inquire again. This leads to a real world implementation that attempts to circumvent real world problems.

So at this point, we have Scripture(Paul and John), and Science. All that is left is where does the Catholic Church tie into this? The answer is in the prophecies of Catholic mystic, Marie Julie Jahenny. She was given a vision of the exact nature of evil and how this will tie into the destruction that is taking place in the world. While the nature is one of destruction, the solving of the riddle is one of light and wisdom. Nostradamus's prophecies also tie into 666, as he referenced the beast in many of his predictions. There seems to be a prominent French theme related to the identification of this mark, which is why it's gathered that fulfillment of this prophecy is somehow related to France. Nostradamus, the aforementioned statistician, Marie Julie Jahenny, and myself.... all have this tie to France. Not sure if it's coincidence, but it's hard to ignore the correlation between prophecy, the mark of the beast and France.

Many Catholic mystics have prophesied that France would play the pivotal role in restoring the Church by way of a king anointed by the Pope. This has been prophesied to take place after the great falling away from the morals and traditions of the Church, amidst the rise of sin, rebellion, and upheaval all over Europe. The exodus of the Pope from Rome in the midst of all of this is regarded as the prelude to the anointing of a king from France who helps restore the Catholic Church throughout Europe and the rest of the World. This restoration of the Church would be built upon the Fatima apparitions, which would then usher in an era of peace. The origin of the prophecy regarding the Great Monarch is shrouded in mystery, but can be traced back to numerous visionaries, prophets, saints, etc. Padre Pio mentioned the coming of a great Monarch, and so did Marie Julie Jahenny. One controversial example of this prophecy regarding a French Monarch King occurred at Lasalette, France in 1846. Like Fatima, this is an apparition approved by the Catholic Church.

In the village of Lasalette, Melanie and Maxim were not friends before this apparition. In a small town of farmers, both of the children were carrying out their farm duties, shepherding their animals on the mountains. As they were playing, a woman (Our Lady) appeared to them and gave them a message. Weeping, She spoke to them both about a current problem in France and gave them information regarding the future. She mentioned how people were violating the sabbath and how a famine would take place because of it. She then spoke to each child individually, without the other hearing. She gave a short secret to maxim and a longer one to Melanie, both regarding the future all the way until the Antichrist and second coming of Christ. What's interesting about the message is that once the children went home and reported what happened, they were separated from each other for years. Each of them never got together to make sure the story was the same. In all separate interviews from that point on, they both recalled the exact same experience. That, in itself, indicates there was no collusion between the two. The secret of Maximin is related to the prophecy of a Great Monarch. Even though, he never revealed the secret directly, but only in a letter to Pope Pius IX, the secret was nonetheless published by a friend he confided the secret to. Even after retracting the work, Maximin was not able to keep other authors from attributing what was published by his acquaintance to Maximin himself.

Traditionalist Catholic Yves Dupont, the author of Catholic Prophecy, who accurately predicted the fall of France to the Nazis, believes that a great Monarch will rise in France before the Antichrist comes. This gives us the perspective that a transitionary phase between the revelation of 666 and its implementation brings with it an era of peace. This can make sense due to the fact that 666 would confirm new testament prophecy as truth, which would therefore renew everyone's Catholic faith.

In his first letter to the Thessalonians, Paul describes the return of Jesus and what would happen to believers when he returns. In his second letter to the Thessalonians, he describes events that must take place before the return of Jesus Christ. Paul assures them that the day of Jesus's return had not come because 2 things needed to happen first: The falling away or apostasy from the teachings of Christ, and then the revelation of the man of lawlessness or man of sin. In the second letter to the Thessalonians, Paul writes:

"Don't let anyone deceive you in any way, for that day will not come until the rebellion occurs and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the man doomed to destruction. He will oppose and will exalt himself over everything that is called God or is worshiped, so that he sets himself up in God's temple, proclaiming himself to be God.

Don't you remember that when I was with you I used to tell you these things? And now you know what is holding him back, so that he may be revealed at the proper time. For the secret power of lawlessness is already at work; but the one who now holds it back will continue to do so till he is taken out of the way. And then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will overthrow with the breath of his mouth and destroy by the splendor of his coming. The coming of the lawless one will be in accordance with how Satan works. He will use all sorts of displays of power through signs and wonders that serve the lie, and all the ways that wickedness deceives those who are perishing. They perish because they refused to love the truth and so be saved."

While the first part of Paul's prophecy has been fulfilled by Vatican II, the second one is in the midst of being fulfilled through understanding the Book of Revelation. Therefore, we can move further along into John's prophecy in the book of Revelation concerning the number of the beast and the seven seals. John was exiled to the island of Patmos, and was suffering through a time of persecution under the Roman rule of Domitian. It was during that time in Patmos that he received a vision, which was a revelation from Jesus Christ about God's plan for humanity. John was told in the beginning of the dream in the first chapter of Revelation:

"Write, therefore, what you have seen, what is now and what will take place later."

In his dream, he saw a beastly figure that had great power over the earth and was allowed to do as it pleased. He observed a beast coming from the sea and coming from the earth. Revelation 13: 1-18:

"And I stood upon the sand of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy. And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the beast. And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast: and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? who is able to make war with him? And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months. And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven. And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations. And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. If any man have an ear, let him hear. He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity: he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints. And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon. And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed. And he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men, And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth by the means of those miracles which he had power to do in the sight of the beast; saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make an image to the beast, which had the wound by a sword, and did live. And he had power to give life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak, and cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed. And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads: And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six."

Earlier in Revelation in Chapter 5, John is given a revelation of 7 seals that can only be opened by one who is worthy:

"Then I saw a scroll in the right hand of the One seated on the throne. It had writing on both sides and was sealed with seven seals. And I saw a mighty angel proclaiming in a loud voice, 'Who is worthy to break the seals and open the scroll?' But no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or look inside it. And I began to weep bitterly, because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or look inside it. Then one of the elders said to me, 'Do not weep! Behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David, has triumphed to open the scroll and its seven seals.' Then I saw a Lamb who appeared to have been slain, standing in the center of the throne, encircled by the four living creatures and the elders. The Lamb had seven horns and seven eyes, which represent the seven Spirits of God sent out into all the earth. And He came and took the scroll from the right hand of the One seated on the throne."

A good analogy to understand the 7 seals would be modern day 2019 examples of encryption software and secret coding used to protect proprietary information, and how only knowledge of the password or key could allow access to the information. This example is referenced in Revelation as a book secured with Seven seals. The seven seals must be opened to access the information in the book....much in the same way a password must be known in order to access information stored using encryption. It was revealed to John that only the Lamb can open the seals, which pertains to all events from the time of John all the way to the end of time and correlates directly with 666 and the man of sin.

In Revelation chapter 6, John then observes the Lamb open each Seal:

Revelation 6: 1-2
And I saw when the Lamb opened one of the seals, and I heard, as it were the noise of thunder, one of the four beasts saying, Come and see. And I saw, and behold a white horse: and he that sat on him had a bow; and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth conquering, and to conquer.

Revelation 6: 3-4
And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second beast say, Come and see. And there went out another horse [that was] red: and [power] was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another: and there was given unto him a great sword.

Revelation 6: 5-6
And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third beast say, Come and see. And I beheld, and lo a black horse; and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand. And I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, A measure of wheat for a denarius, and three measures of barley for a denarius; and [see] thou hurt not the oil and the wine.

Revelation 6: 7-8

And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth beast say, Come and see. And I looked, and behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him. And power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

Revelation 6: 9-11

And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held: And they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? And white robes were given unto every one of them; and it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season, until their fellow servants also and their brethren, that should be killed as they [were], should be fulfilled.

Revelation 6: 12-17

And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and, lo, there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood; And the stars of the heavens fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind. And the heavens departed as a scroll when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains; And said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: For the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?

Revelation 8:1- 6

And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour. And I saw the seven angels which stood before God; and to them were given seven trumpets. And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given unto him much incense, that he should offer [it] with the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne. And the smoke of the incense, [which came] with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God out of the angel's hand. And the angel took the censer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and cast [it] into the earth: and there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and an earthquake. And the seven angels which had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound.

We notice that there are 7 events, and in the final and 7 th event, we notice that more of what took place in the previous is getting ready to happen again. This is very important for understanding the riddle of 666.

With Paul's prophecy about the lawless one already presented along with John's prophecy about the mark of the beast and the seven seals, it's important to go through each mention of the beast by later important figures in history, such as Marie Julie Jahenny, Michel Gauquelin, Nostradamus, and this writing. Marie Julie Jahenny's involvement in this prophecy relates to how she describes a prophecy given to her by Jesus. There are two translations:

The first:
"In the eternal Wisdom, I have my purpose to preserve life for an immense number of Jews, because on the day of My rejoicing I want to confound them. The ungodly eye of all those souls will remain open, because I want them to see My power, I preserve it them to see, with their own eyes, the RADIANT PLANET I will have coming out from the remotest parts of exile, under a frightening storm of fire, and under the signs of my anger, the whole sky will be crossed with bolts similar to the ones My Father thrusted upon the World, when I offered Myself for the ransom of My people." (i.e. as during the Crucifixion.)

The Second:
“In My eternal wisdom, I intend to reserve the life of an immense number of Jews, because I want to confound them on the day of My rejoicing. The blasphemous eyes of all those souls will be opened because I want them to see My power. I reserve for them that they see with their own eyes the RADIANT STAR that I will lead out of exile (the Great Monarch) in a frightful storm of fire and under the sign of My anger……………………”

Because of the ambiguous quality of this translated prediction, the content can be judged according to the divine plan. Star and planet were often used interchangeably in many writings and therefore doesn’t nullify either or.

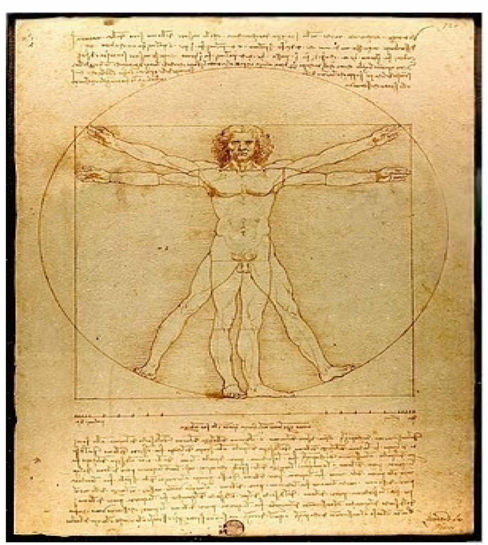

Michel Gauquelin, born in Paris, was a French statistician and psychologist who studied human behavior and its correlation to heavenly bodies. Starting out as a skeptic, he later found a major correlation between human behavior and performance in certain endeavors to the movements of the stars and planets. He was able to get the birth-times of many prominent figures in Medicine and sports, and discover a statistical significance between the location of this planet and the performance of athletes. It was his findings on champion athletes that got the attention of the scientific community. His results showed that prominent sports champions are more likely to be born when this planet is rising or culminating in their birth chart. After being challenged by other scientists on the evidence for his conclusion, he was still able to achieve results that worked out in his favor even while using their parameters to validate his findings. The study came to a roadblock when scientific researchers in the US couldn't find a statistical correlation in their research using champion athletes. Gauquelin was always quick to reinforce that the planetary correlation was related to eminence in the chosen field, something the researchers in the US did not take into account. This was a major source of disappointment for Gauquelin. He committed suicide in 1991. He wrote many books on the subject and his research is probably the biggest modern key to what I understand to be the mark of the beast. It's likely that his work on the planetary effect will be re-opened for research by the scientific community following the revelation of the lawless one.

While the Catholic Church has no opinion on Nostradamus, his relevance is due to the widespread knowledge of his prophecies and the fact that he worked largely unopposed by the Catholic Church, perhaps, due to the fact that he didn't reveal his methods for predictions. Of Jewish ethnicity, his family converted to Catholicism before he was born, which makes Nostradamus a Catholic and a mystic even if he was never accepted by the Catholic Church as a Catholic mystic. The Church has been largely silent on Nostradamus and even though he had his fears, Nostradamus was never charged with heresy by the Catholic Church. His prophecy relating to the mark of the beast regards the year 1999 in which he even mentions the revival of a French king..... another prophecy pointing to the rise of a great French monarch:

> "The year one thousand nine ninety-nine seven month. From the sky shall come a great King of terror, [Shall be] revived the great King of Angoulmois. Before and after, (Nostradamus mentions the meaning of 666 right here) [shall] reign as chance will have it." (Century X, No. 72)

Before further analysis and the revelation of the lawless one, another important figure in history must be inserted and referenced at this point. Without this, the revelation of the lawless one and the understanding of 666 would evade clarity.

Italian artist, Leonardo da Vinci, whose famous for his painting of the Mona Lisa, made a diagram of the human body entitled "Vitruvian Man." The drawing shows a man in two superimposed positions with his arms and legs apart and inscribed in a circle and square and is based on the writings of Vitruvius, who considered the human body the essential source of proportion. Leonardo da Vinci considered man to be a microcosm of the universe. What we have in Vitruvian man is an example how a man can be expressed through and within a perfect circle. This will prove indispensable for understanding 666 as the number of a man. After gathering all the prophecies, Scripture, and historical figures, we can now move forward with deciphering, through understanding, the message that God is trying to convey to humanity through his prophets, Paul and John. The starting point will be the meaning of the number of 666, which is the identity of the Lawless one that has acted upon mankind since antiquity. Lets compile all the relevant prophecies regarding it. John says in Revelation 13: 18:

> Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding calculate the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six.

Paul says in Thessalonians 2: 4

> He will oppose and exalt himself above every so-called god or object of worship. So he will seat himself in the temple of God, proclaiming himself to be God.

Nostradamus writes (Century X, No. 72)

> The year one thousand nine ninety-nine seven month. From the sky shall come a great King of terror, [Shall be] revived the great King of Angoulmois. Before and after, Mars[shall] reign as chance will have it.

Marie Julie Jahenny says:

> I preserve it them to see, with their own eyes, the RADIANT PLANET I will have coming out from the remotest parts of exile, under a frightening storm of fire, and under the signs of my anger, the whole sky will be crossed with bolts similar to the ones My Father thrusted upon the World, when I offered Myself for the ransom of My people."

Michel Gauquelin discovered:

> a statistically significant number of sports champions were born just after the planet Mars rises or culminates.

Leonardo Da Vinci describes his diagram of Vitruvian Man as a man inscribed within a circle to be a microcosm of the universe.

And now, I understand, after much research, for 666 to be none other than "Mars 360". In essence, the revolution of Mars around the sun and its effect on all of humanity. Using the English Sumerian Gematria – assigning a numeric value to each letter of a word, name or phrase using multiples of 6 – the word "Mars" adds up to 306. By simply adding 360(as in 360 degrees) to 306, the result is 666. The English Sumerian Gematria is based on assigning to the English Alphabet numbers ascending in increments of 6. For example A=6, B=12, C=18, D=24, etc. and so on. The earliest known civilizations in Mesopotamia, such as the Sumeri–ans used a base of 60(multiples of 6 and multiples of 10) in their numbering system. Hence why the cipher for the English

Sumerian Gematria is based on assigning numerical values in multiples of 6. Most of today's measurements of time are dominated by "multiples of 6":

> 60 seconds in a minute, 60 minutes in an hour, 24 hours in a day, and 30 days in a month, 360 degrees in a circle.

Since Gematria is believed to have originated with the Sumerians and later passed onto the Babylonians before being adopted by the Jewish people and other cultures, authority is given to what they base their numbering system on(multiples of 6). In combination with multiples of 10, it forms the numerical system of "base 60" or Sexagesimal. Some historians believe the Sumerian Numerical system, called Sexagesimal, was a combination of those 2 numbering systems used by 2 different civilizations. The first round of numbers were based on ten like today's western civilization (base10), but the next round were based on multiples of six to get 60 and 600. A "multiple of six" based numerical system is why later on, the Babylonians chose 12 months instead of 10 for their calendar and why hours and minutes are divided into 60 units(60 minutes in an hour, and 60 seconds in a minute). Multiples of 6 explain why a circle has 360 degrees. Babylonian astronomers knew the amount of days in a year, but kept it at 360 because that number was believed to be possessed with universal significance. We can see why 360 is part of the formula to calculate the number of the beast. Babylonians devised the system of dividing a circle into 360 degrees. A circle was used by the ancient Babylonian and Egyptian astronomers to circle the zodiac. The degree was a way of dividing a circle and locating the distance traveled by the sun each day. This indicates that it's of no coincidence that the number of degrees in a circle (360) corresponds with the days of the year on the Babylonian calendar.

With identification of the lawless one using gematria and assigning a numerical value, based on numbering the English alphabet in multiples of six ....starting with the letter A as number 6, then B as 12, then C as 18, and so on all the way till you get to letter Z, the word MARS will add up to 306. By simply adding 360(which represents a circle) to 306(the number of Mars), we get 666. Now one can conclude “Mars 360” is the lawless one that has been present in the world even during the time of Jesus and perhaps all the way back to antiquity. Because Da Vinci depicts man as a microcosm of the universe in Vitruvian man, Mars 360, would also represent a man. The nature of this planet’s influence on humanity is one that is opposed to how God intended a healthy section of ourselves to operate. There is great scientific understanding with regards to this, which opens the door to a very intricate architecture.

Planetary influence on humankind is interpreted to be apart from Scripture. However, what the Bible shows is that planetary influence as defined by men is apart from God’s will. What we have in the seven seals is a revelation from Jesus Christ on how the universe operates according to God’s plan. Hints were given throughout history to the prophets. In the Old Testament, we can refer to Ezekiel’s dream when he looked at the sky and saw 4 creatures that were moving in direct correlation with 4 wheels. Wherever the creatures went, the wheels went, and vice versa, with the throne of the Lord above all of it. Ezekiel 1: 15-28:

> 15 As I looked at the living creatures, I saw a wheel on the > ground beside each creature with its four faces. 16 This was > the appearance and structure of the wheels: They sparkled > like topaz, and all four looked alike. Each appeared to be > made like a wheel intersecting a wheel. 17 As they moved, they would go in any one of the four directions the creatures faced; the wheels did not change direction as the creatures went. 18 Their rims were high and awesome, and all four rims were full of eyes all around.

19 When the living creatures moved, the wheels beside them moved; and when the living creatures rose from the ground, the wheels also rose. 20 Wherever the spirit would go, they would go, and the wheels would rise along with them, because the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels. 21 When the creatures moved, they also moved; when the creatures stood still, they also stood still; and when the creatures rose from the ground, the wheels rose along with them, because the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels.

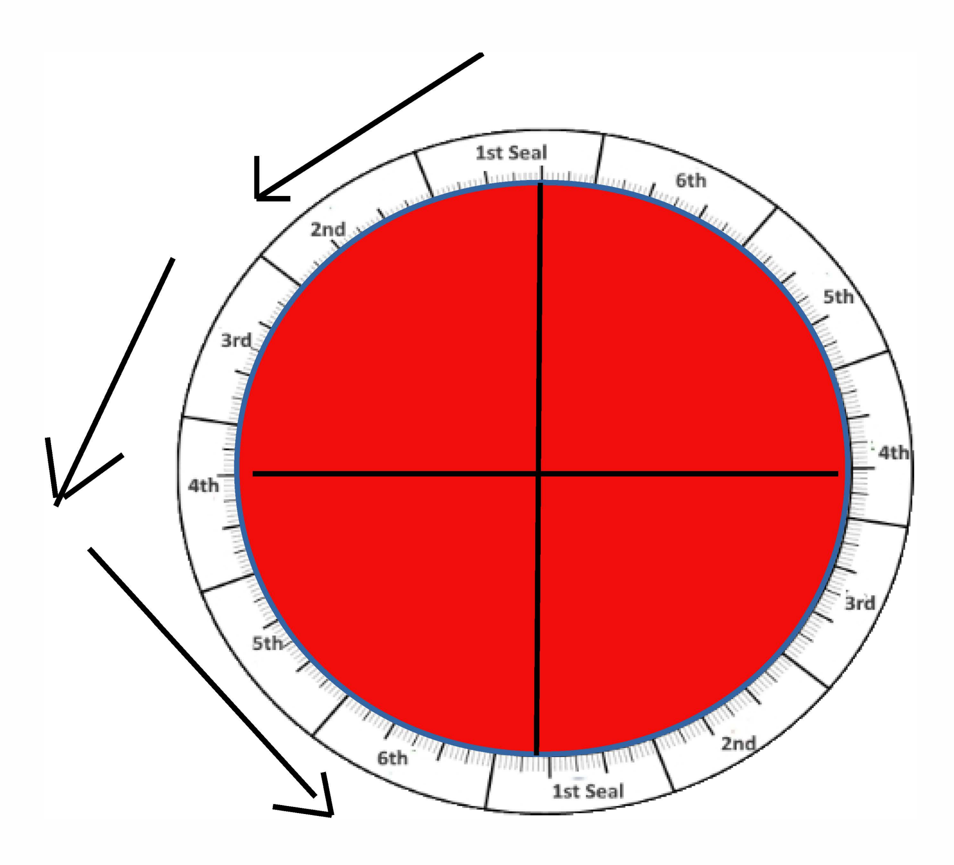

22 Spread out above the heads of the living creatures was what looked something like a vault, sparkling like crystal, and awesome. 23 Under the vault their wings were stretched out one toward the other, and each had two wings covering its body. 24 When the creatures moved, I heard the sound of their wings, like the roar of rushing waters, like the voice of the Almighty, like the tumult of an army. When they stood still, they lowered their wings.

25 Then there came a voice from above the vault over their heads as they stood with lowered wings. 26 Above the vault over their heads was what looked like a throne of lapis lazuli, and high above on the throne was a figure like that of a man. 27 I saw that from what appeared to be his waist up he looked like glowing metal, as if full of fire, and that from there down > he looked like fire; and brilliant light surrounded him. 28 Like the appearance of a rainbow in the clouds on a rainy day, so was the radiance around him. This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the LORD. When I saw it, I fell facedown, and I heard the voice of one speaking.

What we have in the lawless one is a revolution or 360 degree orbit which correlates perfectly with the behavior of a rider going through the seven seals as an opposing force. With Mars 360 identified, now the seven seals can be opened as the 7th seal comes to mean a continuous revolution of Mars going through the first 6 seals. The seven seals teaches us that when Mars travels around the sun, it goes through 6 positions in the sky relative to the time and place a person is born. Each position is defined in terms of designated human characteristics, and the revelation of the seven seals describes the effect that Mars has on each position, denoting the negative consequences that come about. Using discernment, one can extrapolate the original characteristic of each position by picturing the opposite scenario to the negative one described in the seven seals in the Bible. Since each seal corresponds to Mars traveling to each position in the sky, we will use seal and position interchangeably while applying to Mars the negative consequence of traveling through each seal/position. Using the sun as an example for more understanding, the sun is directly over our heads at noon. This overhead position correlates to one position/seal of the sky regardless if the sun is there or not and that position/seal has designated qualities. If a person is born around noon, he will be influenced for the rest of his life by the sun's location in that position and its effect on what defines that position(in revelation, it's Mars exerting an effect). Since there are 6 positions or seals, the sun could be in any one of those positions or seals depending on the time of birth and thus affect the human's characteristics defined by those positions. If one is born at another time, the sun would be somewhere else(not overhead), but the overhead position along with the other positions (seals), whether at eye level at the horizon, or at angles above or below the horizon, would still be in place and affected by whatever other planet may be orbiting those positions at that particular time of birth. The Sun was just an example. Because revelation deals with Mars360, we will focus on those scenarios. There are six seals that defines each of the 6 positions in the sky with designated qualities. Because we have a moving body, we can extrapolate that the 7th seal represents the continuous revolution of Mars. These positions/seals remain constant and planets come and go through these positions throughout the course of time. Overhead is always overhead, no matter what time a person is born, even though the planets are constantly moving...and this fixed quality applies to all the other positions in the sky defined through the seven seals. Each seal corresponds to an aspect of human nature designed by God. Mars corresponds to the negative consequences of its orbit through them. Because the mystery of iniquity relates to Mars360, the planet Mars is what the seven seals of revelation is speaking on. On the next page is a diagram depicting how the seven seals affects a person at birth.

In the diagram above, focus on the left side of the chart wheel where it shows the horizon as the 4th seal. For now, any reference to the horizon in explaining the seals will refer to the 4th seal on the left side even though both sides of the chart wheel mean the same thing. For the sake of order, we will stick to the left side starting at the top with the 1st seal and make our way down in chronological order to the 6th seal. Notice that each seal is divided into 30 degree segments. From the diagram, we can see that the first seal is at the top, representing the position directly overhead with regard to a human looking directly over his head while standing on earth. It makes a 90 degree angle to the horizon. From there, after leaving the 30 degree segment representing the first seal and going counterclockwise, we see the next seal(the 2nd one) which is at a 60 degree angle to the horizon. From that segment which makes up the 2nd seal and going counterclockwise from there, we see the 3rd seal which is at about a 30 degree angle to the horizon. From there, going counterclockwise, we are brought to the horizon(the 4th seal), which is 180 degrees from our eye level. Going counter clockwise from that point into the next segment, we get to the 5th seal, which is on a 30 degree angle to the horizon, but below the horizon on the left side. Going counterclockwise from there, we get to the 6th seal segment which is at a 60 degree angle with the horizon, and once again below on the left side. After the 6th seal, the cycle starts again with the opposite side of the circle meaning the same as the other side. This repeat is the 7th seal and defines this revolving motion. No matter how scattered the planets are throughout the sky at the time of birth, the six seal divisions in the sky are always laid out the same. They have a fixed quality. The first seal is always directly overhead standing from earth, no matter what time of day, place, week, or season a person is born, just as the horizon is always the horizon standing from earth no matter what time, place or day. For someone who is experienced in planetary influences on human behavior(Astrology), an easy way to understand this is just by taking each house as it‘s laid out in the ‘equal house system’ in a western astrological chart and replacing the definition of those houses with how i'm defining this ‘six seals house system’ as laid out in the diagram on previous page. That would be an easy way to understand the gist of what's being explained. Also remember to designate the change to the next sign at the 24th degree mark of every sign. It will be explained how the seals go beyond the metaphysical and into the physical scientific realm as each seal represents the 6 major sections of the brain: the occipital lobe, the temporal lobe, the brain stem/cerebellum, the frontal lobe, the motor cortex, and the parietal lobes.

What Mars is doing as it is explained in the seven seals is resulting in a lack of grey matter located in the corresponding regions of the brain. Grey matter results to greater performance of the designated tasks carried out by each part of the brain, whereas a lack of it reduces the performance. The seven seals revealed to John of Patmos in Revelation are a representation of the worst effect of Mars when his opposing nature is carried out to its climax. What essentially defines the mystery of iniquity is the reduction of grey matter in certain regions of the brain. In the first seal:

> Revelation 6:1-2
> And I saw when the Lamb opened one of the seals, and I heard, as it were the noise of thunder, one of the four beasts saying, Come and see. And I saw, and behold a white horse: and he that sat on him had a bow; and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth conquering, and to conquer.

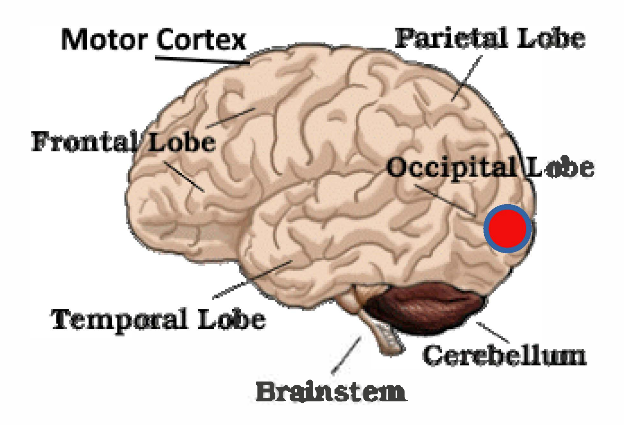

This first seal which is directly overhead(top of chart wheel) represents the personality and outlook of a human being toward his immediate environment and when Mars travels through the first seal as the white horse, his opposing effect on the personality culminates into its worst expression by way of a great military general going "forth conquering, and to conquer". This first seal, at its worst, represents all the great military men such as King David, Alexander the Great, Rommel, Charles de Gaulle, Napoleon, Gen. Patton.. all of which are examples of a very negative expression. Mars here operate as the very antithesis to the Jesus Christ of the Bible. When this spirit of Mars is operating in this manner in the world, it produces a very competitive mindset, an antisocial personality that suffers with face to face communication. There is also a reckless attitude with how one uses his hands. Whereas a sociable person is likely to greet you with his right hand or give you something with it, an unsociable person produced by Mars in the first seal is likely to insult someone with it, either through misuse of another's property via theft, physical assault or simply a refusal to offer charity. Another negative quality showing up at the far end of the spectrum of Mars here is the use of torture. This position of Mars justifies the use of torture over the use of execution and makes the subject more likely to carry out his opposition by way of extended harm as opposed to execution. This position can also put a person at odds with his neighbors, siblings and co-workers. While many aspects of the Mars influence in this position are detriments in society, they can serve as virtues for military men, police officers, competitive athletes, and businessmen. This first seal definition also aligns with Michel Gauquelin's findings of Mars showing up culminating(top of chart) in the astrological birth charts of Military men and Champion athletes. Gauquelin divided the chart into different sectors, but singled out '2 key sectors" for his research: Rising, which correlates to the 4th seals at the east and west horizons, and Culminating which correlates to the 1st seals directly overhead and directly below(north and south). These sectors are referred to as plus zones. Here is a chart for visual reference in understanding Gauquelin's research.

In his findings, he discovered that a statistically significant number of eminent competitive athletes and military men were born or marked with Mars either rising(4th seals) or culminating(1st seals). I found this advantage to be related to the result of a deficiency in the brain. On a scientific level, this position would result in a marked lack of grey matter in the Occipital lobe of the brain. The Occipital lobe is primary visual area of the brain and located at the back of the brain. It is responsible for how we perceive and make sense of moving objects within our immediate environment. When there is a deficiency of function in this area of the brain, the result is often a hostile personality who is unable to properly react to his immediate environment, or anyone he can see at the moment. On the next page is a diagram of the brain. Notice the Occipital lobe is located at the back of the brain. This lack of grey matter produces a lack of fear in the person when it comes to the consequences of not being able to carry out the designated function of a particular part of the brain.

In the case of the Occipital lobe, a person would be indifferent to the feelings of others within his immediate environment and also to the possible actions of others towards him in response to his deficiency in communication skills. In my research, I've also noticed that billionaires have the position of Mars in the 1st seal and the 4th seals, culminating and rising respectively as laid out in a birth chart by Gauquelin. This isn't surprising due to the competitive nature of the business world and the fact that Mars through the first seal represents a conquering attitude which is a directly opposed to face to face charity. When it comes to Mars opposing a designated function of a certain part of the brain, the result leads to a display of reduced energy and desire to engage in the proper behaviors that a healthy functioning part of the brain would produce. Because there are many planets in orbit, the level of grey matter reduction takes place accordingly to how the other planetary energies permit that part of the brain to function. This grey matter deficiency takes place at birth and essentially marks the person for the rest of his life. In the case of Mars going through the first seal, the mark of the beast would be in the back of the head or in the right hand. There are other notable examples of this influence that interferes with how we interact with others in our immediate environment. In understanding earlier how a healthy Occipital lobe would greet someone through a handshake with the right hand, which is in contrast to what a grey matter deficient occipital lobe would do, we can see how the latter would translate to an anti-social quality that opposes normal social interaction and therefore leave the person liable to reckless behavior involving the right hand and ways of communications. This is the mark of the beast that, if left unchecked, can lead to a culmination which eventually manifests as someone who takes from everyone around him, as we see in conquering military leaders and selfish businessmen like Bernie Madoff. This lack of grey matter, while always present, is not uniform in terms of scale throughout a person's life, but can be given full power to completely withdraw from any attempt to conform to basic standards. This is usually based on a personal decision by the person, and many times as a reaction to the society or one's circumstances. Which is why in times of economic strife such a vice can turn into a virtue. This character finds itself able to survive by using his deficiency to the fullest extent, in contrast to a normal functioning Occipital lobe that is less likely to engage in such behavior, even in a crisis that may warrant it. Because there is no mark or deficiency within him to allow for it, the person could be overwhelmed in such a circumstance. I've also noticed that many Rappers have this position of reckless communication arising from Mars going through the first seal. While serving as a virtue in their choice of profession, this Mars expression often becomes a major source of strife for them in their dealings with neighbors, associates, other people's feelings, etc. At the basic level in people who are not eminent in a chosen field, but are just everyday Joes, indications of this placement would be an expression of annoyance with coworkers or anyone not close to them that they have to deal with on a daily basis--along with some anti-charity attitudes, some rudeness in social situations, issues with siblings, selfish and jealousy attitudes related to what others might have, and indifference to the proper use of other people's resources. These issues are usually present throughout the life of a person influenced by Mars in this way and in most cases, is not allowed by the person to emit its fullest negative expression. However, the lack of grey matter in that part of the brain would always persist. A recent example of a most negative expression of this quality is someone like Bernard Madoff, who defrauded numerous people in a Ponzi scheme. This led to the loss of millions of dollars in savings belonging to other people. This type of action can easily be likened to how the Book of Revelation presents the first seal as someone going forth to conquer. After revealing Mars overhead as it relates to the first seal, we now can open the second seal, which brings us to the Revelation 6:3-4:

Revelation 6:3-4

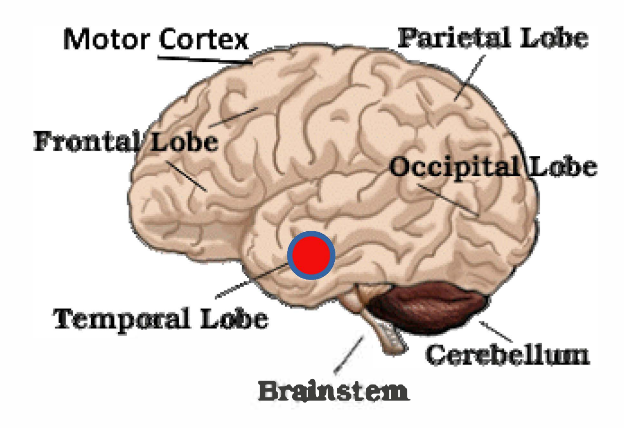

3 And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second beast say, Come and see. 4 And there went out another horse [that was] red: and [power] was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another: and there was given unto him a great sword.

----Next Page----

The second seal is at about a 60 degree angle to the horizon(4th seal) and it focuses on an aspect of humanity which, under the influence of Mars on the Red Horse, seeks chaos and the unsettling spread of fear that arises from it. This is a representation of the hysteria, paranoia, fear, mistrust and aggression that often leads to violence. This culminates in severe mental illness and violent action along with a complete loss of basic humanity. This is a spirit that rejects peace and happiness in all forms, whether it's trust in society or a normal domestic life. Because love and familiarity symbolize a man's happiness in life, Mars here in the 2nd seal speaks to a major antagonism to both. Home also symbolizes love, peace, and happiness, and is therefore rejected by this spirit. This puts the person at odds with anything closely related to him, whether it be his home, wife, country, establishment. The living examples of the worst of this spirit are the homegrown terrorists, the domestic abusers, the conspiracy theorists, haters of women, haters of government and those who cannot sit still or pay attention to spoken words for a very long time. The Columbine Shooters, Charles Manson, Ted Bundy, Marshall Applewhite are all major examples of the 2nd seal. The 2nd seal also represents the nihilists, along with extreme pessimism and melancholy. There is also resentment of anything that represents the person's upbringing, which is why this spirit would excel at world traveling and dealing with other cultures in a foreign land. Because of an inability to sit still for long periods, this archetype will do well in aggressive sport that capitalizes on excessive energy and aggression. Workaholism is another common occurrence with this placement. A lighter manifestation of this in regular day to day life involves a person experiencing annoyance with human sound, trouble processing auditory information, no close relationships, restlessness, internalized rage and a lack of long term memory combined with reckless thoughts and beliefs. The part of the brain that the second seal points to are the temporal lobes.

Mars traveling through the position of the second seal results in a lack of grey matter in the area of the temporal lobes, which are located on the sides of the brain as shown in the diagram, and is involved with understanding speech and recalling long term memories. A lack of grey matter in that region results in poor attention span, heightened aggression, restlessness, psychosis, melancholy, and far fetched beliefs. Deficiency here highlights the need for freedom and mobility, and this need plays a big role in their central ideology throughout life. The mistrust arising from the belief that government establishment and marriage are a confining influence on human freedom is what usually serves as a source of distress. This placement, at its worst, represents the biggest threat to established government and close relationships. Racism occurs here when integration is a part of the establishment. The response to it is often in the form of violence and bloodshed. War here takes on a more domestic tone, very much in contrast to what the 4th seal represents.

In the 3rd seal, which is 30 degrees to the Horizon in a birth-chart, wheat, oil, barley and wine are the main subjects.

Revelation 6: 5-6

5 And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third beast say, Come and see. And I beheld, and lo a black horse; and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand. 6 And I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, A measure of wheat for a denarius, and three measures of barley for a denarius; and [see] thou hurt not the oil and the wine.

The scales referred to in this passage represent the need for balance between items of consumption: wheat and barley with oil and wine. The passage of “see that thou not hurt the oil and the wine” shows that a choice is made in favor of oil and wine over wheat and barley. In the 3rd seal, the scales- representing how people will balance their diet- and the call to not hurt the oil and wine indicates a lack of consciousness about the basic aspects of maintaining one’s health through balanced diet and exercise. In the 3rd seal, we have humans under the influence of Mars being inclined to seek pleasure over health. Proverb 21:17 associates Oil and Wine with pleasure; this would coincide with modern day alcohol use and sexual debauchery.

Mars is on a Black Horse in this seal of revelation and is driving humanity to seek pleasure to the detriment of physical health, something that wheat and barley provides since a person could sustain themselves on those particular food products, as opposed to just consuming wine and oil. The manifestation of this Mars placement results in people who use drugs like alcohol, engage in risky sexual perversion, ignore what they put inside their bodies and pay no attention to how they manage their personal health. There is a lack of proper diet and exercise, and a reduced survival instinct which can lead to a short lifespan due to poor health or unexpected death. Maintenance of personal physical health essentially summarizes what the 3rd seal means. Mars on the black horse, being the catalyst, serves as an opposing force to how someone would view the maintenance of their own physical health. The term Sex, Drugs, and Rock and Roll is good way to understand the 3rd seal. Examples of the worst quality of this are rock and roll artists that have abused their bodies with drugs, sex, and debauchery, and also adventurers who don't take into account the level of danger they could be in. There is also a sedentary quality to this placement that turns a person off to physical exercise, which seems contrary to an adventurous spirit. This aversion to physical exercise can lead to issues of being overweight. This aversion is due to the need for physical freedom.

The part of the brain correlating with the 3rd seal is the brain stem and cerebellum which make up what is called the Reptilian Brain. The brain stem is responsible for breathing, swallowing, heart rate, blood pressure, consciousness, and whether one is awake or sleepy. The cerebellum is responsible for the coordination of muscle movements. When Mars is located in the 3rd seal, a reduction of grey matter results and is manifested by a reduction in the desire and energy to perform the tasks allocated to that region of the brain, specifically diet and exercise. However, obesity doesn't seem to completely correlate here even though it would seem likely due to the theme revolving around diet and exercise. Sexual perversion, poor dietary food choices(which defines the 3rd seal), and a lack of exercise seems to play a more prominent role here than actual obesity or addiction. The Reptilian Brain is designed to perform tasks strictly related to keeping the body alive. Notice the brainstem and cerebellum located toward the base of the brain in the diagram below. It causes us to act as if our basic needs are still scarce. When a lack of grey matter is located in this region, an indifferent attitude to our basic survival ensues and leads to more risk taking in areas related to diet/ sex, while inclining us to less activity in matters of physical movement. It also causes a person to engage in physically dangerous risk taking, which is a testament as to why so many pilots and stunt men would have this placement. An easy experiment to test Mars in this placement would be to have everyone in the room in front of a table with an assortment of healthy and non-healthy foods. One half of the group would have a placement of Mars in the 3rd seal of their birth-chart(as the birth-chart is laid out according to the seals diagram) and the other half wouldn't have the placement of Mars there. The results would likely show that the group with the Mars placement made poorer dietary choices when selecting food from the table than the other half that did not contain that placement of Mars in the birth chart.

On the next page is the 4th Seal. The 4th Seal is the most significant seal of all and revolves around the Jewish people. There is widespread destruction, war, famine, and terror. This one is located right at the horizon in the birth-chart, 180 degrees from a person looking to the horizon. Gauquelin sectors identify this area as the rising sector and a key sector.

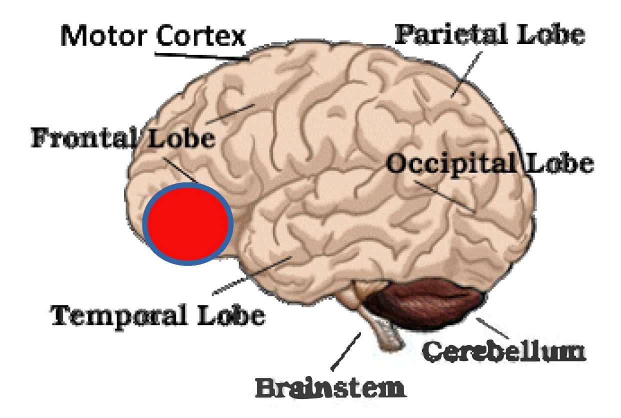

Revelation 6:7-8
7 And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth beast say, Come and see. 8 And I looked, and behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him. And power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

Mars takes his seat on a pale horse and is given power to destroy ¼ of the earth's population. The position of Mars at the horizon culminates in its worst effect on humanity and highlights the ultimate enemy of the Jewish people. Notable representations of this culminating effect and most horrible expression of Mars in this seal are figures like Adolf Hitler and Emperor Nero. Both are responsible for the deaths of millions of people not related to them in some way. For Hitler, the main target was Jews, and for Nero, the main target was Christians. Whereas the first seal involves direct communication, the 4th seal represents indirect communication through speeches, writings, etc. The antagonism based on Mars's influence here is centered around things that don't relate to us, whether it be other cultures, other countries, other religions, or anything or anyone not around at the moment. This perspective speaks to the worldly nature of those affected by this influence. While a belief in God can be expressed, the negative attitude to what's not around produces a very worldly attitude at the expense of the spiritual hidden things, which is why the world judges these characters as eternally damned. Therefore, spiritual matters related to the health of our souls, as it's defined in a contemporary sense, would fall under the category of what is not around at the moment in terms what we can see. This automatically confers a worldly attitude upon those under Mars's influence here. Also important to note is that the spiritual matters relating to the health of our souls which are hidden, not in plain view, are also the key to restraining ourselves with regard to obtaining worldly things. One of the most identifiable traits of those with this placement would be the inability to control how the tongue refers to others indirectly and also the subsequent lack of fear regarding the consequence of this. In a positive sense, this can manifest itself in bold truth-telling, but in a negative sense, it gives a propensity to bold lying. This is due to the reckless attitude to "words" itself as it relates to indirect communication. It's not a surprise, in terms of both the positive and negative, that many journalist in the media would have this placement. Because the target of indirect communication are those we cannot see at the moment, this placement also describes our attitude to hidden enemies. This position is prominent in those who express what are considered racist views. The lack of inhibition regarding what's not around at the moment is the reason men born under Mars at the horizon often make it to the highest levels of government with little to no fear of the distant enemy. They are thus able to give orders that affect the well being of total strangers without flinching an eye. The majority of nationalistic "heads of state" that have ever existed have this placement due to this lack of fear of what is hidden. The wealthiest men who have ever existed also have this placement due to the lack of self-control often involved in acquiring things of the world, which in itself can be said to arise from a contempt for what is not around. Mars riding the pale horse in the 4th seal has reached the heights of society one generation after the other. In the 1st seal, success is related to the competitive spirit, but in the 4th seal, it's related to a lack of discipline, self control, and contempt for the hidden. Since this also implicates the spiritual(self-discipline), it results in blind ambition for worldly things. In reference to those spiritual matters for the sake of clarity, God Himself would not be the target of antagonism arising from Mars influencing humanity in this seal. Since there are 2 perspectives for God: within and without(outside of ourselves), this placement becomes more to do with the soul and God within. The act of acknowledging God as outside of us would fall under the next seal. For now as it relates to the 4th seal, the part of the brain indicated in this revelation are the Frontal Lobes.

The Frontal Lobe is located at the front of the brain. The lower part of the forehead just above the nose is the area of focus, which is where the book of revelation makes a key reference in mentioning a mark of the beast.

The Frontal Lobes are defined as the executive control function of the brain which gives us the ability to modify and regulate our behavior. Self-discipline, self denial, adherence to Law and respect for the hidden are the major qualities arising from a healthy function of this portion of the brain, which explains why the Jewish ethnicity has an outward prominence at the lower portion of the forehead near the top of the nose, which would indicate a natural high amount of grey matter in that region. It explains their highly developed frontal lobes and superiority in matters of law, speech and intellect. The way Mars affects this area, as explained in the 4th seal, is by pulling grey matter from this region of the brain to produce a result that takes a person away from the healthy designated frontal lobe functions of self-discipline, self-denial, adherence to Law, ability to make decisions, respect for the hidden. The resulting effect is usually the display of wild opinions, reckless speech, racist views, lack of self denial, and provocation of those not around. We also find that those throughout history who have displayed characteristics indicative of a lack of grey matter in this region of the brain have also displayed a great deal of Anti-Semitism. This makes it such that it can be determined scientifically that recognition of Jewish ethnicity is hard coded into the human brain. Self-denial being defined here as a natural function of the frontal lobe can explain the prevalence of obesity in those affected by Mars's influence here, which may also be a key to understanding addiction. Since the 1980s, scientists began to observe that many people who were addicted to drugs appeared to have frontal lobe abnormalities. This makes sense since the frontal lobes are responsible for our ability to make decisions. Adolf Hitler, who is the hallmark of this Mars influence in reducing grey matter in the frontal lobes, was said to be a drug addict at the end of his life. It has also been noted by those around him that his ability to make decisions was deficient and his power relied greatly on his own tendency to give others the power to make decisions. Gauquelin found that Mars rising(horizon) and culminating(directly overhead) was also prominent in the birth chart positions of scientists. Jonas Salk and Albert Einstein have this placement of Mars near the horizons. Because the mind is located at the 2nd seal(60 degrees to the horizon and representing the temporal lobes), it's quite possible that the reducing quality of self-discipline arising from Mars at the horizon(frontal lobes) can open up the mind(temporal lobes) to generate more creativity(a major aspect of problem solving) without much interference from the executive control functions located in the frontal lobes. The forehead is also the other part of the body referenced in Revelation as a marking spot for the beast 666(forehead is represented by the 4th seal at the horizon and right hand is represented by the 1st Seal at the top of the chart wheel). Just as Gauquelin gave credence to the sectors of rising and culminating, which are associated with the forehead and the right hand respectively(horizon and directly overhead), the Bible also gives credence to these 2 areas of the body when mentioning the mark of the beast even though Mars affects more than just the forehead and right hand. Mars affects all 6 major regions of the brain along with the corresponding outward manifestation. The right hand is a manifestation of the Occipital lobe located at the back of the brain. Even though Gauquelin did not align his research to Scripture, further analysis in conjunction with what I have observed can relegate all inquiries into Mars as having Scriptural implications.

The 5th seal bring us 30 degrees to the horizon but below the horizon when focusing on the left side of the chart. This correlates to Mars being situated there and invoking an influence on humanity. The underneath quality provides a hint to what is meant by the 5th seal. On the next page is diagram of the fixed location of the 5th seal in an astrochart.

Here is a diagram of the 5^{th} seal

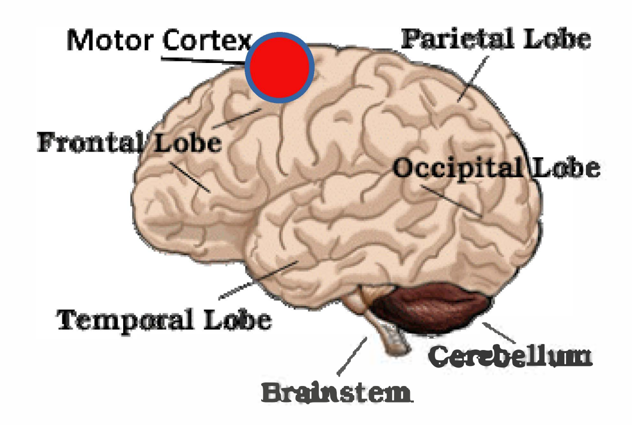

Revelation 6: 9-11

9 And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held: 10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? 11
And white robes were given unto every one of them; and it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season, until their fellow servants also and their brethren, that should be killed as they [were], should be fulfilled.

What we have in the 5th seal is a location of souls under the altar, and it is the first time that God is referenced directly within the seals. The "under the alter" indicates a submissive position, and the mention of a dialogue with the Lord from under something represents a yielding to Authority. The crying out speaks of frustration with this Authority. When Mars is operating here, the influence results in anger at not only God, but all authority and status figures in life. This culminates in political assassins like Lee Harvey Oswald who target heads of state, and disgruntled figures like a Mark David Chapman who would target status figures like John Lennon. The crying out in this seal speaks of direct and open blasphemy of God in heaven. Because authority figures are associated with work, a denial of the need to labor under supervision is also indicated. In a positive way this can promote non Materialism, but in a negative way this attitude can become a precursor to communism. The most positive expression of this mark culminated in Jesus Christ, who opposed the authority figures in his day and preached a message of peace and non materialism. Martin Luther King was also marked in this way, and so was Gandhi. All opposed the authority of their day in a positive way and eventually became martyrs for their cause. However, underneath these positive actions during their life was likely a deep seated resentment of God as He exists outside of them in heaven. Note: not a denial, but a resentment of God's authority to not provide relief to the sufferings in the world. Jim Jones, a Baptist preacher who convinced 900 of his followers to commit suicide, is a very negative manifestation of Mars's influence here. He openly blasphemed God in his sermons and was an unapologetic communist. At the more simple civilized level, qualities of procrastination, laziness, disobedience, lack of concern with work, lack of concern with finance, and disorganized lifestyle can display itself. It's difficult to discern if the 5th seals designate the actual location of God, or just simply the location of those in the position of submission to Him. For certain, it specifies a position of submission with the text "under the altar." However, it could be ascertained that God is present in relation to His subjects here. The part of the brain affected in correlation with the 5th seal with Mars operating in the designated 5th seal position, which is 30 degrees to the horizon but below the horizon when looking the chart wheel on the left side, is what is called the Motor Cortex. In a brain diagram, the motor cortex is located above the frontal lobes.

This section of the brain is involved in the planning, control, and execution of voluntary movements. While the cerebellum controls physical movement, the Motor Cortex makes the decision on whether or not to actually move. Meaning, it's the actual anticipation of voluntary movements which activate this area of the brain. These qualities would relate to the work and skill ethic of a human being. In the location of the motor cortex, we find out why European ethnicities are born on average with a pronounced cranial development in the higher regions of the forehead and why this quality plays a role in their track record of working the land while building skills to produce quality architecture. We also see a respect for authority and hierarchy when this region of the brain is properly developed. The development of technology is a major aspect that is related to the proper function of this region of the brain. When Mars gets involved and affects this area, it produces the antithetical effect in its reduction of grey matter in this region. This reduction causes a person to reject the need to display those aforementioned qualities related to what a healthy motor cortex permits(work ethic, skills, subservience), which therefore leads to an opposing mindset that authority figures are not needed in order to extract work from a person. While there is a belief that people can work independent of authority, there is also a mindset from this Mars placement that excessive work is not necessary for humans to exist. This is based on the premise that there are enough resources for everyone in the world, and that seeking anything beyond what are basic necessities simply equates to unnecessary excess. This is why socialistic mindsets along with communist sympathies can be justified by this placement, and why antagonism to supervised work and submission to authority figures would extend all the way to God. The anti-God attitudes coming from this area is usually out of spite. While there is a belief in God in this Mars opposition, proclamations of all kinds against God are usually done in anger directly towards God. In terms of work, a person may be able-bodied, but the lack of grey matter this region as a result of Mars would incline that person to decide not to move.

The sixth seal of revelation bring us to the area of the chart wheel that is 60 degrees to the horizon but below when observing the chart of the left side. It is the final description regarding qualities produced in humanity when Mars makes its revolution into this position.

Revelation 6:12-17

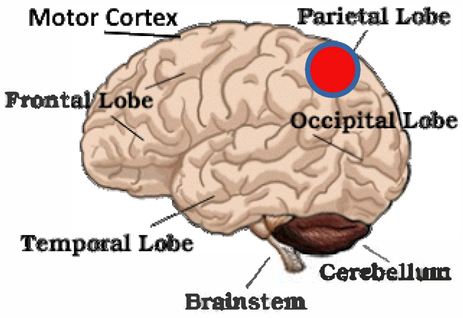

And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and, lo, there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood; And the stars of the heavens fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind. And the heavens departed as a scroll when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains; And said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: For the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?

In the sixth seal the sun turns black, and everyone hides themselves. The scene seems to be symbolizing some sort of desire in everyone to avoid the light. There is also the mention of things moving out of their places which indicates something going where it doesn't belong. This infers an element of identity which could be extrapolated from the words used in this passage. The desire to hide can be likened to a form of guilt or shame. Therefore, what the 6th seal is referring to is Mars exerting influence on humanity through bringing a sense of opposition to being seen properly, hence why the sun turning black metaphors the avoidance of a light which makes us visible. The 6th seal essentially refers to a desire to deny one's DNA makeup with regard to one's appearance and also disregard any reverence toward the eyes of others. It is related to one's hair, skin, nails, ethnicity, and facial expression. Modern Liberalism would be an example of this opposing effect towards one's identity. The moving of things out of their rightful place, as mentioned in the passage, symbolizes the rebellion of humanity to resist cultural norms related to how they are seen. The most negative culmination of this quality displays itself in exposing oneself foolishly through engaging in improper acts in plain view such as those who perform publicly in scantily clad attire or take their clothes off in front of a camera. Another negative culmination is a stage comedian in which the performer pays no attention to how he is being perceived by others. At the basic day to day level, it results in a lack of hygiene and proper rectitude along with a high degree of shyness and social awkwardness. The ability to hold a smile becomes limited, leading the person to display a "stern face" even when he is not aware of it. The failure to conform to cultural standards of dress and appearance can discourage meeting new people and getting involved socially, which often results in extreme introversion. This opposing attitude can extend beyond the individual and into anything or anyone that may resemble one's identity. Mars tries to implement control here in the 6th seal by using examples of racism(4th seal) to justify his self-hatred and push an agenda that evaporates all differences between one's own cultural identity and the ones of other different groups of people. This is done so that one's own cultural background, and therefore one's self, would not have to stand out in terms of identity. It's important to note that with Mars here, there is still a respect for the cultural identity of others. The opposition arising from the Mars influence here is simply based on how one views and expresses his own cultural identity. Appearances, as it relates to one's own, are therefore downgraded to nothing more than smoke and mirrors. The 6th seal says "who shall be able to stand?" This indicates that opposition to one's own cultural identity is not a virtue but actually a Satan'; Satan' is defined as an opposing force. This placement is unsurprisingly heavy in actors, comedians, nude stars, and liberals.

The area of the brain that is affected is the parietal lobe. The parietal lobe allows us to coordinate our movement in response to objects within our environment. It also receives and processes sensory information from the body and skin. The parietal lobe helps us understand where we are in space and deals with our ability to sense recognition in relation to our orientation. A healthy parietal lobe person would display a healthy orientation to their environment and an awareness of how they are being sensed by objects and people within their space. Their regulation of body position would conform properly to the area and to the situation. Charisma and a strong sense of identity is usually the result of a well developed parietal lobe. A lack of grey matter in this region would hinder a person's energy to display those aforementioned qualities relating to a healthy parietal lobe. There would be difficulty in sensing input from their environment and also difficulty in understanding how their orientation is applicable to the environment. This results in awkwardness and tension with objects and people releasing sensory information in response to their orientation. The lack of grey matter in the parietal lobe also impairs self care skills like dressing and bathing. The Parietal Lobe is located toward the back of the brain just above the Occipital Lobe.

A lack of grey matter always results in a lack of fear in terms of the consequences for not displaying the typical traits that the organ would allow for should there be sufficient grey matter to support its proper functions. When we see comedians and scantily clad entertainers behave foolishly in public in sight of others, we see a parietal lobe operating with a lack of energy and efficiency, which thus produces a seemingly courageous act from the perspective of onlookers who would, themselves, have healthy levels of grey matter in that area and therefore a natural inhibition to making a fool of themselves without regard to the perceptive input coming from outside of them. The lack of care from those affected by Mars is directly related to a liberal attitude with regard to the proper expression of one's own cultural identity. A healthy parietal lobe would make a person diligent in displaying himself in a culturally acceptable manner. He would have a natural awareness of how to position his body in relation to his environment and situation. His skin and hygiene would also be given its due priority. In the 6th seal, the passage "heavens departed as a scroll when it is rolled together" is a sign that the 6th seal is the final revelation of how the seals affect humanity. The 7th seal describes another round of going through the seals which correlates to a revolution or continuous orbit.

Revelation 8: 1-6

1 And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour.

2 And I saw the seven angels which stood before God; and to them were given seven trumpets.

3 And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given unto him much incense, that he should offer [it] with the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne.

4 And the smoke of the incense, [which came] with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God out of the angel's hand.

5 And the angel took the censer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and cast [it] into the earth: and there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and an earthquake.

6 And the seven angels which had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound.

In the 7th seal, an angel is given incense, which is filled with fire and cast down into earth. This results in voices, thunderings, lightnings, and earthquakes which resembled the destruction during the previous 6 seals. As a result, we can infer that the seventh seal relates to a revolution. At the beginning of his dream, John of Patmos is told: "Write, therefore, what you have seen, what is now and what will take place later." This continuous revolution explains how something can happened before, now, and again in the future. The nature of the seven seals being described as a judgment leading to destruction shows that there is an opposition force at work which is also given power to influence the masses. Mars360 conceptually fulfills this, along with the fact that it adds up to 666 using English Sumerian Gematria. When a person is born under its influence, they cannot comprehend its evil influence because of how Mars is integrated into one's nature. The influence can only be resisted through serious intent. This deficiency displays usually itself at an early age and can improve or get worse depending on the perspective and intent of the person. In terms of mark of the beast, everyone on earth is essentially marked with Mars somewhere. The Bible, which I also correlate with Michel Gauquelin's research, only gives credence to the areas of the forehead and the right hand(The Bible),which according to my research perspective would be Gauquelin's rising and culminating sector respectively. I find this to be no coincidence. This is a major reason the prophecy regarding 666(Mars 360) would point to France, and a why re-opening of Gauquelin's research will likely occur. The seven seals cover the entire brain and explains how the seven seals and Mars display a direct scientific effect on the human body. My research backs Gauquelin's and further conceptualizes that the advantage of these eminent sports athletes who have Mars culminating (as discovered in Gauquelin's research) is due to a lack of grey matter in a region of the brain that would exacerbate negative qualities which would serve as virtues in certain fields of competitive athletics, but at the same time, detriments in other areas of life. What's important to understand about Mars's oppositionary influence is that it cannot be fully suppressed. A person can fight against this opposing energy, but never really fully overcome it. This infers that a human can only experience peace when this force is allowed to exist within them and allowed to be express by them to a certain extent. For instance, since going against the grain of this natural force within a person requires intent, a person would be living his life with a great deal of discomfort in any attempt to suppress it. This poses a degree of unfairness when one person who is not Mars affected in a particular manner is held to the same standard as someone who is. Because this discomfort of going against one's own Mars influence is often too much of a chore, the temptation to pass it off as a virtue and a necessity for human existence becomes a more favorable option. This is why we see the different ideologies that espouse for society to give a certain level of freedom to one thing over the other. Western Civilization, albeit unbeknownst, is the closest to a society that tries to create outlets for every Mars expression and give some freedoms related to how each person expresses himself under it. The problem-solving aspect related to the expression of Mars would involve centering life around keeping a person from fully giving into the opposing energy and creating situations that would serve as a buffer to a full submission by the person toward the influence which often contributes to what happens at the far end of the trajectory as explained within the seven seals. The smaller day to day characteristics of humans that arise under the Mars influence are related to the trajectory of what the far end of the spectrum brings about, but is not an indication that the person would fully give into the energy. The seven seals simply explain what that far end of the spectrum is. An example of this link is how history of domestic violence is linked to terrorist acts, even though the two don't equate to each other in terms of scale. It doesn't mean that every incident of domestic violence is an indication of future terrorism; it only means that domestic violence is a trait that is on the same spectrum of terrorism, while not being a direct pre-cursor. Mars in the corresponding seal, the 2nd seal, which rules the temporal lobes indicates that, at birth, the person is on a spectrum that culminates in a final quality that displays the most violent acts of terror should the influence be given full authority over the person's life. A good analogy to understand more is how science teaches that all people are born with cancer cells and have these in their body throughout the entirety of their lifetime. It's when unhealthy habits are adopted that those cancer cells are able to grow with the scale of this growth being related to the degree of how a person gives into unhealthy lifestyle contributors. We apply this analogy to one being born with Mars in a certain position with the corresponding lack of grey matter as being the cancer cells already in our body and the smaller scale events like domestic violence and prolonged bachelorhood(from the 2nd seal) adding up over time and leading to the far end of the 2nd seal spectrum of terrorism as being the unhealthy lifestyle contributors to cancer that if fully given into would lead to terminal stage 4 cancer.

The path of this Mars phenomenon that leads all the way down to the human body explains the mystery behind dark matter that scientist have tried to figure out. Thus far, scientific researchers have only been able to suggest the existence of dark matter from the gravitational effect it seems to have on visible matter. Dark matter is defined in Britannica dictionary as "a component of the universe whose presence is discerned from its gravitational attraction rather than its luminosity." The Mars360 phenomenon opens the door to more research into dark matter as the definition of dark matter would explain the gravitational pull on grey matter in the brain which, in turn, prevents grey matter from spreading properly to the Mars affected regions. Here is a visual presentation of 666, Mars360's effect on humanity:

We can see visually how every human being is logged into Mars, no matter what age, race location, status, wealth, etc.

The diagram shows a visual representation of how Mars affects humanity with a circle over the corresponding lobe. We see how the dark matter exerts a pull on grey matter and prevents it from giving adequate support to the different parts of the brain affected by Mars. The future social engineering project will create an overt representation in civilized life of how Mars affects humanity. Confirming a drop in grey matter at each section of the brain related to each seal by way of Mars position in a birth chart, Scientist will began to conjure up a way to make this newfound knowledge benefit mankind. If the knowledge itself doesn't change how society reacts to each other, then someone will come along and enforce this marking system. The idea behind giving each person some sort of mark that can be displayed outside of their body as a form of identification is that it would allow society to understand the person and therefore adjust their conduct to accommodate the person in a way that allows expression of his Mars characteristics and likewise the other in response to theirs' without creating a big misunderstanding. An example of this would be a person marked outwardly with Mars in the forehead just above the nose meeting someone on the street who has a Mars mark in the back of his head or right hand. Upon the encounter, one would understand in the other that the mark on the right hand would indicate an antisocial personality tendency, while the other person, in mutual respect, would understand in the other that the mark on the forehead above the nose would indicate a lack of self-denial with racist opinions. This would lead therefore to each person allowing the other to display some of those characteristics without the other getting upset. Expression is thus allowed for both parties and no one is hurt. This system would also change the way the law would be applied. In this case, Mars will be taken into account in judgment of an act or crime and punishment would be applied according to that in light of other factors. Morality would take on a new perspective of understanding how natal influences cause different tendencies for different people and that some cannot live up to the standards of others because of this. This will lead to greater outlook of equality amongst the human race even amongst the differences. It will also give a new meaning to identity. Whereas now, DNA information like skin color, hair color, etc. displays ethnic background outwardly, an outward mark of Mars may lead to a new way humans may gravitate to one another. Whereas now, humans, for the most part, naturally try to stick with their own ethnicity. We see it at schools, at work, in prisons, etc. It's easy to conclude that people like to be with their own kind, not all the time, but for the most part. However, with the mark of Mars playing such a prominent role in a person's life with regard to the influence of it being a natural part of his nature, a mark of Mars could lead humans to gravitate to others that are marked similarly. The danger would lie with the 4th seal mark on the forehead which represents free speech and racist opinions and the atrocities of Adolf Hitler and Nero at the far end of that spectrum. A unification of this group could backfire because of a natural antagonism with those that don't share the same values. The lack of respect for what is hidden could lead to an event of major schism should the similarities of people with the same Mars mark become a major source of kinship. That's an extreme example and in order for that to happen, the Mars mark would have to overcome the consensus of natural human affection for one's closest blood relatives. The greatest resistance to an identification system will arise in the parietal lobe group due to the lack of grey matter in that region placing a person in direct opposition to self-identity. This involves ethnic characteristics, labels, titles etc. Since an overt mark showing where a person influenced by Mars represents labeling, the Mars parietal lobe group could exert a united front against this system. It's important to understand that there is a marking of the beast now, and its influence is affecting every person on earth as we speak and has done so since antiquity. At the moment, it's not an overt mark, but will become later on as science comes to a deeper understanding of the phenomenon.

Every time it's completely given into, Mars causes a person's nature to take on a more quarrelsome outlook. The advantage, depending on where you're marked(influenced by Mars), can give you an advantage in certain situations. Where as certain situations can cripple one person, another person with certain deficiencies in a certain part of the brain can display characteristics that can serve him well during a seemingly unfavorable situation. There are some societies, in which people who are marked with Mars on the forehead(lying) or right hand(stealing) will fare better than those who are marked elsewhere. The lack of grey matter in those areas will produce the necessary qualities to cope with the reality of a situation that requires these tendencies in order to get resources. Likewise, those marked with Mars at the reptilian brain may fare better in situations where survival instincts are not important, while those marked with Mars on the sides of the head(temporal lobes) may have an easier time coping with situations that require constant movement and drastic changes. Another major component needed to understand Mars360 is that there is no sudden jump from one seal to the next by Mars in his revolution through the positions defining the seal positions in the sky. The influence occurs at the position even if the position points to 2 different parts of the brain. For example, if Mars is at the top of the chart wheel where the 1st seal is located, but in between where the end of the first seal meets the beginning of the second seal(usually at the 24 degree mark using western calculation),the influence, as a result, becomes situated in both parts of the brain: the occipital lobe(1st seal at the top) and temporal lobe(2nd seal at 60 degrees to the horizon) with the level of influence on one compared to the other being dependent on how far Mars is in one seal compared to how far it is from the other. Each seal position takes up 30 degrees. Using Western calculation, the next part of the brain begins to get affected by Mars at the 24 degree mark with Mars still having influence over the previous region. It doesn't take full influence over the entire defined region of one seal position until it reaches the 0 degree mark.

After covering the seals, it becomes readily apparent that all the mystics, prophecies, and research that pointed to a planet as a major influence or subject regarding prophetic events came from the region of France. Marie Julie Jahenny with her Radiant Star/Planet prophecy linked to the Great Monarch was born and lived in France, Nostradamus's 1999 prophecy linking Mars to the rise of a French King was born and lived in France, Michel Gauquelin whose research was the first major inquiry by the scientific community into the effect of Mars was in born and lived in France. I, in this current writing and further explanation of Mars360 being equal to 666, have paternal ancestry that traces back to France to around the 1500s. France is considered the lily of the Church and it cannot be considered insignificant that the focus of the prophecy regarding a monarch and a planet of major influence somehow revolves around France. This seems to draw contradiction to the fact that bible prophecy revolves around the Land of Israel, however, the significance of the 4th seal says otherwise. It was mentioned earlier that the Jewish people have a connection to the 4th seal as Mars's influence on humanity in passing through the position of sky defined within the 4th seal has resulted in the rise of people who have opposed and persecuted the Jewish people. Because the 4th seal is tied to the frontal lobes, the prominent development of it in Jewish people indicates their own physiology has assigned them the highest level of performance regarding the healthy functions of the frontal lobes.....speech, writing, academia, law, religion etc. Mars moving into position to reduce gray matter in that region gave way to an antagonism to the Jewish people at the hands of non-Jews who were affected by Mars at the frontal lobes(forehead just above nose). This does not mean the Jewish people are exempt from having Mars influence their frontal lobes. It just means that the higher degree of frontal lobe health arising in the Jewish people makes the Mars influence in the 4th seal less potent within their ethnicity. However, when it does arise in the Jewish people, the natural antagonism of the Mars placement affecting the frontal lobes to hold unimportant those outside of one's own familiar cultural background can be a major source of antagonism for other cultures in observation of the Jewish culture even if its display is very minimal amongst Jews. One can argue that Jewish people have been held to an overly very high standard with regards to this. Mars affects every human on earth, so this antagonism arising towards those in whom nothing in common ironically share this same characteristic of Mars affecting the frontal lobe. We also see how this aspect of prevalent physical development in light of Mars correlates to other ethnicities who are more developed in certain parts of the brain, and upon being influenced by Mars in that specific region of higher development, they manage to only display a minimal deficiency when being judged as a whole. Another example of this is the temporal lobe development of South Americans and the subsequent lack of mental illness within that culture.

While many studies done by Gauquelin on the Mars effect worked out in favor of his original findings that Champion athletes tend to be born when Mars is either rising or culminating in the birthchart, a more conclusive confirmation process of the Mars effect comes about by measuring to see if there is a statistical significance related to the amount of grey matter in the region of the brain corresponding to Mars's position in Gauquelin's key Sectors of Rising and Culminating, which I conclude to be the Frontal lobe and Occipital lobe respectively. While much head work has already been done by Gauquelin in a statistical sense related to eminence of champion athletes and military men being born under Mars either rising or culminating, further examination of grey matter in the brain correlating to that finding would further substantiate the evidence. Because work has already been done regarding those two positions, more examination should continue to revolve around those two positions before starting analysis of how the other seals correspond to Mars and the grey matter reduction within the corresponding region of the brain. I find that Gauquelin's rising sector represents the 4th seal, frontal lobe, and forehead respectively, while his culminating sector represents the 1st seal, Occipital lobe, and right hand respectively. Because the right hand involves how we react to objects within our immediate environment to either want to greet someone or slight someone, it is therefore directly related to the Occipital lobe. This creates a research and testing environment that gives credence to the forehead and the right hand, and therefore credence to the Book of Revelation.

The Mars influence is displayed at an early age and doesn't represent every instance of its characteristics playing out in the world. There are more heavenly bodies and some with characteristics that manifest itself suddenly and unexpectedly in a person. One thing to note about Mars is that its identifying traits display themselves prominently at the beginning stages of life from childhood through adulthood in such a way that one can certainly identify those characteristics as unfavorable qualities in him or her.

Traditionally Mars has been associated with War and Violence, and after serious inquiry of the Mars effect on humans, I've gathered that Mars implants in every human the seeds for mass violence with the intended target based on how each area of the brain is defined. This is an important subject to cover because of the widespread coverage of mass shootings taking place in today's world. The only difference between each position of Mars is the target of that hostility, which-if allowed to persist to a climactic level- will lead to unrestrained action against those targets. It's important to note, every single human on earth has these seeds planted within them. Mars affects the entire Earth. In the first seal, when Mars reaches the top of the Chart, which is the culminating sector in Gauquelin's division, and representing the Occipital lobe/right hand of the brain, the target of hostility will be everyone on an equal playing field with the native, such as siblings, co-workers and everyone seen within the immediate environment. The Occipital lobe receives signals from the eye and is therefore responsible for how someone perceives moving objects. While the lack of fear relates to how others may respond to them with hostility due to their deficiencies in face to face communication, there is still a high degree of violent intent if Mars has taken a prominent role in their life. The idea of torture, both psychological and physical, is more favorable to this mindset at the far end of the spectrum than actual murder, but the hostility can lead to a situation of direct violence against a neighbor, sibling or co-worker. There is a targeting aspect related to this position and the person is usually aware of the objects of his antipathy. Because how we communicate affects the emotional well being of others, the family members of other people also fall under this jurisdiction. In-laws are included as well.

In the 2nd seal, related to the position of Mars at a 60 degree angle to the horizon, and representing the temporal lobes of the brain, the intended target of antipathy is usually everything the person has a close 1 on 1 relationship with and also women in general. This is due to the confining effect that those things have on someone with a natural adhd condition, which essentially make a person restless and inattentive. There is also a marked lack of human emotion here, and because women represent the emotional aspects of life, the hostility toward women and the mother would be pronounced. This targeting aspect also extends to the prevailing establishment and the governmental forces of the time because they represent a stationary influence upon a mobile freedom loving dynamic that Mars's influence represents here. Other than the people closest to them, and women in general, there are no other specified individual targets when violence against people ensues as a result of depleted grey matter in the region. The resulting casualties involving those who fall outside of the intended targeting are simply a product of the expression of rage.

In the 3rd seal, related to the position of Mars at a 30 degree angle to the horizontal, and representing the reptilian brain, the intended target of antipathy is usually one's own physical health and those restricting one's freedom regarding how they should decide to use or move their body. A vast number of astronauts have this placement, along with sexual deviants and drug abusers. There is a fine line between addiction and indulgence with this position leaning more to the side of indulgence. Masochism is a keyword describing this placement, which is defined as someone who takes pleasure in receiving physical punishment that results in physical pain and suffering. The target being one's own body culminates to extreme drug use, outrageous sexual behavior, and dangerous physical risk taking. The insistence on freedom of bodily use puts one at odds with physical confining forces like home and government, which is similar to the 2nd seal.

In the 4th seal, related to the position of Mars at the horizon, representing Gauquelin's rising sector, and the frontal lobes, the intended target is everyone considered weaker than the person and yet not part of that person via relative, friend or neighbor. Children, the elderly, minorities, the unseen, the sick, the handicapped, the disabled, and the Jewish ethnicity are all held in contempt by this Mars placement affecting the frontal lobes. The perspective of this Mars placement is the idea that those who are weak are simply using that position to incur sympathy and other benefits that usually come with being in a weaker state. We saw how Hitler was influenced by this belief when he instituted a Euthanasia program in the late 30's and also various other policies directed against the less fortunate. Boris Schiffer and colleagues of the University of Duisburg-Essen in Germany did a study using brain scans of 18 convicted pedophiles with a history of repeated child abuse of kids younger than 14 and compared the results with brain scans of normal men. Schiffer's group found that the pedophiles had about 2 to 4% less grey matter in the orbitofrontal cortex – an area of the brain that plays an important role in high-level decision making and reasoning -- than those of normal people. This study lines up exactly with the 4th seal location of the frontal lobes being directly above the nose and in a place where Jewish ethnicity displays a high level of development. In the pic on the next page, we can see the location of the orbitofrontal cortex, which is in the frontal lobes. Because development of this area is intrinsically linked to how we control our right and wrong actions, the Jewish people, who have a much greater physical development in this area i.e. more prominent upper noses to the rest of the population, are allotted a stronger sense of how moral law is applied. Their craniums would need to accommodate the extra space that their higher developed frontal lobes make up compared to the rest of the population. A lack of development in this area being linked to child abuse and Anti-Semitism would therefore link child abuse to Anti-Semitism. A healthy love and respect of the youth is why Jews dominate Academia and most teaching professions. This is from their naturally higher developed frontal lobes which manifest outwardly as prominent upper noses.

Jewish natural high development of Orbitofrontal Cortex(Frontal lobe area)

This area between the eyes can be said to represent the true temple of God within, and also intelligence with an emphasis on verbal IQ. This would align with the fact that Ashkenazi Jews, who have the highest IQ of all human beings, also have extended development in this area of the skull. It's also important to note that the entire middle eastern genotype/phenotype has a marked degree of development in this part of the skull.

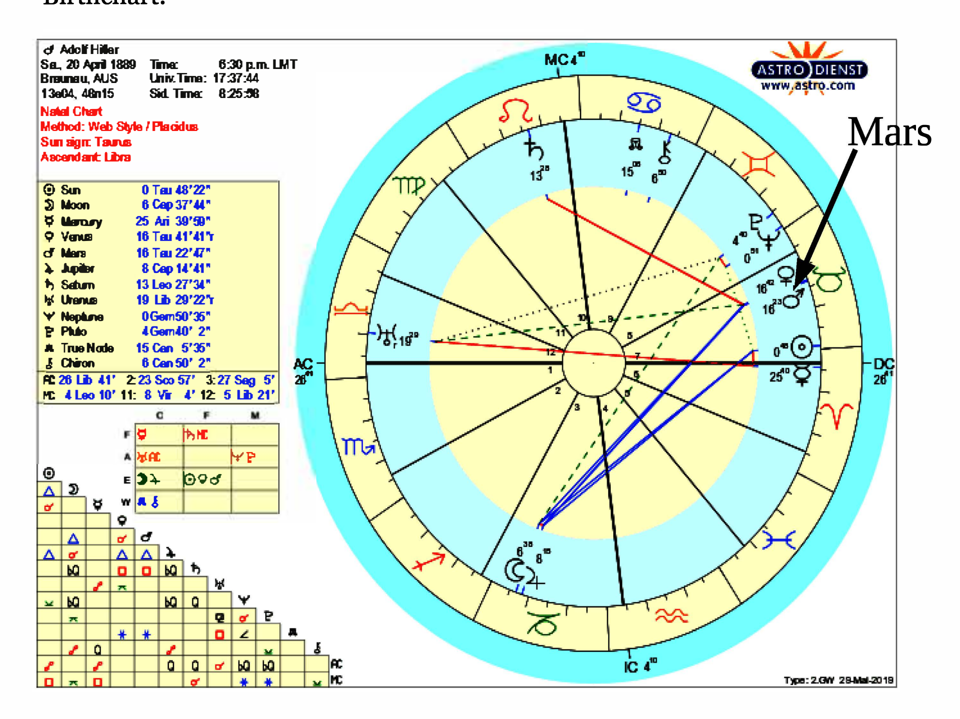

I wanted to mention something about the study relating to child abuse and pedophilia in which it was found in Schiffer’s study that criminals with a history of child abuse had 2 to 4% less grey matter than normal individuals in the orbital-frontal cortex. In my research, there is some complexity regarding it. There may be distinctions between rape, abuse, molestation, and murder that Mars360 could take into account depending on the case. Some child abuse cases seem to correlate to Mars in other areas of the chart.

In the 5th seal, related to the Mars position 30 degrees to the horizon but under the horizon, and representing the Motor Cortex, the target is always those individuals that are of a higher status than the person. It could be anyone from a manager at work, to a high profile celebrity, a head of state, or anyone that person is subject to in terms of status. God as acknowledgeable outside of ourselves also falls into this category. Extreme direct blasphemy of God would be a characteristic of this placement.

In the 6th seal which is related to the Mars position 60 degrees to the horizon but under the horizon and representing the Parietal Lobe, the target becomes everyone making prolonged eye contact with the person and also everyone in general. In this placement, there are no exceptions as far as where the anger is being directed because ultimately our humanness represents our identity. This hostility arises due to deficiencies of grey matter in the parietal lobe, which as a result, effectuates an above average need for privacy. Thus, any situation requiring the person to modify his body position in relation to his space, such as having to smile in a certain situation or having to gesture this way or that way, will be met with anger. Since society is made up of all types of people, all of humanity falls would fall under this antagonism. The desire for privacy stems from difficulties in having to deal with the perceptions of others and when the lack of desire to live up to those expectations converge with the frustration of dealing with other people's reaction, violence can be the result. The manifestation of outrageous behavior in plain view is a form of rebellion to the eyes of others. Since cultural background has its own set of rules regarding appearances, anything representing the cultural identity would become a major source of distress. Sensory input from the environment comes from the perceptions of others; the lack of instinct to cater to it is ultimately the foundation of this anger arising in a person with a lack of grey matter in the Parietal lobe.

To gain a more comprehensive view of Mars through the seals, we will look at some example astro charts. First I will show the display of a typical astro wheel using western calculation and then show how the seven seals would fit into that layout so that it can be clearly understood. Note: anything after 24 degrees is rounded off to the next position with an understanding that it will retain some minor influence from the previous position while taking on the definition of that next position. The reason for that is because Mars's influence on the brain as it revolves around the sun coincides with every part of the brain, which makes it possible that there is some overlap during the transition of Mars's from one seal to the next. Here is Adolf Hitler's Western Astro Birthchart.

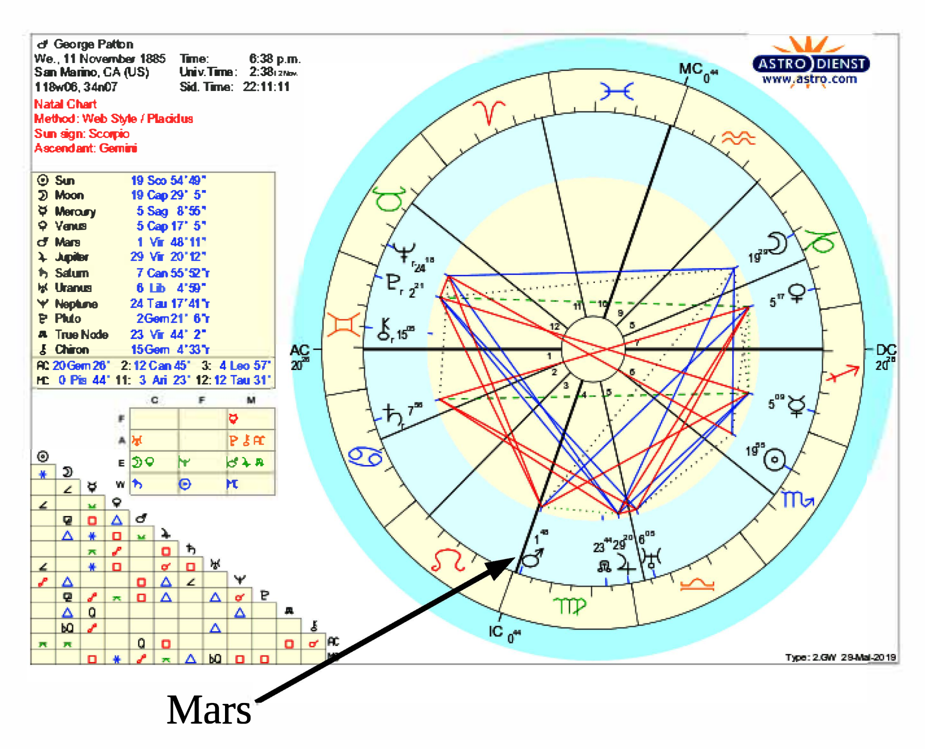

Notice how the Horizon line(AC) points to the 26 degrees. Since it's higher than 24 degrees, the horizon line would be interpreted as transitioning to the next sign of Scorpio. Since Mars is at 16 degrees in Taurus, which is directly on the opposite side of Scorpio, Mars can be relegated to the horizon(AC) since it's been determined that the exact opposite side of a seal position carries the same definition. Since we are using the seven seals, the scorpio/taurus axis in this case would correlate to the horizons and the 4th seal. In a chart of the seven seals, Hitler's chart would layout like this, but would be correlated with the seven seals layout as it was extrapolated from the Book of Revelation. We would also use the 24th degree of a sign(seal) to indicate the start of a transition out of a sign into the next and also a blending of the what defined that previous sign with what defines the next. I mentioned earlier that each side of the chart means the same as the opposite side. Therefore, Hitler's Mars would be interpreted to the 4th seal and thus would cause him to display characteristics associated with a lack of grey matter in the frontal lobe region of the brain, since the frontal lobe has been tied to the 4th seal. Because his life led to a complete giving way to Mars influence, he becomes the example of what depleted grey matter in the frontal lobe does to a person and also what the full scale of Mars influence on a person does to society as a whole. This doesn't mean everyone marked similarly is going to be a Hitler, it just means that the traits that this Mars influence has gives a propensity to this type of evil if the person should fully give into this influence and also be in a position to exert the out-come of it. Remember, every single human is implanted with a propensity for large scale acts of opposition. Mars in the 4th seal is just one example. This position of Mars can garner many advan-tages if used through proper social channels. Many in the media have this placement because the lack of grey matter removes a lot of inhibition on speech, which would give a person more boldness to express their views. Also many heads of state around the world have had this position because the lack of grey matter also removes the inhibition related to consequences regarding the hidden, which thus gives them very little fear regarding the potential of hidden enemies. Here is what Hitler's chart would look like using parameters laid out by the seven seals with Mars in the 4th seal:

This is the chart for George Patton. We can see the line pointing to the Pisces/Sagittarius axis as being our reference point for the 4th seal with Mars located at the bottom segment of the chart, which is correlated with the First seal. Since both sides of the chartwheel mean the same, the first seal is considered to be both its designated top position and also its exact opposite side at the bottom position and is defined as a lack of grey matter in the occipital lobes/right hand.

On the next page is Patton's chart, but this time using the seven seals as it would define the layout above. This way, we can see Mars influence in the 1st seal segment. The resulting lack of grey matter in his Occipital lobe would have had an effect on how he perceived the people around him. The lack of proper face to face communication arising from this often results in verbal and physical abuse if allowed to persist. While this deficiency was a major reason for his success as a general, it was also what got him into trouble when it became excessive. It eventually caused him to slap his own soldiers in the face. This, in turn, is what led to him being sidelined from combat command as punishment. The Chart shows Mars at the 1st Seal:

The revelation of Mars360 as the lawless one essentially put the influence at bay. It's similar to a concept discovered in psychology. Josef Breuer was a physician whom Sigmund Freud studied and referenced in his research on psychoanalysis. Breuer discovered a method to eliminate neurotics symptoms, and that method was by bringing unconscious processes involved in causing the neurotic symptoms, and making the neurotic person aware of those unconscious processes. In Freud's book psychoanalysis, he credits Josef Breuer for this discovery: "he found a technique for bringing into her consciousness the unconscious experiences that carried the meaning of her symptoms, and the symptoms disappeared."

Paul writes in Corinthians,
"And then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will overthrow with the breath of his mouth and destroy by the splendor of his coming."

The breath of his mouth is indicative of how the same technique used in psychology and discovered by Josef Breuer will be used in the case of Mars360. By making a neurotic person aware of his neurosis by telling him the unconscious process involved, the person who revealed it to him essentially cures the neurotic person of his neurotic symptoms. That process correlates to how making the world aware of the process of Mars's influence on their behavior essentially allows them to modify their tendencies accordingly.... whether it's regarding how Mars directly influences them, or how Mars's influence over another person affects their behavior toward the person. The "breath of his mouth" can be referenced with simply talking or speaking, which is what is happening as more information about Mars360 comes about.

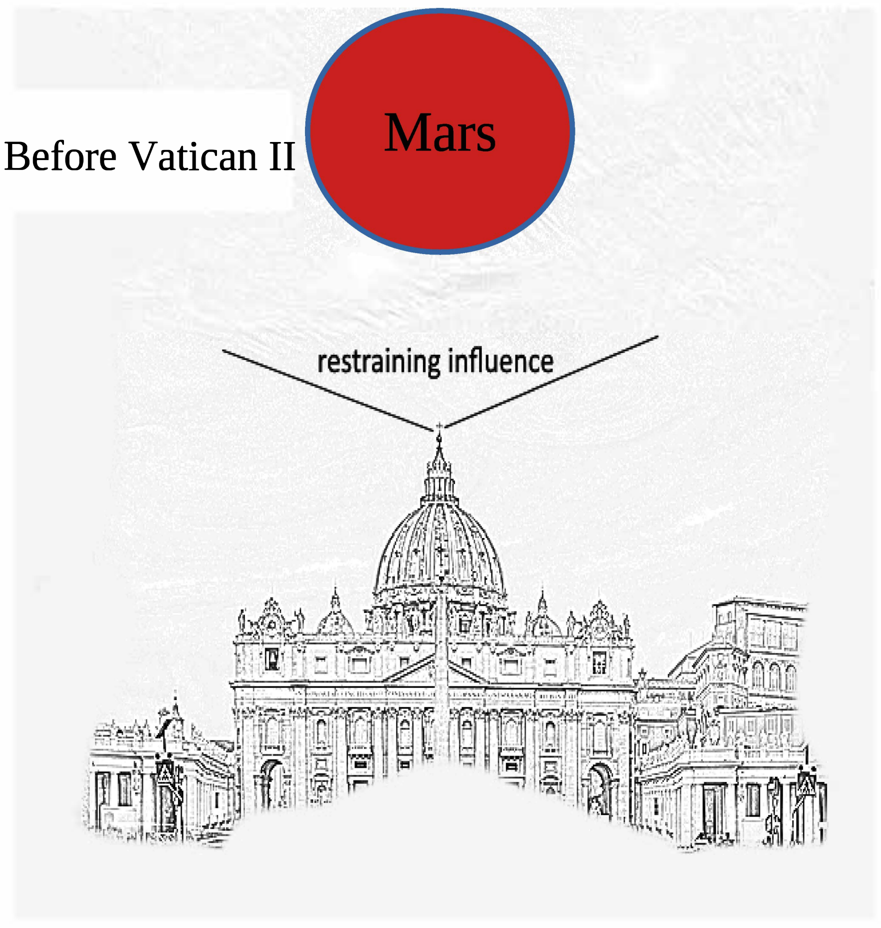

What Mars360 infers is that one ideology of life cannot be implemented because Mars affects everyone differently. It understands that all humans are basically trying to push an agenda that will allow some freedom for their natural deficiencies, even though throughout history it's been unbeknownst. This is not to be described as a complete giving-into the Mars energy. It's just a perspective that allowance of some natural expression to reduce the tension related to constantly fighting against the natural tendency of being born under the influence will make for a more steady sense of being. Mars 360 as a system would find some resistance in what it can see as being related to it. This poses a challenge to an overt identification of Mars being fully implemented since the 6th seal describes a Mars influence that would oppose the perception and eyes of others, and therefore any semblance of being "tagged." However, overtly, makes one aware of the distinctions and how it's a necessity that everyone is allowed some expression without major consequence. This, in theory, should put some ease on the reaction to Mars's influence on others, which is often a cause for the other person's decision to completely give way to their own Mars influence, which ultimately puts society at risk as described by the seven seals in Revelation.

The Magisterium, the force of the Holy Spirit in the Church as passed down from generation to generation through Apostolic Succession, was the greatest restraining force on the unbeknownst oppositionary effects of Mars. While the Magisterium didn't completely remove Mars's influence, it did acknowledge its manifested characteristics for what it was, sin. This, acknowledgment, in itself, brought with it a sense of contrition regarding each person's natural sinful nature. Today's world retains the same Mars influence, but with a worsening effect which doesn't acknowledge its position as detrimental to the existence of a healthy society. Therefore, those under the Mars influence, because of its natural quality, cannot fathom that their actions would be a detriment. What Vatican II resulted in was a Church "taken out of the way" of restraining Mars's influence and thus a subsequent lack of contrition regarding the nature of sin. However, this taking out of the way is what allows for the revelation of the lawless one to move forward.

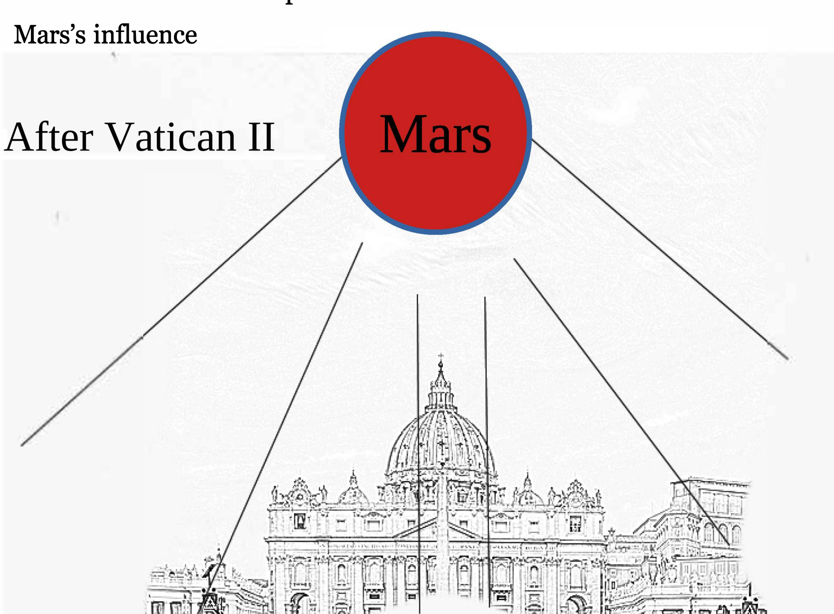

Breaking of tradition is never taken lightly especially when it pertains to the Sabbath. God decreed for the Jewish people to be conquered by the Babylonians in 605BC mainly because they were not keeping the sabbath. So likewise, a change in the Liturgy, which has sabbatical implications, would have to be considered as something that would warrant the wrath of God. Vatican II and the after-effects does however confirm the lawfulness of Church Doctrine and its foundations prior to, otherwise Vatican II would have resulted in almost no significant change in the values of society. In order to apostatize, one would have to be doing something right to begin with. So in that sense, it can no longer be argued that Catholics were always wrong in having the sabbath assigned to Sunday. If it was the case that they were wrong, how could The Church have persisted up unto Vatican II when God is clear on how He reacts to Sabbatical infractions? During the creation, God's week started when His work started, and on the seventh day after His first 6 days of work, He rested and demanded for that day to remain holy. So the week for a culture doesn't start on a Saturday or Sunday. Just like God, when he first created the world, the week for a culture starts when they began work and traditionally in Western Culture, work begins on Monday. The seventh day from that point is Sunday. So Sunday, the seventh day as God commanded, is to be kept holy. The change in the Liturgy at Vatican II was the infraction of that holy Seventh Day, which in turn invoked God's wrath.

This page shows an image that represents the role of the Church. Notice the force-field of morality hindering Mars's influence before Vatican II.

Another reference to the Vatican's influence symbolized by the above diagram is the lightning strike which occurred at Vatican City in February of 2013, just hours after Pope Benedict XVI's resignation. Filippo Monteforte, a photographer with Agence France Press, captured the lightning as it struck the very top of St. Peter's Basilica. It shows how decisions made by the Papacy affect Heaven's response to Earth.

Here is how Vatican II opened the Church and the World to an increase in Mars's influence

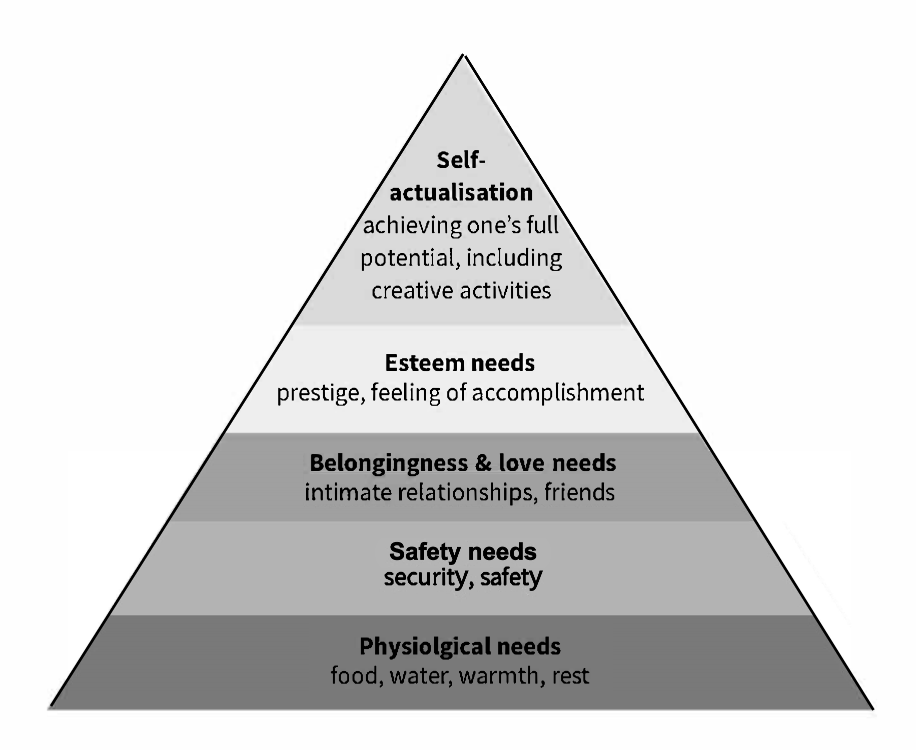

Mars360 helps us understand the relationship between dark energy and dark matter. While Mars influence has a gravitational pull on matter in the brain via dark matter, the negative effect displayed comes about as a result of the dark energy in the universe. The difference between Dark energy and dark matter is that dark matter exerts a gravitational force on surrounding matter that we can measure and Dark energy is a repulsive force that makes the universe expand at an accelerating rate. The repulsion displayed from Mars influence to normal outcomes of healthy brain grey matter function is a result of how dark energy exerts its power. What occurs in the brain is a result of dark matter, and the outcome of character traits displayed on earth is a result of dark energy. The advantages that the Mars influence can have on some productive activities, such as sports and media, explains how dark energy has resulted in the expansion of the universe even while exerting itself through negative actions on earth. The notion of dark matter as a gravitational pull, and in the case of Mars influence, pulling matter toward itself, would back up the belief of Hell being a place. It would make sense that this pull in a very extreme sense resulting in a complete loss of grey matter in a certain brain region would indicate that same matter being taken all the way to Mars as a result of that pull overcoming the gravitational influence manifested by other masses in the universe on the human. Because the human mind itself is science, and therefore truth by way of its own existence, the outcomes produced by the human mind must be rooted in something that exists in terms of what we can acknowledge. Religion itself gives us a metric in terms of how far we can go. For this reason, the text written by the prophets who display outward proof of frontal lobe strength can serve as a diligent attempt by the mind to resolve itself to a very specific truth. In Daniel, the text makes reference to this opposing force. Daniel 11: 36-39

“36Then the king will do as he pleases and will exalt and magnify himself above every god, and he will speak monstrous things against the God of gods. He will be successful until the time of wrath is completed, for what has been decreed must be accomplished. 37He will show no regard for the gods of his fathers, nor for the one desired by women, nor for any other god, because he will magnify himself above them all. 38And in their place, he will honor a god of fortresses—a god his fathers did not know—with gold, silver, precious stones, and riches. 39He will attack the strongest fortresses with the help of a foreign god and will greatly honor those who acknowledge him, making them rulers over many and distributing land for a price.”

We can see how there's an attempt to clue us into the nature of evil. Daniel’s passage perfectly describes the outcome of a lack of grey matter in the different regions of the brain via Mars. This is also symbolic of the perspective that a proper functioning brain region gives a certain authority to its respective outcomes. In the case of Jewish ethnicity, it's the prevalence of a healthy functioning frontal lobe that tends to give their culture more emphasis to the production of Words, whereby in other peoples, the importance is garnered unto whichever part of their brain has the required amount of development to warrant a priority for its prospective characteristics, hence the mention of other gods by Daniel. But because without the word, which would lead to this dynamic being unable to be written, many would try to follow the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, which is what allows humanity to discover things and then share those discoveries via the word(written or spoken). Mars's revolution around the sun influences 6 major regions of the brain. One of the most highly regarded theories with regards to human relations seem to align somewhat with this general idea. The idea is Maslow's Hierarchy of needs. However, Maslow's hierarchy as uniform throughout society comes into conflict with how Mars affects the human condition. Abraham Maslow tried to assess that if we were given a series of different behavior that we had an option to engage in, what would predispose us to choose one behavior over the other. He then determined that our behavior was based on what our needs were at a particular point in time. From this idea, he created a classification system of the different needs of society. Even though the hierarchy doesn't line up with the nature of Mars's position in the sky, his division of it into 6 major components does line up with how the sky is divided. In his classification system, love and belonging are grouped into one, but can be split into 2 without disrupting the basic idea of the theory. In the picture, on the next page, is how he lays out society's needs.

The 6 needs are listed in Maslow's hierarchy: Physiological, Safety, Love, Belonging, Esteem, and Self actualization. In terms of the seal positions in the sky that are influenced by celestial bodies, Physiological would fall under the 3rd seal(reptilian brain), Security needs would fall under the 5th seal(motor cortex), Love would fall under the 2nd seal(temporal lobes), belonging would fall under the 1st seal(Occipital lobe), esteem would fall under the 6th seal(parietal lobe), and Self Actualization would fall under the 4th seal(frontal lobe). The nature of Mars upsets the idea of a uniform hierarchy of needs prioritized a certain way amongst all members of society. Mars, in influencing how grey matter is allocated to certain regions of the brain, would deprioritize whichever of Maslow's needs are in correlation with what is defined to be the result of brain activity in that area. For instance, Mars affecting the frontal lobes, would deprioritize Self Actualization and consider it as unimportant. If it's affecting the reptilian brain, Mars would deprioritize physiological needs of basic survival and consider that as unimportant. Mars on the Temporal lobes would consider love the most unimportant. Mars essentially takes whatever defines the designated qualities that it's opposing and places them at the bottom of the hierarchy in terms of priority. However, deficits springing from the lack of intent to the basic activity would not hinder the prioritizing of some of the other needs. It must be said----in order to avoid misconceptions about Mars----that Mars, itself, is not responsible for all bad actions that take place on earth, but is responsible for consistent opposition to normal working potentials of normal brain function. In terms of how detrimental actions occur all the time, proper perspective is needed. Just as a person, who adheres to proper standards can experience the same result as someone who doesn't, people who are not influenced by Mars in a certain way, can experience the same results as someone who is, whether it's the outcome via action or the outcome via opposing action. What Mars does is speak to the traits that are on the same spectrum as the far extreme outcome of its influence. To avoid confusion, imagine how a person can become sick through his own natural behaviors and how he can become sick through no fault of his own by just by being caught up in a certain situation. Just as a risk taker can die in a car crash, a non risk taker can also die in a car crash. The differences arise in the nature of the celestial body influencing the non- risk taker who died in a car crash. So as is the case, not every planet exerts the same gravitational pull. There are many different variations of influence and each planet exerts a different kind. Some influences are in such a way that produces a positive result and others are in such a way that produces an unexpected result of sudden shock(Uranus) to the body. Binge eating is a good example. We have those who are naturally careless in what they put in their body and others who eat healthy but every once in a while go on a binge that is unexplained by their normal conduct. These occurrences infer a different celestial influence. To be clear with Mars, it should be noted that at birth and in the early life of the person, the influence is recognizable through relating how certain characteristics are on the same spectrum as more extreme characteristics with the display of those less significant characteristics on the spectrum being a signifier into what exactly a child may be at risk for.

When it comes to defending the foundations of the Catholic Church and then basing a major scientific discovery on it using Scripture and Catholic prophecy, in light of the multiple allegations of child abuse, the Church becomes left open for arguments to try and delegitimize its foundations. The Catholic Church is falsely regarded as a body that is more concerned with tradition then with Truth. However, it is important to note that breaks with tradition don't bode well with God as the Babylonian invasion in 605 BCE and later the Roman invasion in AD 70 were both preceded by a major fall away from tradition, followed by a desolation post-invasion. Vatican II can obviously be included in that cause and effect. But still, even in light of that, many would be surprised to learn that the big bang theory which posits that everything in the universe expanded from an originating point, was first proposed by a Catholic priest named George Lemaitre. St Augustine and St Thomas Aquinas, highly regarded scholars of the Catholic Church, also ventured away from strictly Scripture and used sources of philosophy from Socrates, Aristotle, and Plato to gain a better understanding of God and Church. To this day, the Catholic Church considers Augustine's and Aquinas's insight as a major part of Church Dogma.

Many cite the nature of the Church before the Council of Nicaea as the way Christ intended it.....a decentralized church system with each congregation around the world having its own autonomy. While many argue that there is nothing in Scripture that supports a central church body from which all other churches are subject to, there is also nothing in Scripture that shows that Christ didn't want his ministry to continue and eventually spread throughout the world. In order for this to happen, certain things had to take place. For one, if Jesus intended his message to be spread with consistency, then there needed to be some organizing for this to happen, and not only that, it also had to be allowed and sanctioned by the governments in those areas where the ministry would travel at some point. It's true many Christians were slaughtered by the Romans, and later by the Nazis in Germany. But at some point, there would have had to be a measure of acceptance of it if knowledge of the gospels and adherence to the teachings of Jesus were to spread throughout the world. Before the Catholic Church, knowledge of Christ was minimal in comparison to the rest of the world that didn't know of Him. The formation of the Catholic Church is what allowed more people to eventually gain the knowledge about Jesus Christ, and might I add -- in a consistent manner. People overlook how the de-central form of Christianity would have disrupted any real conviction by anyone taking in the gospels as they would have been introduced to multiple versions of Jesus. No follower of Christ would dare justify such a program. The realistic aspects of carrying out action in the real world shouldn't discount the supernatural quality of Jesus's life. This foundation doesn't mean that there is no moral conflict within the Church that injures the measure of holiness assigned to its reputation. Even the Jewish People, established as God's chosen people, were marred with moral conflict that challenged that very notion, but yet they've never been disqualified from that assignment. When it comes to prophecy, it's often misconstrued as having a morally favorable outcome. Prophecy, we find, is amoral in outcome and doesn't constitute a happy ending. The only moral outcome of prophecy, of real prophecy is Truth. Certain things are prophesied to happen, and this is often all there is to it. With regard to the foundations of the Church, the subsequent fall of moral standing was prophesied to happen, and that in itself defines the providence around what is happening in today's Church. Even in the midst of such an outcome, one can look to the fact that it was prophesied throughout history with Paul and then with the Catholic saints and mystics, and in turn, in observation of that, maintain a base of steadfastness to continue on the righteous path. It was foretold that there would be a falling away starting from the top. "It all being a part of God's plan" is where hope lies in this fallen aspect facing the Church. It's not the result in terms of favorable to you or I, but the result in terms of our knowledge and conviction that this is a part of God's plan. This is what everyone who espouses to have a relationship with God seeks, not the good things or bad things of the world, but to be a very real part in God's will. The argument always goes back to the presupposition that Christ laid out no blueprint for what the Church is today.......buildings, a congregation, a denomination of religion, a hierarchy, etc....and that the quote "upon this rock I will build my Church" has nothing to do with assigning Peter as the first Pope. Therefore, the argument maintains that Catholicism altogether is a farce. This leaves the door open for another to come along and declare there is no historical factual proof that Jesus even existed, so that makes Christianity itself a complete lie. Then someone can come along and say there is no way to quantify God's existence as real in a physical sense and so all of religion is bogus. The resulting effect becomes opposition essentially leaving itself open to a ripple effect of opposition that ends up phasing out its own standing. However, it still leaves a fact that cannot be denied..... that there are humans that believe in God, there are humans that believe in Christ, and there is a Church that tries to base its teachings on Christ. If all human action is subject to gravity, then what is subjecting humans to the cause of them allowing such things to influence their beliefs and actions and also why is this effect so widespread as a result of one concept? Is not a belief in something more conducive toward getting to the bottom of something than a belief in nothing? Even Atheist aren't drawing their conclusion from atheism alone. They're actually studying the work of believers. Can something be invented without it being first thought possible? Sure, there are accidents, but the vast majority of what is in creation started as a belief, and even in the case of an accident, it started as a belief in something. Modern science is built upon the actions of those who started out believing in the unprovable. This belief led to efforts which eventually led to the production of something that can be quantified in terms of math. Therefore, even though the existence of God cannot be proven in a mathematical sense, the output that arises from the belief will give more clues into the nature of existence, than the non-belief that is often espoused by others in opposition to the Church, an opposition which produces no fruit on its own, but only from the observation of someone else's work, which in this case is the work of believers. A good analogy is the working tax payer and the non-working non tax payer, in which the non-working non-tax payer receives benefits from the fruit of the working tax payer's labor and yet still discounts the need for human labor as a necessary part of existence simply because he is able to achieve a bottom line of sustaining himself unaware that he's not acknowledging where he gets his sustenance from. One can continue to argue by pointing out that there are cultures that have survived for centuries without any focus on organized monotheistic religions like Christianity, such an achievement recognizes in itself that organized monotheistic religion is not needed to sustain a society of people. Another observation that could be used is derived from the fact that arriving at a conclusion outside of the determined path put forth by organized monotheism or any system has been proven possible. So the idea that one religion should feel the need to force itself upon and eventually overcome the foundational beliefs of those who have already generated enough equilibrium within themselves to survive century after century is an idea that starts to serve as a direct antagonism to basic intelligence. If something is working, why change it? It can be concluded that the expansion is related to a fight for legitimacy.......that somehow getting more people to follow something validates the truth of it, where as that something being left within a smaller framework makes it less convincing to the world at large. There is a direct contradiction between this enforcement and many of the themes outlined in the gospels with regards to how one should live. To try and justify a willful expansion sets the stage for multiplied justification efforts by those who seek to validate their own system via expansion. It's very difficult to morally justify this expansion within the framework of what is taught in the gospels if actual force was used. If expansion was related to a willful acceptance and conversion based on what was preached, and preached without an insinuation to force... then this expansion is justified, but only if accommodation is made by the expander for others to do the same upon entry into his own society. In light of all plausible explanations, using the argument of outcome attained by way of creative expression of the individual outside of the systematic framework of monotheism cannot hold weight if the person outside of the framework is seeking a status that is defined within the infrastructure of organized monotheism. A good analogy is the example of a person seeking the status of “doctor” by going to the library everyday and learning about procedures under his own volition without going through a formal training course at an academy or institution. While he can indeed title himself as doctor, his recognition as legitimate will be based on how he defines his credentials and not the way the larger society defines it. From a non-religious point of view, the Catholic Church would still be a focus because of the visibility of how it's being tugged in a certain direction no matter how the path to its significance is judged. Science can only study hidden things from how observable matter is affected. Because the Catholic Church is the most visible symbol of a shift in the wavelength simply by the reaction of other moving bodies to and away from it, the Catholic Church becomes one of the metrics used to delve deeper into an understanding of what is going on.

PLEASE NOTE: IN THIS BOOK ANY MENTION OF THE WORD "ANTI-SOCIAL" OR "ANTISOCIAL" IS EXPRESSED UNDER THE IDEA THAT IT INVOLVES A LACK OF CARE/ENERGY TOWARDS FACE TO FACE COMMUNICATION.

Chapter 18

Summary of the 666 System - Mars 360

There are many interpretations on 666 being designated to describe either many things, many people, or just one person. With Mars360, we can see how Mars's effect on every human being as it revolves around the sun actually describes all of those things. It's a person, it's many people, it's responsible for many things, it has been here, it's here now, and will come again. In Leonardo Da Vinci's Vitruvian man, the analogous relationship between the human body and the universe is key to understanding how the number of a man in the case of 666 relates to a universal concept. While the circle infers a 360, and a square as the significance between the location of what represents the forehead and right hand(forming a square aspect to each other) in a birthchart, Vitruvian man can be seen as a very real representation of how the universe is defined through the diagram of one human body. Such clues are ideal in understanding the number of the beast as Mars 360.

Because France was the country where the first discovery and serious research into the possibility of a scientific link between the revolution of Mars and human behavior took place - through the work of Michel Gauquelin - France should be the country to officially reopen the scientific investigation of Michel Gauquelin's work regarding Mars while also investigating the correlations discovered from my own research. Once confirmed by the scientific community, the topic of Mars360 can then segue into other areas like academia, which would provide the necessary platform for understanding it in terms of being part of a curriculum.

Mars360 solves many issues because it quantifies the rights of every human being on earth in terms of one's natural lawlessness. Mars doesn't adhere to the designated qualities assigned to each position in the sky. It opposes it. The expression of Mars in this opposition is as natural as breathing, so society itself becomes responsible for these natural rights not to be violated, all the while still being responsible for keeping Mars from being given enough expression to inflict damage upon the foundations of an ongoing society. I wouldn't call this phenomenon fully legalized sinfulness. It seems to moreso take on the idea of understood lawless energy. This understanding itself would be a major step in the right direction toward everlasting peace, but likely at the cost of what Christianity defines as salvation. People would continue to express freedom with regard to how they believe, however, accepting 666(Mars 360) would constitute a rejection of contrition from a Catholic standpoint, which results in eternal damnation. The understanding of 666 and its working model is based on interpretation of Scripture found only in Christianity. Therefore, the world and all of its different beliefs come under the intention of God's timeline in terms of Catholic eschatology. This in itself gives Catholics a certain status before full implementation of 666. The history of Catholicism, with its many apparitions such as the ones in Fatima and La Salette, point to events in the real world that prefigure the fulfillment of Paul's prophecy----a falling away(Vatican II) and the revelation of the lawless one(Mars360 = 666). Initial Mars360 research, however, should be maintained as an extrapolation of important scientific knowledge from Scripture that was echoed throughout history by the mystics. When it comes to the messenger of this revelation, the lack of credentials are resolved by 2nd Thessalonians 6-8.

"And you know what is now restraining him, so that he may be revealed at the proper time. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work, but the one who now restrains it will continue until he is taken out of the way. And then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of His mouth and annihilate by the majesty of His arrival."

With the Catholic Church Magisterium now "taken out of the way," this message along with the messenger can be deemed sufficient enough within itself to be understood. The traditional Catholic Church will continue on, but the understanding of 666 through accepting the continual developing eschatology of God's plan will take its rightful path according to His ultimate will.

It may be considered by those who only skimmed through.... that this message is simply a detour to astrological jargon. While astrology believes that the movements of the planets correlate to the behaviors of human beings on Earth, it, along with science, doesn't hold Scripture to be of any significance, nor does it attempt to quantify itself in such a manner that directly relates itself to Scripture. Astrology's current way of defining itself is sporadic and confusing....with the result of its contemporary systems being a compendium of conflicting ideas and translations passed down throughout each generation. With the revelation of the lawless one and the exposition of the seven seals, the study of human behavior being affected by the movements of the planets -- along with a description of exactly how in the case of Mars via grey matter -- takes on a much more quantitative approach. Just as works were defined through faith, the metaphysical and the scientific now become defined through that same faith without afflicting the independent importance of each subject. This is possible because of Gauquelin's work. Unbeknownst to him that the significance of his findings were related to biblical significance, he nonetheless provided the framework for further study with his extensive library of research related to Mars. Marie Julie Jahenny's prophecy of a radiant star/planet and Nostradamus quatrains related to Mars were also insights alluding to what was further quantified by Michel Gauquelin. It's of no coincidence that each of these revelations were of French origin with this revelation being by someone linked to France via paternal ancestry. The revealing of the lawless one as the key to unlocking the seven seals has now become a basis for social engineering.

With racism and hatred being one of the number 1 topics covered in the news as of 2019, I feel it's important to present what has been revealed regarding 666 in way that a layman can understand. On the topic of racism, 666 will show how it cannot be placed in one box in terms of hatred, but can be placed within every aspect of human nature. 666 will show how that perspective of racial animosity is relative to the mark of the beast and is displayed relative to what defines the seal according to how Mars generates an influence. This is important because it expands the horizons of human perspective and increases their ability to perceive appropriately. On the next page are 6 possible placements of Mars in an astrological birthchart. It was mentioned earlier that Mars can affect 2 different parts of the brain if it is in transition from one sign to the next. For the sake of understanding the general idea, I will leave out examples of transition in these diagrams. I will stick with cut and dry placements of Mars correlating to the appropriating part of the brain. As mentioned before, both sides of the chart mean the same thing, so Mars is placed on both sides.

2nd Seal
3rd Seal
4th Seal
5th Seal
6th Seal
1st Seal
2nd

The zodiac signs don't have any significance because the seal position layout would be the same, no matter which birthchart is calculated. The first seal will always be at the top and the 4th seal will always be at the horizon. Starting with Mars in the 1st seal as shown on the previous page, this person can display racism in the form of face to face communication, mostly via name calling. That would be the extent of his animosity. It would not extend to those he cannot see at the moment, so he cannot be placed into a full definition of what it means to hate an entire race or group of people. His Mars hostility is relegated to the immediate environment. What 666 is showing here is that a person can call someone a derogatory racial name without he himself hating what represents that entire group.

With Mars in the 2nd seal, this person can display racism if what defines that other group was a part of his early upbringing, or is a part of what he has come to be familiar with. In that case, the racism won't display itself in name calling, but could manifest in physical violence. If another group is not related to his home-land or familiarity, then that group would be more valued to the person in that case. The saying "familiarity breeds contempt" holds weight here because a person influenced by this would feel less morally culpable in destroying what he feels belongs to him or is attached to him in some way.

With Mars in the 3rd seal, this person may only display racial animosity if it's in some way restricting his desire to disregard matters relating to his physical health/consumption or restricting the use/movement of his body.

With Mars in the 4th seal, this person will display racism toward anything not connected or attached to him in some way. This animosity manifests itself in an indirect manner. The verbal hostility targets anyone or any group not present at the moment. This person represents the typical idea of racism, but even they can accommodate another group of people if they don't perceive there to be any major cultural hostility, or if he has become familiar with them over a certain time. Even if there is hostility, he can overlook it throughout the time they are in his presence. This racism doesn't display in a direct face to face manner like it does within someone affected by Mars in the 1st seal.

With Mars in the 5th seal, this person is usually ok with groups directly or indirectly as long as they don't have any sort of authority or status over him. This person can hate someone of another race if he perceives that person to have some power or authority over him.

With Mars in the 6th seal, which is probably the least racist of all, a person can in fact display racism if another group or race of people try to display what defines their prevailing cultural identity as opposed to what defines the other groups' own. Cultural identity is target of the animosity related to Mars here. It's not home or upbringing because this group can live with others. They just simply cannot take on the responsibility of being identified to a certain category and then deal with negative factors that often comes along with this. As long as people don't fall into what defines their category in terms of personal identity outwardly, these people will try to accommodate anyone.

This example essentially sums up all of humanity in terms of racial outlook, which hopefully brings on a sense of humility and awareness. Of course, as stated before, there is the transition factor that can manifest in a slight combination of how one part of the brain displays certain characteristics with how another part displays certain characteristics, depending on where Mars is located. So, there are more elements than the six examples given, but for the sake of understanding, I stuck with the basics in describing Mars through each seal. We can now see how an identification system related to Mars 360 would assist in how everyone interprets the world, and thus how they react to it.

So far it's been covered that the contemporary view of Daniel's 490 year prophecy is better off being replaced by a view that it has already ended...... with the event triggering it being Peter's breaking of the covenant of circumcision and his baptizing of a Roman without the Roman having to be circumcised. This would fit the criteria of something to be an abomination from the perspective of Jewish Tradition, which in effect would have led to the desolation of Israel and its Temple when it was sacked in AD 70 by the Romans, an event prophesied by Jesus Christ. To this day, the Jewish people have yet to conduct worship inside the Temple even though their tradition continues. This garners the question of whether or not a third temple in Israel will be rebuilt. With the current state of affairs, such is highly unlikely but possible. The only outcome that Daniel's prophecy points to is Christianity and the formation of the Catholic Church. After that, we are left with Paul and John's prophecy of a coming lawless one related to 666, which is of its own merit. With this Revelation of the lawless one, 666, and the seven seals, it's likely that in the same way Peter's break from the Jewish Tradition would have been considered an abomination from that standpoint, the revelation of 666 would obviously be held to be an abomination from a Christian standpoint, even though 666 would solve a lot of problems. The development of 666 does however point to a second coming of Christ.

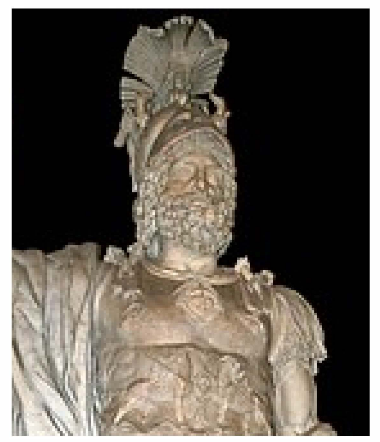

This perspective of Daniel's prophecy being over would also change aspects regarding contemporary views of The Dome of the Rock as something that's in the way of a fulfillment of Daniel's prophecy. The Dome of the Rock, which is a holy site for Islam, serves as a roadblock for the rebuilding of a 3rd Temple for Israel. With the perspective of Daniel's prophecy having ended after the prophesied 490 years, the Dome of the Rock would now serve as the fulfillment related to God's continued sealing and permanent closing of that prophecy. The Dome of the Rock would essentially serve as God's enforced decree that Daniel's prophecy is over and there is no Third Temple for Israel, at least not before the mark of the beast system. From that perspective, all that is left is Paul and John's works and those prophecies relate to the future of Christendom, not the formation of it as was prophesied in Daniel.

Many of the non-Catholic Christians who still reference Daniel's prophecy of the 4 beasts, with the 4th beast being Rome, and the little horn arising out of that being the Catholic Church have to contend with another viewpoint. A valid view of the little horn would be none other than Mars. In Daniel 2 and 7, it explains, symbolically, the 4 major world empires: Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome. In Daniel 2, the symbolism is derived from Nebuchadnezzar's dream of a large statue, and in Daniel 7, the symbolism is derived from Daniel's vision of 4 beasts. In Daniel 8, Daniel has a vision of a single horned goat destroying a 2-horned ram, which is said to represent Greece destroying the Medo-Persian Empire. In the vision, that same goat later loses its single horn at the height of its power, but has 4 horns grow in its place. A little horn then comes out one of the 4 horns and grows greater and stronger than all of them. This little horn, in its symbolism regarding the Greek empire in Daniel 8, is defined to be the same little horn arising from the 4th beast in Daniel 7. The reason this further conceptualizes Mars as the true meaning is because the God of War would be the main common link between the Roman and Greek empires. Mars, traditionally, is said to be a Roman equivalent to Ares, the Greek version of the God of War. So it makes perfect sense that the little horn's presence in Daniel 7 and Daniel 8 would infer a commonality between Rome and Greece respectively.

While noting that the consummation of Christianity, via Peter's conversion of Cornelius as bringing the gospel and the Jewish law to the gentiles without circumcision, is what led to the end of Daniel's 490 year prophecy, Daniel's prophecy regarding the abomination that causes desolation thus cannot be said to converge with Paul and John's prophecy related to the lawless one, 666, and the return of Christ. Peter broke the covenant before Paul's writings on the lawless one, so when Daniel speaks of someone breaking a covenant in the last week, which was 7 years after Jesus's death, Paul could not be referring to that same person after the fact when prophesying about a falling away and the lawless one. Paul actually refers to this lawless one as a mystery of lawlessness. However, Daniel's reference to the little horn can be said to align with the mystery of lawlessness and 666. Therefore, in that regard, Daniel would still serve as relevant to the writings of Paul to the Thessalonians and of John in Revelation. When it comes to Mars's influence, the problem arises in the fact that its influence cannot be comprehended by the subject as something that is unfavorable to a social construct or even sinful to God. That is where the deception is. Under Mars influence, a person feels he is completely right in every way. Chances are, one's strongest opposition to something, whatever that may be, is being influenced by wherever Mars shows up in their birthchart as it relates to the seals. Everyone is born with those qualities resulting in a lack of grey matter in the regions of the brain affected by Mars. When confronted by the world for it, the person is unable to comprehend how his actions, words, behaviors, and thoughts could be deemed with such hostility. Most of the human ideologies-- whether political, religious, social, or economic-- revolve around exerting a free expression of Mars, the man of sin. Because this expression is natural and unbeknownst by the person as a Sa'tan, a person is deceived into thinking it's right and that the world is wrong in criticizing him for it. Another aspect is how difficult it is to restrain Mars's influence in one's life. To act in a way that opposes Mars's free expression takes so much effort that people literally dread situations where they have to keep it under wraps, hence the loyalty to certain viewpoints or outlooks that keeps the person out of such situations. It happens in conservatism, it happens in liberalism, in communism, capitalism, and racism. The holder of each of these views doesn't realize he's being deceived into thinking his outlook is overall a favorable thing.

This also causes a person to disregard the need for the positive outcome, which is not being garnered upon display of Mars's influence, but would come about upon positive behaviors. For example, a person who is naturally restless because of Mars, will exalt himself over the need to maybe settle down or have a relationship. A lazy person will disregard the need to work and pursue financial stability. While these things may be worthwhile and even a god to others, the person being influenced by Mars can completely renounce it. Another example is a person with Mars influencing one's personality and need to get along with others in the environment. While one person may consider this to be the most important aspect of his day, the Mars affected person can completely defy the need for it and act in total antagonism to it. One more example would be someone who has Mars affecting his Parietal lobe. Since the Parietal lobe relates to one's orientation in response to his environment and therefore how others view him in terms of appearance, a person who values how others see him to the point of considering it a god, will honor that desire by behaving in ways that elicits a positive response. On the flip side, a person affected by Mars there, can completely disregard any need for such a response and act in any way he feels no matter how others would view his appearance.

As far as the mark of the beast is concerned, prophecy doesn't necessitate that it be a physical outward mark. Mars is already at work in every single human being's life at this very moment and has been so all the way back to antiquity. There is no escaping this. The only circumvention is in not allowing Mars's influence to take its full measure during the course of one's life. The force itself, however, will always be at work. A simple glance at your astrological birthchart can tell you exactly where by simply correlating the birthchart to the seals as explained earlier. When it comes to the Mars mark on the forehead or right hand, being able to prove your placement of Mars via birthchart would be indication enough for certain types of verification, such as Universal Basic Income. The mark in the 1st seal and the 4th seal, relating to the forehead and the right hand, doesn't spiritually implicate the people representing it anymore than it does those represented by Mars's influence in the other seals, such as the 2nd, 3rd, 5th, and 6th. The damnation is related to how much the Mars influence is given into, but, even then, I don’t know to what extent a person who is not aware of what's driving him can be deemed lost. Mortal sin would require a certain awareness and a certain will. Mars’s influence on the 1st and 4th seals, being singled out in the Book of Revelation, relates strictly to the economy as most of the financial success throughout history is found amongst people who have Mars in the 1st and 4th seals. Since Mars is at work in everyone’s life anyway, these particular archetypes would have the deficiencies needed to the make the most of what Universal Basic Income provides. This would be an example of trying to use Mars influence in a constructive way. The other positions of Mars would be highlighted and used for other constructive channels because the influence of Mars can be a virtue for certain things. What I mentioned before in terms of needing an outward physical mark has to do with the social aspect of 666(Mars 360). If a person can see how someone is influenced by Mars in an outward sense at first glance, then that person can gauge exactly how to approach his archetype. He can know ahead of time what kind of situations or words he needs to avoid with the other person, and vice versa, in order to experience a smoother social interaction. But there is obvious implication to this. Mars360 presents a dichotomy. Awareness of it can solve a lot of the problems in the world, however, awareness of it as 666 would extend a moral culpability to those who would wish for society to continue to accept, as fully permissible, what they themselves now know to be from 666. The reason receiving an outward mark would be tempting, to even a Christian, is because it would essentially allow a person to be himself, sort of as one is now, but without judgement and with total understanding. It would be like a bill of rights, but tailor-made to each individual’s Mars placement. Imagine if you have racist views, but are allowed to freely express this, without any judgement, if you simply take an outward mark. Imagine being restless because of Mars and then being allowed by society to act out that particular expression if you take a mark. Imagine being anti-social and being allowed to express those qualities without being judged or attacked if you simply decided to take a mark. The mark of the beast could simply be a red light to be yourself without anyone judging you. The problem of the soul is that you'd be acknowledging what you're doing is related to 666 and within that acknowledgement, under a full conscience, deciding that you have no desire to resist it......to resist sin. That would make sense for eternal damnation because unlike the current moment in which you're not even aware of the influence, accepting a mark in the case of Mars360 would be acknowledging that you are aware. Salvation from Jesus's death is contingent on "They know not what they do." Accepting the mark would be a verbal acknowledgment of awareness and a subsequent moral culpability in considering nothing wrong with it. It will take a deep amount of humility to avoid receiving an outward mark. I imagine only those aware of their sinful nature related to Mars would be able to avoid getting marked... when it does, in fact, come to that. All the mark of the beast is saying is "the way you are is ok, much in the same way your personal ideology today is saying you're ok, just take the mark so we can observe and react properly to you."

The lawless one was prophesied to be revealed by he who has understanding. This awareness was intended to happen as a precursor to the second coming of Christ. Mars360 represents the oppositionary influence related to the prophecies describing his nature. In Roman mythology, Mars was the God of War with most of these myths related to Mars being borrowed from the Greek God of War, Ares, who fought in the Trojan war and was wounded by Athena and Diomedes, but later healed by the physician of the gods, Paeeon. The understanding of 666 is the proper attitude to have. Understanding our fallen nature with all humility is not what implicates us, nor does our awareness of what may be causing sin. What would implicate the soul is our effort in getting society to count our sin as a good thing. The difference between how we do that now and how it would work then(in the case of the mark of the beast) has to do with the difference between not knowing and knowing.

Below is a timeline from Daniel to Mars360

Solomon's temple restored - 450BC

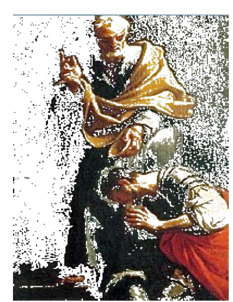

24 Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most Holy.

25 Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times.

Jesus's death - 33AD

26 And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined.

37 AD Peter Baptizing a Roman without Obligation to circumcision

27 And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate (NOTE: this does not make Peter the Antichrist, as Daniel's 70 weeks(490 years) is not considered an Antichrist prophecy here.

Peter Reports back to Jerusalem and tells the Jewish Elders that the Gentiles are to receive the Gospels regardless of circumcision. 40AD – consummation of Christianity leading to the eventual desolation of Israel and the end of Daniel's 490 year prophecy.

Jesus's Olivet Discourse comes into focus after Peter's abomination to the Jewish Tradition.

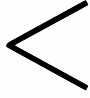

Jerusalem destroyed in AD 70

"You see all these, do you not? Truly, I say to you, there will not be left here one stone upon another that will not be thrown down." Matthew 24's Olivet Discourse fulfilled, Jerusalem destroyed in AD 70

Paul's and John's prophecy about the falling away, the lawless one and 666 now comes into focus

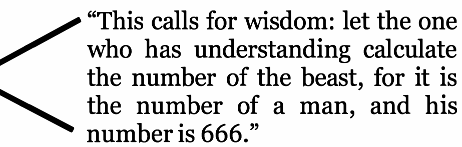

Time Gap AD 70 – present fulfilled 3But no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or look inside it. 4And I began to weep bitterly, because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or look inside it. -Revelation 5:3

"Don't let anyone deceive you in any way, for that day will not come until the rebellion occurs and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the man doomed to destruction." - 2 Thessalonians 2:3

2nd Vatican council from 1962 – 1965 and its aftermath to the present day is the "falling away" time period.

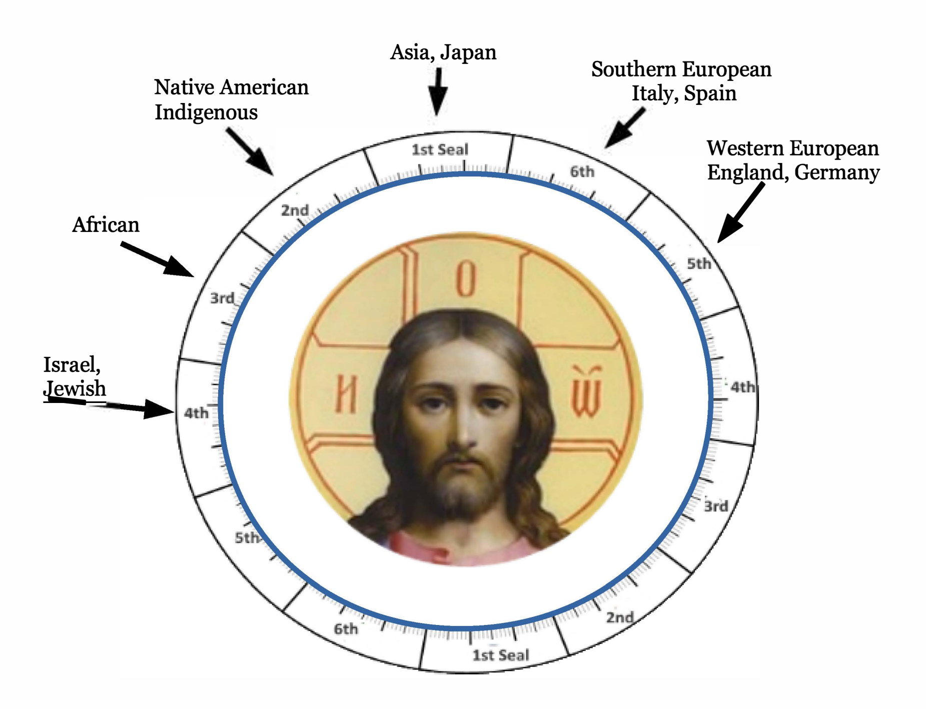

"This calls for wisdom: let the one who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man, and his number is 666."

Mars360 revealed to be the lawless one and the meaning of 666 in 2019

With Mars360 revealed, the correlation of the movements and positions of the planet Mars to human behavior will lead to a marking system that dissolves the importance of religious denomination and leaves everything riding on one's decision to either take a mark and agree to have society accommodate their natural lawlessness, or not take it and possibly be alienated from society all together. While the Mars phenomenon will make for a better, more understanding society because it accommodates our natural deficient qualities and removes the banner of sin from it, it will, nonetheless, put a person's relationship with God on the line because the person would be knowingly accepting their sin as coming from the lawless one, and knowingly allowing society to accommodate it. There would be no turning back to God from that point. The world would basically be left with 2 religions, those who are marked, and those who aren't. Those who are not marked will be considered to be against a utopian society and those who are will be considered to be against God. Such a battle would be the climax preceding the return of Christ.

There is great symbolism regarding 666 that correlates the seals, the brain and the geography of Earth together as one expression of God's power. The seals encompass the entire world, every single type of human being that exists. It was stated earlier how the frontal lobes are symbolic of God's temple and God's chosen people, the Jewish people. The rest of the brain has that same symbolic correlation to the rest of the world and the geographical landscape. The seals highlight 6 groups from which the rest of the world fits into, starting with the Jewish people and Israel at the frontal lobes(4th seal), and then the African at the 3rd seal and reptilian brain, the Native American indigenous and the Americas at the 2nd seal and temporal lobes, Asia and the Oriental at the 1st Seal and occipital lobes, the Southern European at the 6th seal and parietal lobes, and Western Europe at the 5th seal and motor cortex. Of course, there is always overlap with regard to how things transition from one seal to the next that would correlate to how one group values certain facets of life. On the next page is a diagram to understand more. Note: This doesn't relate to how Mars affects those areas. This represents how each group is chosen to actually value its prospective sector of life, opposite of what Mars does. See next page.

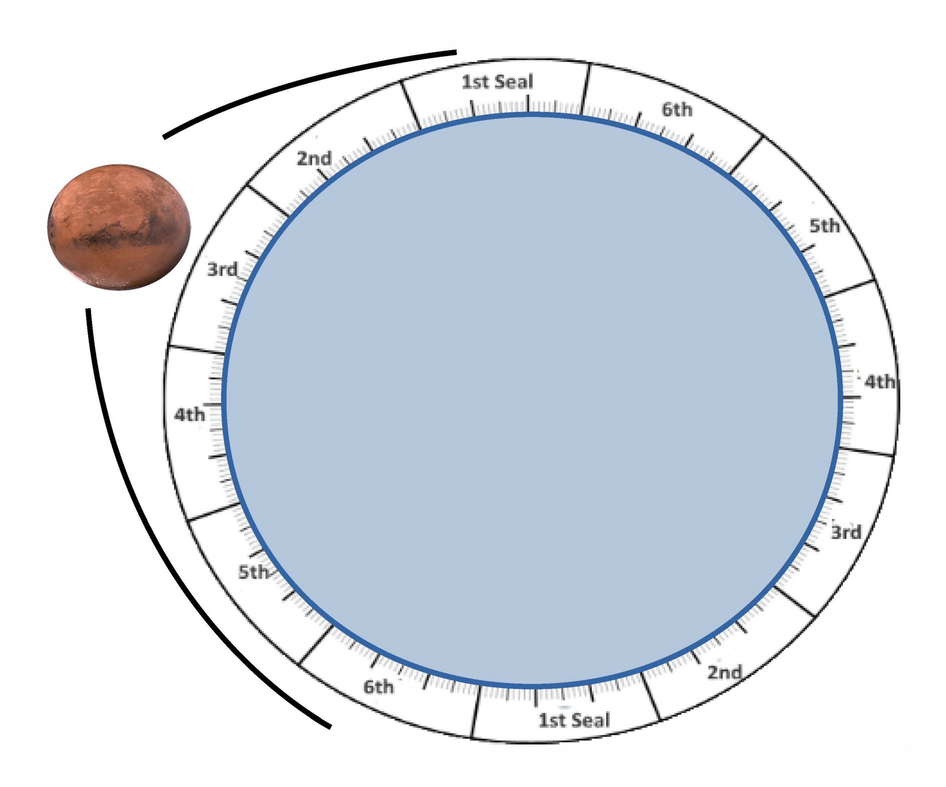

The description doesn't disregard the significance of those not included in the diagram. The diagram is just a reference that each group has its own dominion that God has designated to them. As a result, there would be a noted degree of excellence regarding the region that each group has dominion over. Unlike Mars, each of these groups hold its corresponding regions sacred. All the races fall somewhere within the context of the layout. Everyone is assigned a certain area to value over another. The Jewish people have the word and the law which corresponds to the functions of the frontal lobe, the Africans have the reptilian brain which correlates to our basic survival, the Native American has the temporal lobe which correlates to emotional well-being, the oriental has the occipital lobe which correlates to the civilized social dynamic amongst a civilization of people living together, the southern European has the parietal lobe which correlates to how others view us(fashion sense), and the western European has dominion over the motor cortex, our skill ethics and submission to authority. Everyone else falls somewhere in between but are nonetheless equally important in terms of how God designated each group of people to have its rightful dominion based on where they are placed. Just from observing the chart, we can tell where some of the other groups would be. The Arabs would be somewhere between the African and the Jewish. The Russians may be somewhere between the European and the Asian, but definitely within that first seal sector . The French may be somewhere between the Western European and Southern European.

In Revelation 17, John is met by one of the angels and is told about the judgement of a prostitute who sits on many waters and with whom all the kings of the earth committed fornications with. When given further revelation of this prostitute, John then sees the woman sitting on a scarlet beast that had blasphemous names. It also had seven heads and 10 horns. The woman, who was also wearing scarlet, had a cup filled with abominations and the impurity of her fornications. On her forehead was written, "Babylon the great, mother of prostitutes and of earth's abominations." John saw that she was drunk with the blood of the saints and martyrs of Jesus. Upon being in awe at what he saw, the angel then told John the mystery of the woman and the beast with seven heads and 10 horns. She says that the beast he saw "was, and is not, and is about to rise from the bottomless pit and go to destruction. And the dwellers on earth whose names have not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world will marvel to see the beast, because it was and is not and is to come." The angel then says the seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman is seated and those seven mountains are also seven kings. 5 have fallen, one is, and the other has not yet come. When he does he must only remain a little while. The beast itself is the 8th king, but belongs to the 7 and goes to destruction. The ten horns are ten kings that have not yet received power, but are to receive power with the beast for 1 hour to make war on the Lamb, but be conquered By the lamb. The angel then tells John that the waters that he first saw the prostitute sitting on are the Multitudes of people, languages, and nations. Then he says the ten horns will hate the prostitute and destroy because it was God's will, and the prostitute is the city that has dominion over all the kings of the earth.

It has already been established that the prostitute seated on the 7 mountains is Rome. The beast, which is the same as 666, and was, is not, and is, is a revolution of Mars around the Sun. The sin, the abominations, the murder of Christians by the Romans was motivated by the influence of Mars. When Mars travels, it always performs its opposition to what defines each seal and what defines the normal characteristics displayed from each part of the brain that corresponds with the seals. Since there are 6 seals, the kings are symbolic of how when Mars is in one position, it has already left the previous 5, but is going into the next position because it's a continuous revolution. This is what is meant by "5 kings have fallen(the positions that Mars was already in), one is(the position that Mars is currently in), and one is yet to come(the position that Mars is going to enter next)." Then there are ten kings who are said to not have their power yet. After Mars travels through 5 positions, those positions don't have their power until Mars goes through them again. So when Mars is in one position, there are 5 positions in which Mars has already been and 5 that Mars is going to travel through again, so that leaves 10 kings who don't have power because Mars is still in whatever position it's in and since they have one mind, the 5 positions that Mars has already been through are the same as the 5 that Mars will travel through again, hence 10 kings having the same mind.

Here is a map of the seven hills in Rome and look what lies near those 7 hills. We see the Vatican, but more ominously we see a place called the Field of Mars. It wasn't until Augustus came to power as the Emperor of Rome in 27BC that the Field of Mars would eventually be developed into a major city attraction. During the time of John of Patmos and the writings of the Book of Revelation under Domitian, the field of Mars had already become the most populace area of Rome. Before Augustus, it was just a training ground for the Roman military. Under Augustus, it was developed into a major city attraction with theatres, baths, and aqueducts and eventually became the most crowded center of daily activity in Rome. This would further provide evidence that the beast is Mars. The passage in Revelation 17 can be consummately interpreted as Rome being the prostitute, and the field of Mars being the beast, upon which the prostitute sits, with its seven heads as the seven hills/ mountains that are near it. And upon further study of the passage, the symbolism related to the 7 heads and 10 horns as 7 kings and 10 kings, respectively, can still be assigned to how Mars travels through each seal position resulting in its culminating effects without disrupting the geographical interpretation relating to the implication of Rome in Revelation 17.

Mars, during this time of John of Patmos, was the most popular deity in the Roman Empire and the field of Mars was consecrated to Mars. The citizens of Rome even titled themselves to be sons of Mars. Mars, who is considered to be the father of the founders of Rome, Romulus and Remus, and a Roman incarnation of the Greek God Ares, derives its mythology from the story of the Trojan War, where Ares was wounded but was later healed. This aligns to references in Revelation that mentions the beast recovering from a mortal wound with everyone then worshipping it. Interestingly, this worship was actually going on in the Roman Empire; it was a real thing. The question now is why aren't there any passages in the new testament that simply states "Mars" as a god worshipped by the Romans. The Romans named all the planets we can see with the naked eye. So it's not just Mars, the god of War, as it relates to Roman Mythology, that's being worshipped by the Romans, it's also Mars the planet that the Romans are worshipping. So, John's message relating to a revolution of a planet is not something coming out of left field. This was a real phenomenon during the Roman Empire.

At this point, in light of seeing how the worship of Mars was a real aspect of the Roman Empire, it's safe to say that we are now in the midst of a revival of Mars, the Roman God of War. Upon revealing that 666 is Mars360 and the lawless one, prophecy is now a reality. The revelation is what unlocked it. In the coming years, watch as the world looks to see how the movements of the planet Mars correlates to human behavior on Earth. Revelation 13:3, "The whole earth marveled as they followed the beast." People will be amazed and prophecy will unfold right before everyone's eyes. The popularity that Mars experienced during the time of the Roman Empire is prepared to happen again. Michel Gauquelin's research on the Mars effect was the first time that astrology was ever given any considerable attention by the scientific community. Now there is more information regarding it. All of this goes to show that there is an aura of intrigue surrounding Mars. After reading this book, which expounds on Mars's influence on humanity through the seven seals as correlated with the brain, many will began a serious inquiry into this beast, Mars360. They will research Gauquelin's findings, my findings, and do their own observations. Steadily, the Mars phenomenon will grow stronger and stronger and then we will know that the mark of the beast would be coming soon.

people would sort of forgive it because they know where it's coming from, and they know the person cannot be fully blamed for being born at a certain time. And in response to the understanding, the person is grateful that society is not punishing him for being himself. Problems and harsh ideologies arise when people feel like society is not forgiving them for what is natural to them, hence why there is a greater degree of the display of Mars tendencies when its lighter manifestations are being oppressed by society.

The idea behind the system would be to allow a certain degree of Mars expression, so that a person's resentment of his natural tendencies being demonized by society doesn't lead him to displaying them to a greater degree that would put society in jeopardy. Morality, now, would not be defined by the act, but by how much a person is giving into their Mars placement. A person who is displaying mental deficiencies would be judged the same as someone who is displaying choice of word deficiencies. They would both be relegated to the same source, Mars, with the only difference being in how far past society's limit the person has given into the Mars energy. Therefore, the only way the liberal can have a gripe with the conservative, and vice versa, would be based on how much of the Mars energy is being given into. Since, now in the case of Mars 360, both sides would know that their outlook is being influenced by Mars. The same with the communist and the capitalist. Mars creates a fear in the person to engage in qualities that it's naturally antagonistic toward. All of society would now have this awareness. In a Christian sense, this is essentially a form of welfare for one's own sin, instead of an adherence to God's request that we make a consistent attempt to resist it.

The information regarding Mars360 allows us to identify the Lamb in Revelation 5 and see how the revelation of the lawless one, 666, and the seven seals is a fulfillment of that passage. The lamb turned out to be the positive qualities that Mars opposes in his influence on humanity. Revelation 5:

"1Then I saw a scroll in the right hand of the One seated on the throne. It had writing on both sides and was sealed with seven seals. 2And I saw a mighty angel proclaiming in a loud voice, "Who is worthy to break the seals and open the scroll?" 3But no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or look inside it. 4And I began to weep bitterly, because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or look inside it. 5Then one of the elders said to me, "Do not weep! Behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David, has triumphed to open the scroll and its seven seals." 6Then I saw a Lamb who appeared to have been slain, standing in the center of the throne, encircled by the four living creatures and the elders. The Lamb had seven horns and seven eyes, which represent the seven Spirits of God sent out into all the earth. 7And He came and took the scroll from the right hand of the One seated on the throne. 8When He had taken the scroll, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb. Each one had a harp, and they were holding golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints. 9And they sang a new song:

'Worthy are You to take the scroll and open its seals, because You were slain,
and by Your blood You purchased for God
those from every tribe and tongue and people and nation.
10You have made them into a kingdom, priests to serve our God,
and they will reign upon the earth.'"

Because the Lamb has the seven spirits of God, the Lamb is symbolic of the intended qualities of each seal position. “Appeared to have been slain” would relate to how the seals were opposed when Mars traveled through each one during its revolution around the Sun. With Mars’s oppositionary effect on the seals, the astrology wheel that lays out the seals becomes most symbolic of a lamb with 7 spirits who looks to be slain. Later, the passage says that the lamb takes the seals from the right hand of the One seated on the Throne. Many have concluded Jesus was the lamb. However, Jesus can be said to be the one seated at the right hand of the One who sits on the Throne. This is in Mark 16: 19: “After the Lord Jesus had spoken to them, He was taken up into heaven and sat down at the right hand of God.” Because the right hand of God is what the elder may be referencing when he tells John that the Lion of the Tribe of Judah has opened the seals, both the right hand of God and the Lion from the tribe of Judah can easily be interpreted to mean the same thing as opposed to the Lamb and the Lion meaning the same thing. After John is told by the elder that the Lion of the Tribe of Judah has opened the seals, John then sees a lamb going to the right hand of the One on the Throne. He is thus observing what the elder has seen and interpreted as Jesus opening the seals. This could easily mean that Jesus’s opening of the seals is indicative of the seals being given by Jesus to the lamb. With Jesus being both the right hand of God(Jesus) and the Lion, and with the Lamb being the seal positions, the passage could also be indicating that Jesus, after a long time of Christian interpretation, finally allows the seals to be understood through the Lamb(seal position layout). Since the “root of David” is also mentioned in Revelation 5, the passage, in an overall sense, can infer a restoration of the Davidic Line upon the opening of the seven seals.
Because the planet Mars brings opposition to every position he travels through, the lamb as an astrological layout of the seals is credible as being symbolic of someone who has been attacked and killed. Traditionally Mars is the God of War, so this quality makes sense when applying the outcome of it to something looking as though it was slain.

It was established that the first seal represents the occipital lobe and right hand respectively, with the 4th seal representing the frontal lobes and forehead respectively. That order is symbolic of Jesus sitting at the right hand of God. We can see in the diagram above a visual representation of how the slain lamb, which would represent the 7 seal layout(6 seals with the 7th being the continuation of it) having been opposed by Mars, would take the scroll from the right hand of God. However, so that no one gets confused, the "seven seals" as a subject of Revelation 6 symbolizes Mars's actions through each seal, but each seal individually are the positive intended characteristics that God as assigned to humanity. What the Lamb is showing John in revelation 6 is what Mars's effect on humanity does as it opposes what each seal is intended for. The Lamb, itself, represents the positive qualities that are being opposed by Mars. In the diagram on the previous page, we can see how the red "X" marks the effect that Mars had on the position while it was there, and how it thus destroyed the ordained characteristics that God intends for humans to display. This can be likened to someone having been slain and therefore symbolize the lamb being slain. There is also mention of 24 elders rejoicing before the Lamb. It was established earlier that the 24th degree marks the transitional period from one seal to the next. Basically, it is the area that starts to manifest qualities of the next seal while retaining some from the previous. This transitional period ends at the 0 degree mark of the next sign which represents the next seal. That means the first 24 degrees of each sign representing a seal location is the full definition of its intended qualities. That is what the 24 elders represent, the full definition of each seal. The 4 living creatures represent the 4 fixed signs of the zodiac: the ox represents Taurus; the lion represents Leo; Scorpio, represents the eagle and the winged man is represented by Aquarius. It also, and moreover, represents astrology's submission to the layout of the seals as they also bow before the lamb, which is the seal layout in the diagram.

There has been confusion in Revelation regarding how Jesus represents the rider on the White horse. While the 1st seal does represent Jesus, the 1st seal as it's being explained in Revelation 6 does not. As stated before, what's being shown in Revelation 6: 1-2 is how Mars opposes the seals:

"1 And I saw when the Lamb opened one of the seals, and I heard, as it were the noise of thunder, one of the four beasts saying, Come and see.

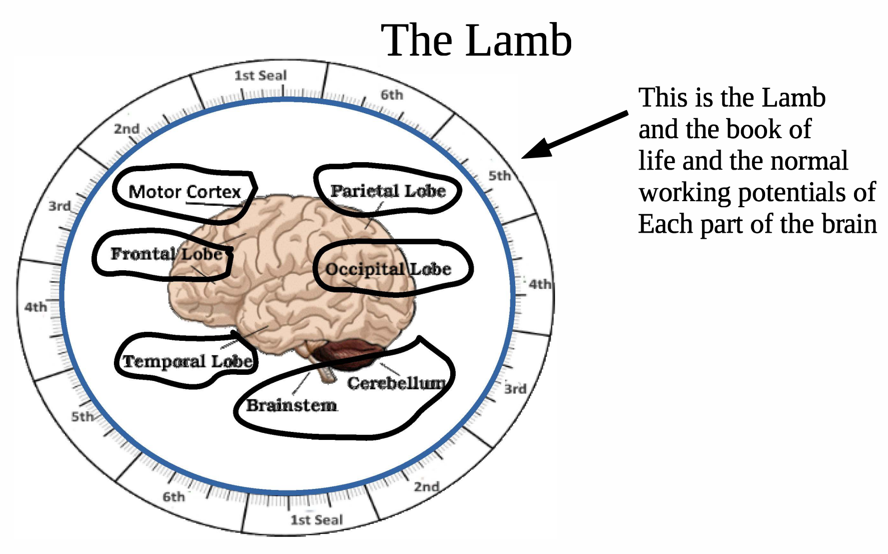

2 And I saw, and behold a white horse: and he that sat on him had a bow; and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth conquering, and to conquer."

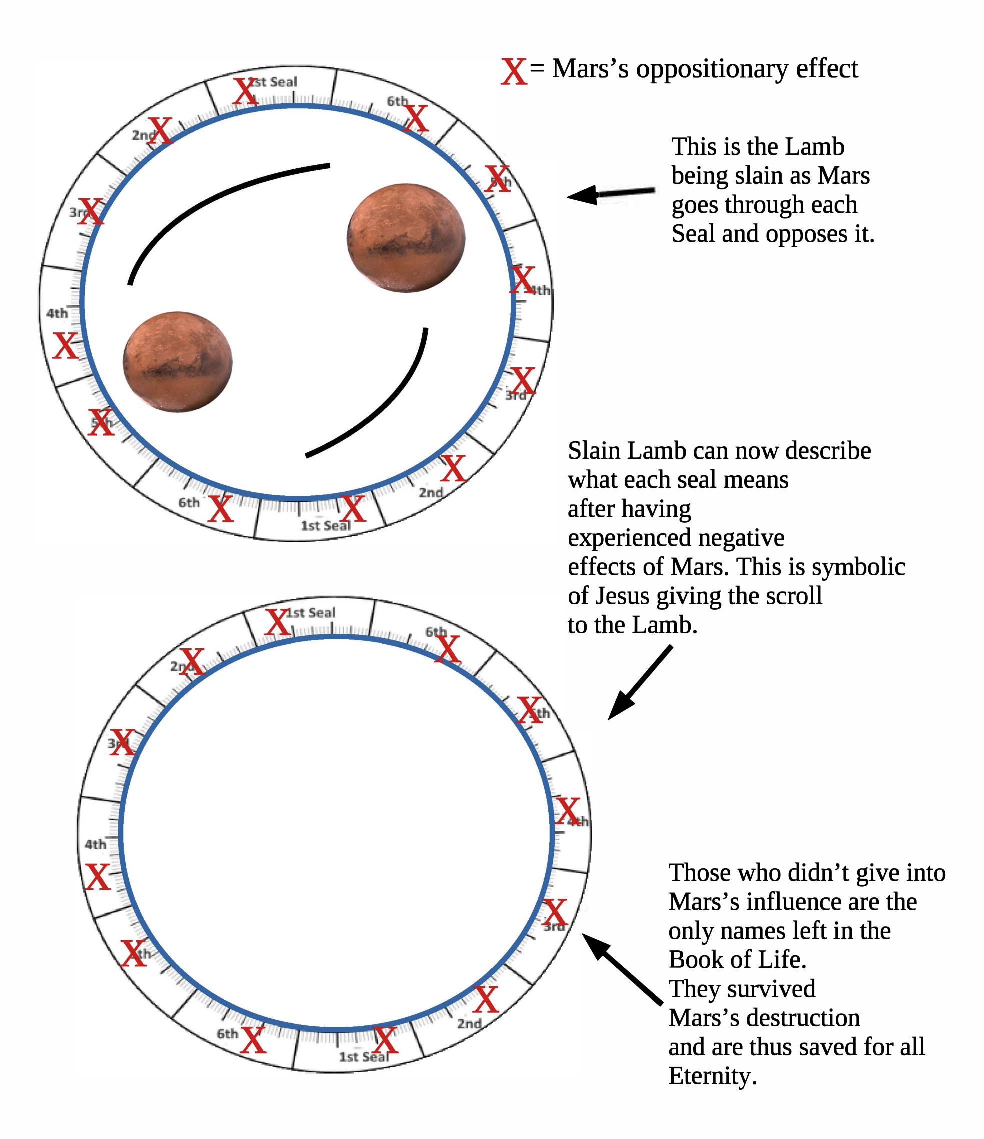

The rider on the White Horse is Mars360. Jesus represents what Mars is opposing there. Conquering and taking is in opposition to love towards one's neighbor. So, in essence, the first seal would be goodwill towards neighbor. While Jesus represents the first seal, he does not represent the rider on the White Horse that is opposing it.

Now, we can see how the Lamb represents God's intention for humanity through the seals and how Mars's orbit through those seals essentially kills those intentions. There would have been no way understand and unlock the seals except by observing Mars's effect in going through them. The celebration of the Lamb is a celebration of God's continued timeline and purpose for humanity.

Like any other social construct such as democracy, fascism, capitalism, communism, liberalism, and conservatism, Mars360 would have an expansive quality. What stands out about Mars360 is that it encompasses the root of every ideology but is not any of those ideologies. Mars360 would more or less be an observation ideology. Not to be confused with trading freedom for security, Mars360 is essentially asking that one allows observation in exchange for not being judged as a sinner....to a certain extent. The idea is to let others see how Mars drives a person to certain qualities, and in exchange for allowing an open view of it via a mark or indication, the person would be allowed to display a certain measure of those qualities by having certain freedoms.The idea behind this is that the person will be content if he's not being demonized by society for being himself, and in response to that acceptance, become more sociable in a civilized community. He would be more accepting of the world through understanding, and the rest of the world more accepting of him. Because God commands that his followers resist the temptation to sin, accepting the mark is thus considered the greatest abomination and rejection of his Love because, upon receiving the privileges by having an outward indication of Mars360, the person would then be admitting that there is no sin ---- that there is no accountability because Mars is the one causing the behavior. The seven spirits of God encompasses all human qualities, and with the breaking of the seven seals , the entire world, every personality, is now under the jurisdiction of God. The "Word" itself is no longer the defining aspect of God, such that an anti-social person cannot judge a debauch person, and debauch person cannot judge an angry person, and the angry person cannot judge a disobedient person. All failures relating to what each spirit upholds is judged the same. It's all related to the Lamb's book of life where everything and everyone is under the jurisdiction of God's judgement. Mars360 is in opposition to all seven spirits of God which translates to every area of the human brain and its normal working potentials. This is why the Lamb in Revelation 5 appeared to be slain.

Mars is also opposed to the concept of sin ---- a person being fully accountable for displaying traits in opposition to those normal working potentials of different parts of the brain. The diagram above gives us a clear picture of the two beasts mentioned in Revelation 13. The first beast came out of the Sea and the 2nd Beast came out of the Earth. The diagram on this page can be applied to the Revelation 13 description of each beast on the next page.

Revelation 13 -

1st beast

The Beast out of the Sea describes the attributes being given to Mars360.

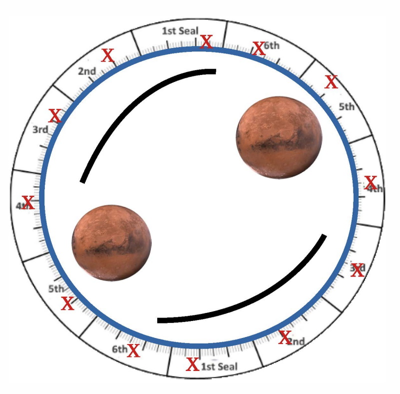

The dragon[a] stood on the shore of the sea. And I saw a beast coming out of the sea. It had ten horns and seven heads, with ten crowns on its horns, and on each head a blasphemous name. 2 The beast I saw resembled a leopard, but had feet like those of a bear and a mouth like that of a lion. The dragon gave the beast his power and his throne and great authority. 3 One of the heads of the beast seemed to have had a fatal wound, but the fatal wound had been healed. The whole world was filled with wonder and followed the beast. 4 People worshiped the dragon because he had given authority to the beast, and they also worshiped the beast and asked, "Who is like the beast? Who can wage war against it?"5 The beast was given a mouth to utter proud words and blasphemies and to exercise its authority for forty-two months. 6 It opened its mouth to blaspheme God, and to slander his name and his dwelling place and those who live in heaven. 7 It was given power to wage war against God's holy people and to conquer them. And it was given authority over every tribe, people, language and nation. 8 All inhabitants of the earth will worship the beast—all whose names have not been written in the Lamb's book of life, the Lamb who was slain from the creation of the world. [b]

2nd Beast

11 Then I saw a second beast, coming out of the earth. It had two horns like a lamb, but it spoke like a dragon. 12 It exercised all the authority of the first beast on its behalf, and made the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, whose fatal wound had been healed. 13 And it performed great signs, even causing fire to come down from heaven to the earth in full view of the people. 14 Because of the signs it was given power to perform on behalf of the first beast, it deceived the inhabitants of the earth. It ordered them to set up an image in honor of the beast who was wounded by the sword and yet lived. 15
The second beast was given power to give breath to the image of the first beast, so that the image could speak and cause all who refused to worship the image to be killed. 16 It also forced all people, great and small, rich and poor, free and slave, to receive a mark on their right hands or on their foreheads, 17 so that they could not buy or sell unless they had the mark, which is the name of the beast or the number of its name. 18
This calls for wisdom. Let the person who has insight calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man.
[e] That number is 666.

The Beast out of the Earth describes Mars having influence over humanity through the Lamb, which is the seven seal layout and Mars's revolution through the seal position and its effect on the human brain

This beast of the Earth is essentially a description of the Lamb being slain as Mars takes its course through the seals and exercises its influence over all of humanity. The description of the second beast seems to be a reference to both humanity's unawareness of Mars's influence and also their later awareness of it upon the unlocking of the identity of the beast via calculating 666. It describes the subsequent knowledge that the people had no idea that they were advocating Mars's influence in their ideologies. Now with the knowledge of that having been the case, Mars360 essentially calls for a continued advocacy, but this time with humanity's full awareness of it via a mark. This is where the moral culpability takes effect. Jesus was able to forgive sins because the people knew not what they did; in the case of accepting the mark of the Mars360, the people will be fully aware in their decision. The revelation of the lawless one, itself, can be aligned with breathing life into the beast and allowing everyone to be able to see it, hence setting up an image.

The next step on the timeline related to the mark of the beast is the reason why the contents of this book is directed to the country of France. Since the first major scientific inquiry into Mars was based on research done in France by Michel Gauquelin, another inquiry is likely to start there. He has the largest body of work related to Mars's effect in the key sectors. Using that in tandem with the findings laid out in this book -- which correlates the lawless one, 666, the seven seals, grey matter in the brain, and dark matter to Mars360-- the Scientific and Astrological community in France will have more to reference. Another reason for the intrigue will be because of the convergence between biblical prophecy, catholic prophecy, this book, and Gauquelin's findings. More information and press releases regarding Mars's effect on humans should serve as an indication to the faithful that God's timeline is taking its course. The understanding of Mars360 should be regarded as a necessary part of the eschatology that prophesies the Catholic Church to be the restrainer that's been taken out of the way so that this Mars360 phenomenon can be further revealed. As long as there is study, believers should have faith that everything is going according to God's plan. I think we are sometime away from having to decide between taking an outward indication of Mars and keeping our souls. So at the moment, one should not feel compelled to disrupt the study of Mars360. The Bible has its reasons for assigning wisdom to calculate the number of the beast. God wants us to understand the nature of the beast. The calculation of 666 involves a comprehensive study of Mars360 and "Let he who has understanding" serves as permission from God to do so. This permission also applies to the astrological and scientific community's desire to inquire about Mars360. However, once a social engineering mandate is established by whomever, then that would be the time that one should be prepared to make a choice.

When thinking about the development of God's plan, it's important to realize that everyone was judged based on what was the central theme of God's timeline. God's timeline is like a lineage that can be traced all the way back to Adam, and during each phase of the timeline, humanity was held to a developing standard that is currently culminated in Jesus Christ as the central element with the Catholic Church as the focal point. Over time, as the timeline progressed, we can see how the previous modality had to latch onto the new one in order to remain on that timeline. Nonetheless, many adherents of the previous modality decided to stay behind, which is why some prophecies often point to a developing timeline with harsh terminology. Many often ask if those who didn't believe in Jesus Christ before His time were saved. Those who adhered to the central theme of God's timeline as it was from

Adam to now were likely saved. With the revelation of the lawless one in effect, the central theme would now come down to making a decision between observing one's own sin as sin or as just a product of the universe via Mars360. When our current relationship with God is based on turning away from sin and also allowing Jesus's blood to redeem us, the acknowledgment that sin doesn't exist would make null and void both of those aspects.

The schism that Mars360 causes upon humanity would likely lead to the world eventually being divided into 2 major qualities of people; those who take the mark and those who don't. This would set the stage for a possible final conflict between those with the mark who DON'T want to acknowledge sin and those without the mark who DO want to acknowledge sin. In Revelation 19 : 11, we are given a foreshadowing of this conflict between those who would rather live with their sin as being forgiven under the blood of Christ and those who would rather remove the idea of sin altogether via Mars360. Revelation 19 11-21

> "11 I saw heaven standing open and there before me was a white horse, whose rider is called Faithful and True. With justice he judges and wages war. 12 His eyes are like blazing fire, and on his head are many crowns. He has a name written on him that no one knows but he himself. 13 He is dressed in a robe dipped in blood, and his name is the Word of God. 14 The armies of heaven were following him, riding on white horses and dressed in fine linen, white and clean. 15 Coming out of his mouth is a sharp sword with which to strike down the nations. "He will rule them with an iron scepter."[a] He treads the winepress of the fury of the wrath of God Almighty. 16 On his robe and on his thigh he has this name written:

king of kings and lord of lords.

17 And I saw an angel standing in the sun, who cried in a loud voice to all the birds flying in midair, “Come, gather together for the great supper of God, 18 so that you may eat the flesh of kings, generals, and the mighty, of horses and their riders, and the flesh of all people, free and slave, great and small.”

19 Then I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies gathered together to wage war against the rider on the horse and his army. 20 But the beast was captured, and with it the false prophet who had performed the signs on its behalf. With these signs he had deluded those who had received the mark of the beast and worshiped its image. The two of them were thrown alive into the fiery lake of burning sulfur. 21 The rest were killed with the sword coming out of the mouth of the rider on the horse, and all the birds gorged themselves on their flesh.”

In this passage, it's interpreted that this rider on the white horse is Jesus. This is not the case. The Rider on the white horse represents the same fallen human beings as the rider on the white horse described in the first seal of Revelation 6, which are the conqueror types like the General Pattons, Rommels, and Napoleons of the world. The difference regarding Revelation 19 in distinguishing this rider on the white horse from amongst all of those same types mentioned in Revelation 6 is that these mentioned in Revelation 19 represent those who are unmarked and depending on the blood of Christ as opposed to those same types on Earth who have taken the mark of the beast and disassociated themselves from the idea that their qualities are sinful. In the passage, this Rider is said to have a name only known to himself. This would signify that he does not possess a mark to identify himself outwardly. It also says he has a rope dipped in blood. This would signify his allegiance to the blood of Christ for the forgiveness of sins. This rider is thus allowing God to use his qualities for a good purpose by covering himself and his sin with the blood of Christ. Since it was established earlier that Mars in the first seal relates to a lack of intent to proper face to face communication, this rider's communication is rightfully likened to a sword. Since Revelation 19:11- 21 represents God's army and their allegiance to Jesus Christ but doesn't represent Jesus Himself, we are left with the question of Jesus's physical manifestation on Earth a second time. That question is answered in Mark 13: 27

> However, after the tribulation of those days,
> The sun will be darkened,
>
> and the moon will not give its light;
>
> the stars will fall from the sky,
>
> and the powers of the heavens will be shaken.'
>
> At that time they will see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with great power and glory.
> And He will send out the angels to gather His elect from the four winds, from the ends of the earth to the ends of heaven.

Jesus is describing what is happening in the sky and later says that the people, in observation of that event, will see the Son Of Man coming in the clouds. What Christ is doing is aligning Himself and his Return with what is happening in the sky at that moment. In essence, the events in the sky are relegated to how He will manifest. In the passage, He mentions the Sun being darkened and the moon not giving its light. These two events transpire during an Eclipse. Christ is said to have died during an eclipse. Luke 23:44

> "It was now about noon, and darkness > came over the whole land until three, > because the sun's light failed,"

After research from NASA in tracking the dates of eclipses back to the time period of when Jesus would have died, they found no Solar eclipses could have taken place near Jerusalem. However, researchers found that it would have been a Lunar eclipse(blood moon) that would have taken place the day of Jesus's death on April 3, AD 33 in Jerusalem. This fact, along with the passages describing the sun being darkened, allows for us to hold "Eclipses" as the way that Jesus intends for us to reference him at His second coming. In Christian numerology, it is traditionally held that Jesus's number is 888. With referencing Jesus as "Eclipses", we have a quantification of 888 using the same parameters in calculating 666. This would officially Scripturalize the number 888 to Jesus as we reference Jesus as "Eclipses."

Using the same English Sumerian Gematria used in the calculating of 666, where we assign numbers to each alphabet using increments of 6(A=6, B=12, C=18, etc.), the word "Eclipses" thus adds up to 528. If we add 360 to that, just as we did in the case of Mars, we have 888, and thus a scriptural element to Jesus's number as 888. In referencing Jesus's physical return to Earth as Eclipses 360, which is the revolution of the Moon around the Earth, and the Earth around the Sun, along with their relationship to the Lunar nodes, we now have the basis for His coming Earthly Kingdom. Using the parameters that were applied to the calculation of the lawless one and 666 and applying them to calculating Jesus, we can now make sense of why it was prophesied by Paul that the revelation of the lawless one had to come before Jesus Christ could fully return. Jesus's return is not official until everyone is able to view eclipses as His physical return on Earth and a dwelling place for Him. The event that set in motion Jesus's return as an acknowledgment from humanity was the blood moon on September 28, 2015. The significance of that day was not based on any news-related events going on in the world. The significance of that day was that it marked the beginning of human reference to eclipses as indication of Jesus's return, and it also marked another series of lunar eclipses taking place within a 2 year timeframe, known as tetrads. Sept. 28, 2015 marked the end of the 8th tetrad in which the Blood moons occur on Jewish Feast days. The last 2 were in 1967-68, when the Jewish people triumphed in the six day war, and in 1948-49 when Israel was declared a nation. Christian Jewish Pastor Mark Biltz, a former Roman Catholic, was the first person to discover this and made the first official human reference to this phenomenon as the sign from God regarding the return of Jesus and pointed to that day as the day to watch. His reference to it was the actual event tied to the Blood Moon of Sept. 28, 2015 because it started the clock that will eventually end in humans setting the eclipses as a dwelling place for Jesus to be a physical mediator between God and man, and thus fulfilling Jesus's prophecy for His own return. Just as the Jewish people saw God in the Ark of the Covenant, humanity will see Jesus in the Sun, the Moon, and the lunar nodes at the Feast of Tabernacles. That would mark the beginning of His earthly kingdom. But there is still time before that happens as many are not keen on the idea that Jesus's return is related to signs in the sky. Pastor Mark Biltz, who sees the eclipses as a very important sign, is the name to watch regarding the return of Christ in relation to eclipses and also the Jewish people's acceptance of Christ. He has books on the subject and how it relates to the Jewish people. He was also able to discern certain aspects of the 666 system before the revelation of the Lawless one. He coined the term "legalized lawlessness" in his book "Decoding the Antichrist and the End times" regarding the 666 system, which does apply. However, the lawlessness allowed by the Mars360(which is 666) system has a lot to do with the calming psychological aspect related to being allowed to be oneself and at the same time be understood by all. However, it's not a total legalization of Mars's complete influence as that would be destructive, but there some legal privileges related to it. It's an allowance enough to keep a person from feeling antagonistic toward a society not understanding them and thus judging them. The Mars360 system would remove the lack of understanding and judging from society, and therefore keep everyone happy and feeling accepted for being themselves. In a sense, the Lion would completely understand the Lamb. The drawback is that a person would be admitting that God's laws cannot fully be observed and that a person cannot be held accountable because of Mars's power. That would essentially hand power over to Mars. The mark of the beast would remove a sense of contrition regarding one's own sin and the idea that one needs forgiveness or Jesus's death on the cross. Resisting the Mars360 system would be going against a peaceful harmonious society and the grain of one's own characteristics. Not only that, but also going up against Mars360's scientific backing related to its effect on reducing grey matter in the brain.

Mark Biltz's findings related to the blood moon would fulfill Marie Julie Jahenny's prophecy regarding the Jewish people seeing a Radiant Star with their own eyes. Earlier, I mentioned that there was some confusion regarding the translation of her prophecies from French to English. I originally tied Marie Julie Jahenny's prophecy as translated for "Radiant Planet" to Mars, however after seeing what Mark Biltz is doing with eclipses, Marie Julie Jahenny's prophecy using the translation that results in "Radiant Star" instead of "Radiant Planet" would tie in perfectly to the Jewish people accepting Jesus through Eclipses since the Sun is a star, and the moon is a celestial body. Here is her prophecy translated using Radiant Star:

"In My eternal wisdom, I intend to reserve the life of an immense number of Jews, because I want to confound them on the day of My rejoicing. The blasphemous eyes of all those souls will be opened because I want them to see My power. I reserve for them that they see with their own eyes the RADIANT STAR that I will lead out of exile in a frightful storm of fire and under the sign of My anger....."

This would align perfectly to the work Mark Biltz is doing and his findings of eclipses occurring exactly on Jewish feast days. If Marie Julie Jahenny's prophecy ties into a great Monarch, then that monarch would be Jesus Christ. With the mark of the beast underway, and the start of humans beginning to set eclipses as a dwelling place for Jesus, we now have a better grasp of the end times, Catholicism, France, and how the rest of the Jewish people will come to an acceptance of Christ. I say the rest because it's important to remember that above all, the Bible is written by the Jewish people and any knowledge extracted from it should be accredited to their role as God's chosen people. The extraction of information from the Bible implants them, foundationally, as a light to the world. John of Patmos, the writer of

The book of Revelation, obviously knew full well of Mars, but for the sake of avoiding the immediate consequence of provoking the Romans by talking bad about their Roman god Mars, he decided to speak in a cryptic manner so that he would not be killed. Tradition holds that he is the only apostle of Jesus to die peacefully from old age.

Once it's officially confirmed that there is a link between human behavior and Mars, a study which was initiated by French statistician, Michel Gauquelin and further expounded in this writing by linking it with grey matter in the brain, 666, and the seven seals, the next phase of the timeline will be invoked. Christians will then have to make a choice. However, even during that conflicting time, there will be elevation for those who believed in Jesus Christ because it would be the prophecies from the Holy Bible manifesting in real time, not the ones from other faith systems.

Eclipses - dwelling place for Jesus

Mars - dwelling place for Satan

Chapter 23
666(Mars 360) curriculum

Repetition is often necessary to drive home a point. The official definition of Mars360 is that the entire human race is made up of 6 types of values regardless of race, religion, creed, economic status, gender, etc. Those 6 values relate to the hierarchy of needs laid out by Abraham Maslow which are Physiological, Safety, Love, Belonging, Esteem, and Self Actualization. Within each of these needs are related behaviors that correlate to how each of these needs are valued. Meaning, that the value of one need would display in variety of positive behaviors that relate to the value of that specific need. The location of the Planet

Mars in a birth chart is what pulls a person away from the energy required to adhere fully to one of those specific needs. Humans have been determined to seek accommodation for this lack of energy to adhere to a certain need by espousing different political, economic, and religious ideologies that would justify it. The birthchart is defined within the realm of the 7 seals and not as it is in traditional astrology. The seventh seal is assigned to represent the circular aspect of reading a birth chart, while the first 6 are correlated to a specific need of Maslow, and are laid out in a specific order. This order goes as follows:

The first seal at the top, which corelates to Maslow's belonging need, and face to face communication along with all other related behaviors.

The second seal going counter clock wise from the first, which correlates to Maslow's love needs, and mental thoughts, along with all other related behaviors.

The third seal going counter clockwise from the second, correlates to Maslow's Physiological needs, and physical health with all other related behaviors

The fourth seal going counter clockwise from the third and at the Horizon of a birth chart, correlates to Maslow's Self Actualization need, and indirect speech and the unseen(God within us) along with all other related behaviors.

The fifth seal going counter clockwise from the fourth, represents Maslow's safety needs(financial, housing, work), and authority figures (God outside of us) along with all other related behaviors.

The sixth seal going counter clockwise from the fifth, represents Maslow's Esteem needs, and our appearances as it relates to our individual face, facial expressions, visibility, hair, skin, nails, and DNA along with all other related behaviors.

From that point everything repeats on the other side of the birthchart.

The seals in Revelation is an explanation of what Mars does when opposing each of these needs to its climax. The Mars 360 system is an attempt to control this energy by providing accommodation for the lack of energy to adhere to a specific need, which naturally occurs when Mars is found in a certain place in a birth chart. This is done to curb one's desire to over-propagate ideologies in order to accommodate this Mars expression and it's also done to curb ones desire to do it at the expense of other Mars expressions. The ideal result is for one Mars type to be content enough in his Mars expression to allow for other Mars types to exist in society. Going back to the topic of Socialism, one can say in this sense that Mars 360 becomes a socialistic model without being a socialistic model. Because it's calculated at birth, Mars provides some insight into the future behavior of a person, and allows society to accommodate before the person has a chance to fully give into the energy. The social engineering aspect of it looks at all the behaviors correlated to a specific need and the negative qualities displayed which come from Mars's influence, and tries to provide a standard of interaction that is required for proper accommodation of Mars energy. Through curriculum, each Mars type would have an education on how to deal with other Mars types. This would also apply to the Law. Each law would have certain enforcement parameters for different Mars types.

By splitting the human race into 6 values that are opposed by Mars, the ideologies that normally divide people and nations would now only be seen within the framework of Mars. Meaning, a person's actions won't be seen in the context of how they occur with regard to race, religion, creed, financial, etc., but only with regard to Mars's influence, should it apply. People, in their actions, opinions, and behaviors would automatically be relegated to Mars influence before anything else, with the appropriating Mars type correlating not to race, religion, creed, gender, etc., but to the scores of different races, creeds, religions, and gender of all the people that fall under that same Mars type. A rabble rouser defending birds would be classified in the same context as a rabble rouser defending mice with each one's rabble rouser mentality being credited to a specific Mars influence, and thus leaving all the non rabble rousing birds and mice out of the rabble rouser's context.

The Mars 360 system, as a predictor of human behavior, would seek to have itself implemented in way so that the social engineering aspect can make for an understanding society. While Mars 360 is understood as biblically extracted from 666, its point of view is built on life being made up of certain types of energies and not of sin as defined in the Bible. This would make the Mars 360 program misotheistic because of its extraction from 666(which is biblical) and actual participation as atheistic. Anyone going along with it in order to have their Mars qualities accommodated by society would be separating themselves from the Judeo/Christian view of free will, sin, and atonement. While Mars has an influence over everyone, eschatology, as outlined by the broader outworking God's plan laid out in Daniel, has a specific goal in getting people to feel sorry for these qualities and accept Christ's sacrifice on the cross as the only real way to atone for it. Mars 360 makes everyone aware of the nature of sin and gives everyone a chance to finally make a choice. Contrition will come to be the outlook of those who manage to avoid accommodation, which is why shirts with blood will be a major staple of the remnant Christianity during that time. This would be a symbolic gesture of Christians, not in changing their sinful ways, but relying on the blood of Christ to forgive them for their natural sin as opposed to having Mars 360 accommodate it. In terms of non-belief, Mars 360 also provides conflict for the humanist who genuinely considers themselves in the best interest of humanity. It causes them to make a final decision regarding a belief in God. Reason being is that Mars 360 ultimately represents a decision between a full love of humanity or a full love of God.

Curriculum of Mars 360 provides a host of angles, from social perspectives, individual perspectives, and also political perspectives. Social upheaval examples would be cited to draw some theories on how the use of Mars360 could have prevented certain outcomes. In teaching scenarios, the are a number of ways to go. An example would be having students write a paper on how the use of Mars 360 could have prevented the French Revolution, or the rise of Nazism. This is can be narrowed all the way down to individual case studies that address how individuals affected could have benefitted from the psychological factors of Mars 360. There are scenarios that can involve group dynamics related to peer pressure and close relationships. There are also ways to revolve the curriculum around situations in which Mars may or may not have applied.

Students can be challenged to theorize on ways for Mars 360 to be provided with more outlets, while ruminating on the challenges of one Mars type having to accommodate other Mars types. Writing papers on how Mars 360 might lead to discrimination issues could be a significant challenge for those concentrating on sociology. Another lesson is further expounding on answers regarding how Mars 360 solves the divide between Capitalism and Socialism, Conservativism and Liberalism without one feeling impeded by the other. The field of Economics can cover how job requirements related to one's Mars placement helps or hurts the overall economy and how an Eclipses 360 AI economy can exist with or without the Mars 360 phenomenon. Behavioral Science can quantify why Mars 360 is a better predictor of human behavior than other indicators. Philosophy majors can ponder on ideas regarding whether or not the Mars phenomenon is real or subjective.

Another significant aspect of Mars is the voluntary sacrifice of a need it naturally opposes and how this sacrifice can be regarded with goodwill instead of contention due to how that sacrifice plays into the cohesion of different Mars types. One of the major accomplishments of Mars 360 would be getting each individual to feel as though the world is allowing him to exist as he is, with any infraction --- related to surrendering too much to the Mars influence --- being fully comprehended by the offender. Because he would have had to be aware that society fully understood him, he would no longer be able express himself in the name of being Mars restricted.

The academic world would conference on the Mars 360 exemption process, where certain Mars types would have certain exemptions from having to participate in certain activities due to Mars's handicap. This would apply to taxes, work, school, travel, dress, social, law, diet, etc. Social services from government entities would revolve around catering to the Mars influence. These social services would be provided in the form of paying less taxes for some, easy passport registration and frequent flyer miles for others, boss-less job placement for those who require it, solo work accommodation, time alone vouchers, cultural replacement, independent learning, diet and exercise exemptions(a Mars affected person would have a legal right to be left alone with regard to diet and exercise. He could have those in violation arrested). All of these would be strictly based on where Mars shows up in a person's birthchart and how much its expression is being restricted by one's circumstances.

The compartmentalization aspect regarding the Mars 360 system would lead to numerous debates on its application. Each person would be automatically determined at birth to be lacking the necessary to energy to apply oneself to certain aspects of life. This would constitute a disorder, but only one of energy. The Mars influence doesn't seem to manifest in a physical reduction related to the body part identified to bring about certain values and behaviors. While not affecting the components in a mechanical sense, it does however reduce the energy required to get those otherwise healthy components to operate sufficiently. The compartmentalization aspect tries to place all the related behaviors into its proper category so that society can see how things relate. On the next page is a chart of how this would work.

1st Seal	2nd Seal	3rd Seal	4th Seal	5th Seal	6th seal
Face to face communication Other people's feelings, rights, property, loved ones within the immediate environment Siblings, neighbors, relatives. co-workers Visual perception	Listening skills and mental thoughts Other people's health one on one relationships. Physical bodily maintenance Diet, exercise, sexual attractiveness. sex and home Doctors, personal trainers	Indirect communication Choice of words, other people's cultural standards, one's own sense of discipline, restraint, integrity, self denial, God within, Soul, the less fortunate	Servitude, worship Work, respect for authority, respect for status figures, obedience, skill ethics.	Individual Identity, EGO, distinct persona, DNA Regard for personal appearance, rectitude, how others view us. Facial expressions, and tone of voice.

----Mars opposes all of these things and has a lack of energy to engage in any of the behaviors above---

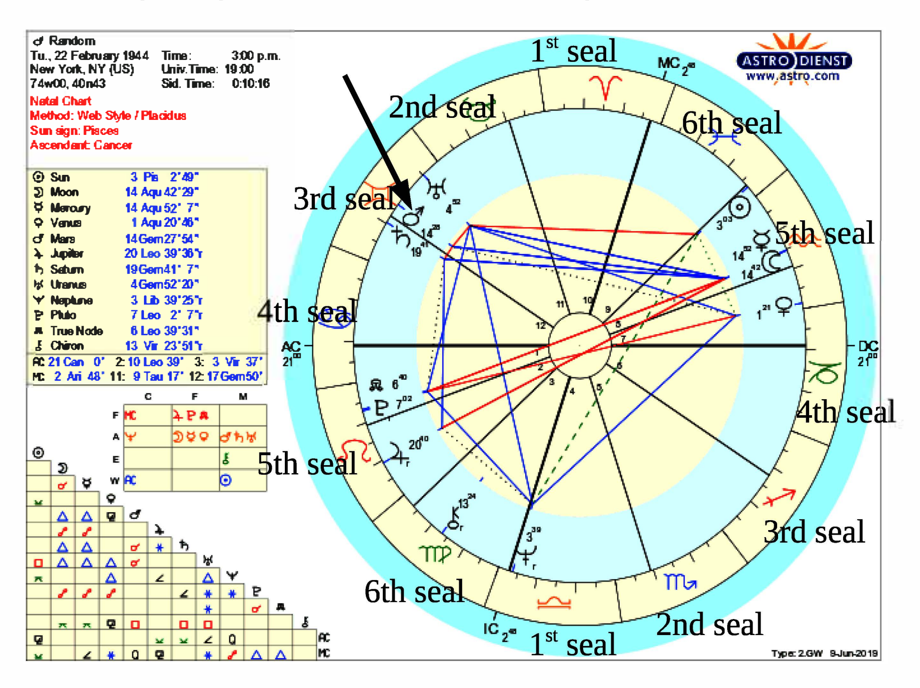

In calculating this chart using western Astrology, we can reference the description of each seal at the top of the page, and then apply it to this random chart. In the above chart, we find Mars in the 1st seal. (arrow is pointing to it) So in going back to the very top of the page at figure 1d, its determined for the 1st seal to represent immediate environment, co-workers, neighbors, face to face direct communication, and the right hand. With Mars here we interpret this position as a natural inborn hostility and lack of energy toward neighbors, co-workers, and face to face communication. Therefore, this person is categorized for that placement and conferred for all the services designated to deal with that placement. Throughout this person's life, he will be entitled to leniency with regard to working with other people, and face to face communication. Mandates will be passed so that this person doesn't have to over-exert himself in situations involving the careful handling of co-workers, neighbors, siblings, and face to face communication. These types would be marked as having capitalist conservative leanings.

In calculating this chart using western Astrology, we can reference the description of each seal at the top of the page, and then apply it to this random chart. In the above chart, we find Mars in the 2nd seal. (arrow is pointing to it) So in going back to Figure 1d, its determined for the 2nd seal to represent homeland, home government, spouse, one's own children, rest, and listening. With Mars here we interpret this position as a natural inborn hostility and lack of energy towards homeland, home government, spouse, one's own children, rest, and listening. Therefore, this person is categorized for that placement and conferred for all the services designated to deal with that placement. Throughout this person's life, he will be entitled to leniency with regard to dealing with homeland, home government, spouse, one's own children, and listening. Mandates will be passed so that this person doesn't have to over-exert himself in situations involving the extended and methodical valuing of those things. An example of the mandates issued to serve this placement would be passport privileges, time away from family not being full grounds for penalization in divorce court, longer recess hours for inmates, extended time away from classroom learning, and quiet time in places of work designated by law, roaming privileges in one's homeland. Free though would also be applied here. These types would be marked as having anti-government conservative leanings.

In calculating this chart using western Astrology, we can reference the description of each seal at the top of the page, and then apply it to this random chart. In the above chart, we find Mars in the 3rd seal. (arrow is pointing to it) So in going back to Figure 1d, its determined for the 3rd seal to represent physical bodily maintenance, exercise, diet, sex and physical attractiveness. With Mars here we interpret this position as a natural inborn hostility and lack of energy towards physical bodily maintenance, exercise, diet, sex, and physical attractiveness. Therefore, this person is categorized for that placement and conferred for all the services designated to deal with that placement. Throughout this person's life, he will be entitled to leniency with regard to dealing with physical bodily maintenance, exercise, diet, sex and physical attractiveness. Mandates will be passed so that this person doesn't have to over-exert himself in situations involving the extended and methodical valuing of those things. An example of the mandates issued to serve this placement would be the person being given less restriction on what he/she can put inside his/her own body. Laws making it illegal to be forced or intimidated into diet and exercise to lose weight would be considered. More leniency regarding pleasure seeking opportunities, such as the ones involving recreational drug use and consensual non-harmful sexual freedom. Bisexuality would get some protection. Also, rights to a sedentary lifestyle will be highlighted here. Because the physical body and its maintenance is tied to being sheltered or in a safe physical dwelling, freedom from having to be stuck at home or stuck at a geographical location would be granted to these types. These types would be marked as having Libertarian leanings and anti-government sentiments.

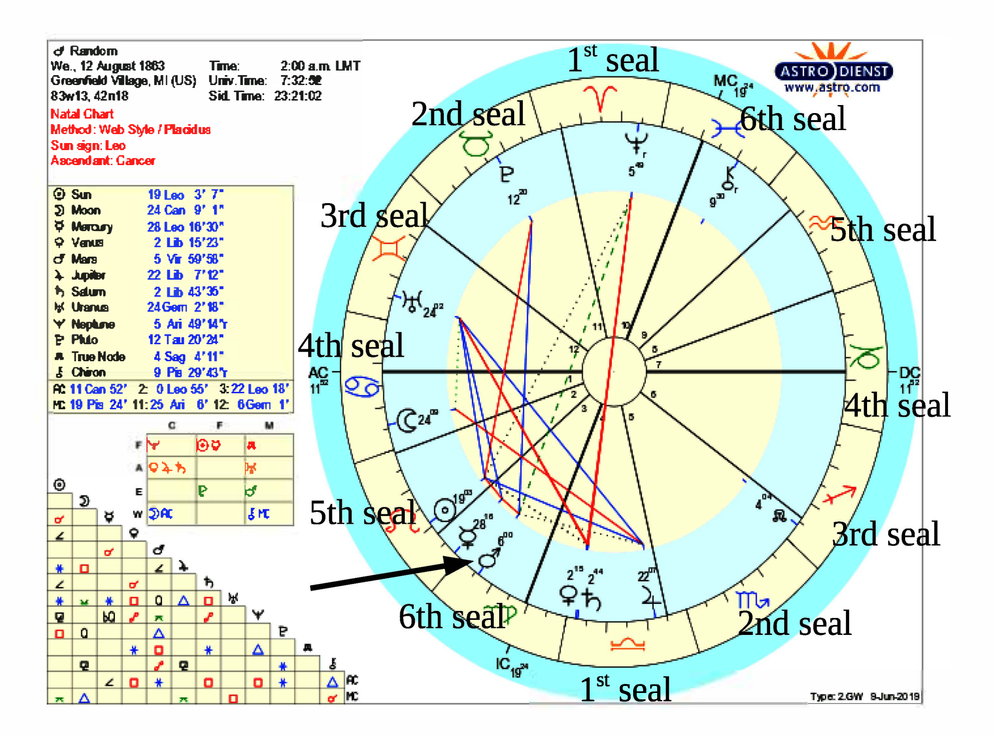

In calculating this chart using western Astrology, we can reference the description of each seal at the top of the page, and then apply it to this random chart. In the above chart, we find Mars in the 4th seal. (arrow is pointing to it) So in going back to Figure 1d, its determined for the 4th seal to represent indirect communication, choice of words, other people's cultural standards, discipline, restraint, integrity, self denial, God within, Soul, and the less fortunate. With Mars here we interpret this position as a natural inborn hostility and lack of energy towards those aforementioned. Therefore, this person is categorized for that placement and conferred for all the services designated to deal with that placement. Throughout this person's life, he will be entitled to leniency with regard to dealing with indirect communication, choice of words, other people's cultural standards, discipline, restraint, integrity, self denial, God within, Soul, and the less fortunate. Mandates will be passed so that this person doesn't have to over-exert himself in situations involving the extended and methodical display of those things. An example of the mandates issued to serve this placement would be the person being given less restriction on matters related to indirect speech through various forms of media. Freedom of speech would be more applicable to this placement. Services would be sensitive to material ambition arising from a lack of energy to self-denial, which would lead to top priority for business loans. This placement would be granted some protection from over-exertion of cultural sensitivity regarding cultures not his own. Lies would be understood as Mars influenced and also be given a bit more leniency upon discovery. Also there would be limits on reading material as this placement points to dyslexia. These types would be marked as having nationalist conservative leanings.

In calculating this chart using western Astrology, we can reference the description of each seal at the top of the page, and then apply it to this random chart. We look for Mars, and find it in the above chart in the 5th seal. So in going back to Figure 1d, its determined for the 5th seal to represent authority figures and work. With Mars we interpret this position as a natural inborn hostility and lack of energy toward authority figures and work, so he's categorized for that placement and conferred for all the services designated to deal with that placement. Throughout this person's life, he will be entitled to leniency with regard to work under supervision and will have certain privileges when it comes to addressing status figures. These types would be marked as having Democratic Communist leanings.

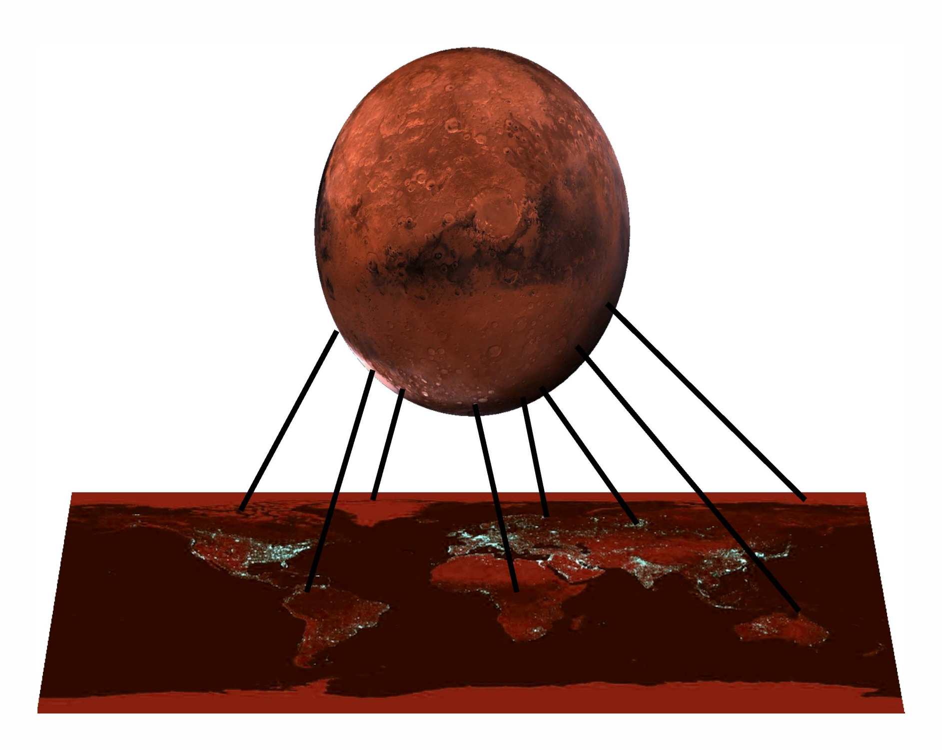

In calculating this chart using western Astrology, we can reference the description of each seal at the top of the page, and then apply it to this random chart. In the above chart, we find Mars in the 6th seal. (arrow is pointing to it) So in going back to Figure 1d, its determined for the 6th seal to represent individual identity, EGO, distinct persona, DNA, regard for personal appearance, rectitude, and how others view them. With Mars here we interpret this position as a natural inborn hostility and lack of energy towards those aforementioned. Therefore, this person is categorized for that placement and conferred for all the services designated to deal with that placement. Throughout this person's life, he will be entitled to leniency with regard to dealing with individual identity, EGO, distinct persona, DNA, regard for personal appearance, rectitude, and how others view them. Mandates will be passed so that this person doesn't have to over-exert himself in situations involving the extended and methodical display of those things. An example of the mandates issued to serve this placement would be the person being given less restriction on matters related to personal appearance. Extended time away from being seen would be required by law. It would be illegal to label these people in any way in terms of race, religion, creed, etc. All privacy laws would be protecting them to the fullest. Cultural identity exemptions would somehow be in effect. By law, these types would be not accountable to prevailing cultural identity standards related to their DNA and ethnicity. These types would be marked as having Democrat non-nationalist Liberal leanings.

Everyone on earth would fall under one of those 6 placements of Mars, either fully or partially. “Partially” depends on whether or not Mars is in the transition phase starting at the 24th degree mark of one sign and going into the 0th degree mark of the next sign. That period usually indicates a blend of the previous seal with the next seal. In that case, the Mars characteristics favored would be a decider on how to approach the subject regarding his Mars. Either way, every political perspective is now decreed as controlled by Mars and therefore worthy of observance and expression. Since Mars’s influence is considered innate from birth with the person not having a choice on how Mars would influence them, all political ideologies arising from that are treated as a handicap by the prospective establishment. Being able to locate exactly who and how a person is affected allows mandates to be able to allocate the Mars required rights to exactly who would need them.

Mars 360 as a worldwide global phenomenon would be incumbent upon any advantages garnered by its adoption being a catalyst for others to even out the playing field. Because Mars 360 essentially serves as a predictor of human behavior, its adoption would likely be welcomed by those looking to stabilize their respective region in a socio-economic and political sense. In an economic sense, the workforce deliberately making use of this opposing force keeps the economy active and investors optimistic. With the Mars phenomenon, employers would be able to predict the tendencies of prospective employees and make decisions in the best interest of the applicant and the occupation. Below is a diagram of how Mars 360 attains dominion in a worldwide sense.

Mars 360 can also allocate school districts to certain Mars placements, with schools strictly being built for certain Mars types. The elementary school system in a city, town, village, etc. can have a school catered specifically for Mars in the first seal, another can have one for Mars in the second seal, and so on. This way, the child's development according to his Mars tendencies allows him to develop a less hostile worldview that isn't rooted in feeling that no one understands him. Each of these schools would take some of the clamps off of Mars's expression and thus give the school a primary element. For instance, a school dedicated to Mars in the 1st seal, which implicates face to face communication, would allow more open communication amongst teachers and students. There would be more tolerance of the antisocial competitive behaviors than are normally restricted at other schools. Making this open to awareness would allow for those not influenced by Mars in that way to brace for such an environment. This in itself alleviates the psychological burden of dealing with what many would call bullying.

A Mars second seal school would allow for movement and quiet. Field trips and quiet learning would be a major part of the curriculum. Teachers would rarely teach in this environment. After learning to read, the students could be given assignments to complete on their own with very little verbal instruction. This would be the school's way of being sensitive to the needs of this placement. With lots of freedom associated with attendance, school, and learning, the students would be able to develop a worldview that's more accommodating to their needs. There would be a floating principle that would keep this type from being confined. Meaning, this school would allow for transferrable program exercises that would permit the students to spend time at other Mars schools. There would also be a free thought or non thought aspect related to schooling here, meaning these types are not even required to believe in the Mars theory.

A Mars third seal school would be sensitive to the needs of their students in a way that relates to consumption. While the curriculum would be normal in a contemporary sense as far as rules, the freedom of expression would display in food and drink choices. There would be little dietary restrictions with all meals being focused on the taste and quality, and not so much the health aspects. Students would have a variety of options on their meals and also have a say on the menu program. Everything thing else related to the school would be standard. There would also be some freedom of bodily use in terms of seating, standing, or laying down during class hours.

A Mars fourth seal school would be sensitive to the needs of students in a way that relates to kinship and commonality. Since Mars in the 4th seal speaks to nationalism, these schools would be catered those sentiments. The importance of ethnic cultural development will be highlighted here with diversity being restricted to an extensive degree. Free speech would be mandated at these schools with all opinions allowed to be taught and expressed by teachers and students alike. Reading material would be limited as this placement automatically infers dyslexia. All students would feel a commonality within their environment based on race, religion, creed, etc. There would be a form of racial discrimination at these schools so that the Mars expression needing kinship and commonality can be acknowledged. These particular Mars schools related to the 4th seal, while being the same in terms of ministering to that placement, would be each comprised of a specific group.

A Mars fifth seal school would be sensitive to the needs of the students in a way that relates to their lack of energy regarding taking direct orders from authority figures. This school would allow for students to decide their own way to learn. Also teachers would have no intrinsic authority over the students. The hiring process would be organized by the students and the teacher's tenure there would also be decided by the students. This allows for an anti-authority figure perspective to be properly ministered to.

A Mars sixth seal school would cater to the needs of its students by focusing on diversity with an environment that allows for introversion. The school environment would have it so that interaction is limited and spaces are properly allocated for individual privacy. Diversity mandates would allow for a Mars expression to be free from any identity constraints as far as race, religion, creed, etc. There would be strict rules on eye contact as students would be required to display less of it. In class, teachers would not be allowed to randomly call on students to answer a question.

Each school would have to adhere to education requirements that obligate curriculum to make students aware of other Mars schools and also aware of why the other schools advocate different ideas from their own. Explaining how Mars is the culprit prepares the students for the social aspects related to public life, in which all types of Mars placements would be in their presence. Specifying schools for certain Mars types in early education gives students a better grasp of how social dynamics come about in later schooling.

A major issue that could arise in this would be children not displaying the qualities related to their Mars type. Such anomalies would have to be addressed. In that case, there would obviously be a contingency plan to deal with this and would likely revolve around re-indicating a person's Mars type to the appropriate one....albeit only if it can be resolved to potential mistakes made in the original drafting of the birth certificate. Overtime, this type of schooling would solidify in the minds of children that Mars is the culprit of many behaviors they deem incompatible with their own. Therefore, as a result, the humans displaying them cannot be held accountable unless its expression is the result of a deliberate giving way to it. The second seal types would be an exception to this mental confirmation due to free thought requirements...as stated earlier. Schooling would teach its students on how to deal with the other Mars types, with those same students providing teachers with valuable information for how others from other Mars schools could deal with their Mars type. Schools can encourage students to sign up for degree programs that make use of this energy and prepare students to make use of it in an economically efficient way. While there would be facets of the economy that wouldn't require schooling to make use of that Mars energy, other facets of the economy would make use of a tangible skill in tandem with that Mars energy.

A major breakthrough for Mars and academia will be the correlation between Mars at the 4th seal and cases of dyslexia. Dyslexia is defined as a difficulty to interpret written words. It usually displays itself as deficiencies in reading comprehension, spelling, writing, and math. It was noted earlier that the 4th seal represents the frontal lobe of the brain, specifically the lower frontal lobe, with Mars's position there being the catalyst to a reduction of gray matter in that area. The reason that this would line up with scientific data regarding dyslexics and gray matter is because a study conducted by Backes W1, Vuurman E, Wennekes R, Spronk P, Wuisman M, van Engelshoven J, Jolles J from the Department of Radiology at Maastricht University Hospital in the Netherlands in 2002 found that dyslexics have less grey matter in the frontal lobe regions than non-dyslexics, specifically when it comes to phonologic processing, which the ability to see or hear a word and break it down to discrete sounds, and then associate each sound with the letters that make up the word. The general consensus is that dyslexia is a deficiency in phonologic processing. Phonologic processing is basically the working memory's ability to store words long enough to be processed and used. It's what allows a person to follow along with a sentence. Problems with this cause words to fade away before the brain can process the meaning. Since Mars displays itself in a lack of energy to engage in certain activities, dyslexia arising from that influence would not indicate anatomical issues regarding the brain, but a natural lack of intent and energy to use working memory.

In 2018, researchers at the University of Connecticut found that a child's reading ability can be predicted according to gray matter volume in the prefrontal cortex. Their work, which was published in journal PLOS One, showed that after 3 years of following kindergarteners with and without a family history of reading difficulty while doing MRI brain scans and reading comprehension tests during that timeframe, the researchers were able to find that the kindergarteners with more gray matter in their dorsolateral prefrontal cortex had better reading comprehension than their peers in third grade. This indicates that this behavior is predictable. A follow up to such test could be to see which kids had Mars near the horizons/4th seal of their birth astrology charts. If the ones who had less gray matter in their prefrontal cortex after 3 years also had a prevalence of Mars near the horizons/4th seals, then the theory regarding Mars's influence on grey matter would be scientifically qualified.

Other brain issues can be corelated to Mars's location. When it comes to Alzheimer's and ADHD, which are deficiencies with learning, memory, and emotion, scientist have discovered that a lack of grey matter in the hippocampus and the caudate nucleus are key identifiers for those deficiencies. It was determined that the second seal relates to the temporal lobes, which is where the hippocampus is located. In observing Mars's location there, one can correlate that to a lack of intent and energy to learning, memory, and emotion. However, with the caudate nucleus being part of a different system from the hippocampus but having similar functions, one would have to posit that the hippocampus and the caudate nucleus should be reclassified into the same system in order to reconcile ADHD to being influenced by Mars in that second seal. It also important to make a distinction between dyslexia cases amongst those with Mars in the 2nd seal and those with Mars in the 4th seal. Dyslexia cases of those with Mars in the 2nd seal would relate moreso to problems with auditory processing than to problems with processing written words.

When it comes to laziness.... in 2015, the University of Oxford did a study of apathetic and motivated people and their brain's response to an offer to do work for a reward. They found, ironically, that the apathetic types had more activity in the motor cortex than those more industrious types upon accepting an offer to work for a reward. The reason that was gathered for such an outcome was that the brains of apathetic people have to work harder in order to prepare themselves to make an effort, and because of that, the energy required evidenced itself in the brain scans. The motor cortex is responsible for pre- planned movements. Since this function is slow in apathetic types, it justifies relating this to a certain antagonism to being forced to do something. The fifth seal relates to work and authority figures. Mars there causes a lack of energy and intent to engage in those activities. Because it was a test, and the normally apathetic type had to go against the grain of his natural quality with regards to apathy, the results showed a higher activity in the motor cortex for the lazy types. To confirm a lack of grey matter in that region being related to Mars, one would have to test for it before an actual activity of industrious work would take place. Another disorder is the autism spectrum disorder, which correlates to the antisocial aspects covered in this writing. Its symptoms are related to difficulties in communication, social interaction, compulsive behaviors. It was determined that the first seal relates to face to face communication and the occipital lobe. Antisocial personality disorder is resolved to a problem with the occipital lobe based on the fact that 50 percent of children with autism, a personality disorder with difficulties in communication, have strabismus or crossed eyes, which is a condition that arises from problems within the visual cortex, which is part of the occipital lobe. In 1999, Dr. Melvin Kaplan, the founder of The Center for Visual Management and prominent developmental/behavioral optometrist, author and researcher, found in his study that 50 percent of children with autism had a strabismus. In Dr. Kaplan's book, Seeing through New Eyes: Changing the Lives of Children with Autism, Asperger Syndrome and Other Developmental Disabilities through Vision Therapy, he finds a connection between children with development disorders like Autism and problems in the visual cortex. Because the occipital lobe is responsible for how we perceive our environment, deficits of energy related to that perception, would display itself in improper interaction with that environment. In a 2010 study done by the University of Illinois on the grey matter volume in patients with strabismus and those without it, researchers found that the strabismus group has less volume of grey matter in the occipital eye field(which is in the occipital lobe) than the group who did not have the disorder. This study was done in 2010 by Xiaohe Yan, Xiaoming Lin, Qifeng Wang, Yuanchao Zhang, Yingming Chen, Shaojie Song, Tianzi Jiang and it was entitled "Dorsal Visual Pathway Changes in Patients with Comitant Extropia(Strabismus)" The original source can be found here https://doi.org/10.1371/journal.pone.0010931. These research findings help us understand Mars's influence on grey matter when positioned in the first seals and how linking that with the occipital lobe affirms the lack of energy related to face to face communication. There has been studies that link some sex offenses with autism, such as the offenses related to child pornography and inappropriate sexual contact. Teens with autism spectrum disorder often display sexual behaviors in public due to a lack of regard to perceive social cues. "A previous study by 't Hart-Kerkhoffs et al. (2009b) screened JSOs(juvenile sex offenders) for the symptoms of an ASD using a parent-report questionnaire and found that JSOs display significantly more symptoms of ASDs than healthy controls." - Sexuality and Autistic-Like Symptoms in Juvenile Sex Offenders: A Follow-Up After 8 Years by M. Ewoud Baarsma, Cyril Boonmann, Lisette A. 't Hart- Kerkhoffs, Hanneke de Graaf, Theo A. H. Doreleijers, Robert R. J. M. Vermeiren, and Lucres M. C. Jansen J Autism Dev Disord. 2016; 46: 2679–2691. Published online 2016 May 18. doi: 10.1007/s10803-016- 2805-6. PMCID:PMC4938848. The findings related to autism and its link to sexual offenses have not been substantiated in terms of predatory or violent behavior. The possible link between Child pornography and autism seems to be the major topic of concern for researchers. When speaking about the topic, it's important to differentiate between fondling, sexual intercourse, child pornography, and child abuse, all of which may not be intercorrelated. In transitioning to the subject of sexual perversion, researchers have found that extended pornography use, not to be confused with someone who may view child pornography, is related to less grey matter in a region of the brain called the striatum which is located in the basil ganglia, which is associated with the brain stem. An article by the Huffington post, written by Macrino Cooper White, in which she cites a research publication published in 2013-2014 in JAMA Psychiatry journals, it mentions a German research study done on brain activity during pornography use and found that a higher usage of pornography led to a lower volume of grey matter in the right caudate of the striatum. They also found that heavy porn users had a weaker connection between the striatum and the prefrontal cortex, a dysfunction which has been found to correlate with drug use and behavioral choices with little regard for possible negative outcome. That study was titled Brain Structure and Functional Connectivity Associated With Pornography Consumption The Brain on Porn, and written by Simone Kühn, PhD1; Jürgen Gallinat, PhD2,3. JAMA Psychiatry. 2014;71(7):827-834. doi:10.1001/jamapsychiatry.2014.93 This study aligns with the definition of Mars's placement on the 3rd seal and the brain stem/cerebellum area of the brain, which has been determined to cause issues related to se xual perversion and pleasure see king.

Earlier it mentioned that autism is linked to Mars in the 1st seal. Since the 6th seal is directly next to the 1st seal as shown in a chart with the seal layout of Revelation, we have some perspective that supports the argument that Asperger's syndrome may have distinction from full autism. While today, asperger's is considered on the spectrum of autistic disorders, only less severe, studies have shown that asperger's may deserve a class of its own. In terms of the seals, it would be easy to interconnect asperger's and autism into the same class, especially with respect to the concept of transition points in the astrochart that indicate a blend of 2 distinct definitions.

That diagram shows us how the two are distinct but when Mars reaches the transition point between the 6th seal and 1st seal, both qualities of Asperger's and Autism can start to blend together. Mars 360 would hold asperger's as being related to difficulties in dealing with perception and communication given to us from other people with Autism being related to dealing with perception and communication that we give to others. This dynamic shows us why these 2 perspectives are often intercorrelated with each other as one problem relating to the Autism spectrum. With Mars 360 we can keep the 2 related, and also separate. Because a great number of comedians and scantily clad actresses have Mars in the 6th seal which is related to the perception given to us by others, Asperger's must be assigned to a lack of energy to care for how that might affect them. Therefore improper public behaviors which is assigned to the Autism spectrum disorders must lean moreso toward the side of Asperger's syndrome. This improper public behavior because of its lack of regard to the eyes of others, must also be related to introversion’s resistance to properly cater to accepted standards for how one is suppose to be seen. Introversion, defined in that manner, would be easily assigned to asperger's. The introversion related to Autism must be related to a frustration with the lack of energy to properly give perception and communication to others in a socially acceptable way, and not so much to dealing with attention received by others, which would be the problem from asperger's sufferers. A blend of the 2 as a result of Mars’s transition would warrant another title so that further clarity is provided.

It's important to reiterate that when studying the Mars phenomenon, the investigation into extreme behaviors must be from the perspective of worst case scenario, and not from the perspective of a generalized definition of Mars in a certain seal. While Mars brings about some resistance to carrying out socially accepted behaviors and also displaying socially acceptable characteristics, it does not infer a complete giving way to Mars energy. While certain qualities are related, the trajectory of those qualities which point to more sinister qualities at the extreme end don't implicate every case of Mars in terms of probability of reaching that extreme. For instance, loose opinions would be related nationalism, which would be related to racism, which would be related to genocide, however every case of Mars would not infer loose opinions to a probable future case of genocide. The probably would lie in the fact that certain behaviors are linked to another, without that certain behavior being a factor in the chances of that person devolving into the related behaviors on the further end of the trajectory. Domestic violence is linked to terrorism, but domestic violence itself is not a determinant of someone becoming a terrorist later on. It just defines that behaviors associated with domestic violence would manifest in terrorism if that energy that causes domestic violence is allowed to garner more influence. While that Mars influence would make the probability that such a person, moreso than people with other Mars influences, might engage in some form of terror, it doesn't decide for that particular person to have a higher probability of giving into the Mars energy more than other Mars types. When it comes to child abuse, it's important not to designate a propensity to one domain due to the fact that child abuse can manifest in many ways. Fondling, which is an improper use of the hands doesn't necessitate to full violence, and intercourse doesn't warrant the same context as viewing material online or through other mediums. Therefore each seal position could relate to child abuse in some manner should Mars be given a full grip. Since the 1st seal is determined to relate to the occipital lobe and right hand, excessive Mars influence could infer crimes against children which are related to fondling or any improper use of the hands. Since the 2nd seal Mars relates to the temporal lobes and emotion, excessive Mars influence there could infer crimes against children that manifest as violence against one's own children. Since the 3rd seal Mars relates to the brain stem and cerebellum, excessive Mars influence there can result in crimes against children that result in full intercourse due to the pleasure seeking aspect of that Mars position. Since the 4th seal Mars relates to the frontal lobes, crimes against children here upon excessive Mars influence could display in actual physical violence due to Mars's influence bringing about a hostile view of what is less powerful. Since the 5th seal Mars relates to the motor cortex and work, crimes against children upon excessive Mars influence here could be related to some form of neglect. Since Mars in the 6th seal relates to the parietal lobe and our appearance to others, crimes against children here upon excessive Mars influence could relate to some form of exposure.

What a Mars curriculum does is change our approach to teaching. Whereas today, students are approached with optimism about who they could be in the future, which is a perspective that allows for educators, parents, and teachers to rest on their laurels with regard to the child's developing sense of value in the world, under Mars 360, children would be approached with a certain sense of pessimism, which would allow for a more cautious and meticulous program of educating. As a result, Mars 360's ultimate goal for children is realized by making each one feel as if the world completely understands him for who he is with all his drawbacks. This is a reason why schools would be entirely dedicated to the acceptance of these drawbacks related to Mars. The idea, as stated numerous times, is to keep the child from feeling the need to fully give into the Mars energy as a response to a non-understanding world. Such would keep the culminations of evil from presenting itself and inflicting widespread damage on the world. An analogy to that outlook is how we often find that those we strongly disagree with often succumb to listening to the other's point of view when that person feels the other point of view -he disagrees with- has taken into account and fully understood his own point of view. The fruits of this would display itself in all aspects of life, from relationships to social interaction to politics, and economics.

The stigmas and shame related to Mars tendencies would slowly fade from world consciousness. The aspect of right and wrong would be replaced with “is” and the taboo status given to certain behaviors would be completely removed from the global school system and the world under Mars 360.

Remnants of the old moral system of right and wrong under Judeo/Christianity will only exist in persons trying to completely overcome their own Mars tendencies or in persons allowing themselves to feel contrite regarding it. Since Mars 360 would make society adapt to those tendencies, going against the grain would have very little value. Religion, at that juncture, would be replaced with “beneficiality to the social construct”

With Mars 360, deification no longer takes on an abstract tone as Mars is a real planet which has been under serious observation in recent years. Since Mars 360 coincides with the development of possible space exploration to the planet Mars, subjects like archeology would cover excavation possibilities in space as opposed to ancient sites on earth. Due to the oppositionary effect of Mars's influence on humans, current planetary space research related to Mars would look for clues on the surface of Mars that relates to this antagonistic energy. With many in aerospace engineering tinkering with the idea of bringing humans to Mars, the perspective that Mars influences people in way that's hostile to standard behavior would ultimately bring controversy and a possibility of full human meltdown in the event of a successful landing on Mars. That scenario would present the possibility of a major catastrophe if human behavior is correlated to Mars with this correlation becoming more pronounced the closer humans are to the planet.

Clarity on Gauquelin

This chapter will cover more clearly how the result of Gauquelin's work lines up with the exposition of 666 and the seven seals. This chapter will also provide a blueprint for how to approach the Islamic and Jewish scholarship with such information. It has been determined by this writing that 666 – as referred to in the Book of Revelation -- is the sum of the numerical values applied to the letters of the word "Mars 360." Each numerical value of the letters that make up the word "Mars" added together using the English Sumerian Gematria calculates to 306. By simply adding 360 to 306, we get 666. This answer becomes the key to unlocking the meaning of the seven seals, which is essentially – as laid out in the Book of Revelation -- a symbolism that describes the nature of Mars as it passes through 6 divisions in the sky. This process evokes an influence on humanity that results in certain characteristics that manifest – often negatively – within the sphere of society. The seven seals in the Book of Revelation describe its worst possible culmination when allowed to persist to its climax within a human. These six divisions correspond to each major section of the brain and Mars's travel though these divisions result in a natural reduction of grey matter in the corresponding region of the brain. This reduction of grey matter results in a human being being unable to produce the necessary energy and intent to carry out the intended characteristics for that portion of the brain. While this interpretation is astrological, it doesn't line up with the traditional astrological framework regarding planetary influence. Traditional astrology maintains that Mars infuses energy into whatever defines the position it is in. Mars extracted from 666 and seven seals implies the opposite, that Mars is actually reducing the energy needed for what defines its position. Here are the six divisions extrapolated from 666 and the seven seals as shown in the diagram below. The corresponding opposite sides of each seal are labeled the same and mean the same. The seventh seal is just simply the continuous cycle.

Michel Gauquelin, who was a French statistician, set out to perform some research into astrology back in the 1950s. In his book, L'influence des astres, he discovered that a significant number of sports champions were born when Mars was either rising or culminating. He divided the astrological circle into 36 segments, and found that the position of the planet Mars in the birth charts of eminent sports champions showed up in clusters near the segments situated at the ascendant and the midheaven, and also, but slightly less prominent, at the descendant and imum coeli, which are the corresponding opposite sides of the ascendant and midheaven respectively. His findings line up with how my interpretation of 666 and the seven seals result in an astrological diagram that also lays out this correlation between corresponding opposite sides of the astrological circle. My view that converges and builds upon Gauquelin's is that the eminence in the sports champions he discovered to be related to Mars's influence is indeed a result of Mars's negative influence by reducing grey matter in the corresponding region of the brain but in their case, actually being a virtue in their prospective field of competitive athletics, which often draws upon the more hostile and aggressive characteristics of human nature in relation to other humans. His rising and culminating sectors would essentially be this book's 4th and 1st seals respectively. Here are the diagrams to compare on the next page.

In the diagram below, take note of Gauquelin's rising and culminating sectors, while he found the ascendant/midheaven sectors prominent, he did find some correlation on their corresponding opposite sides. Because of that, rising and culminating is marked on each side to help show how his plus zone theory applies and correlates with this book's assessment on 666 and the seven seals.

Now on the next page, see how the 4th and 1st seals line up with Gauquelin's rising and culminating.

We can see below that there is some convergence between the location of the 4th and 1st seals in the diagram below -- which is extrapolated from 666 and the seven seals -- with Gauquelin's layout on the previous page.

There is obviously some delineating, a midst a further study, that could be applied here in order to further correlate the similarities between the two. This book and Gauquelin also share a notion that challenges the traditional astrological view, but nevertheless still asserts a validity of planetary influence.

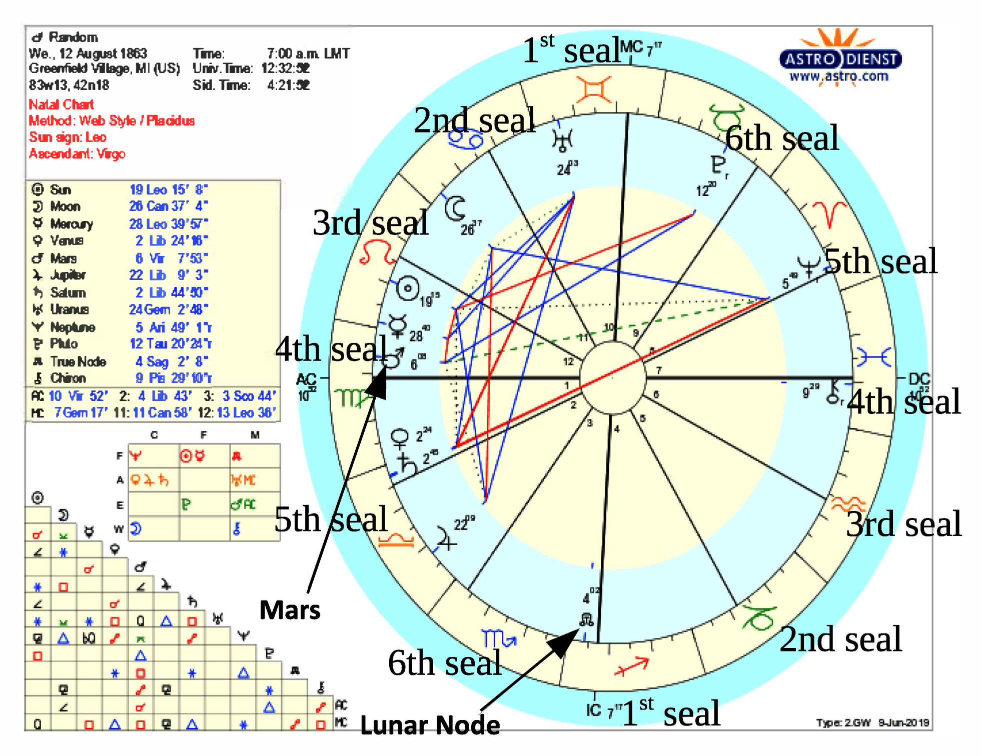

While Gauquelin made connections between the movements of other planets with the behavior and career performance/choices of different figures, the correlation of his Mars research in tandem with this book's exposition should divorce itself from any discourse involving his findings about other planets relating to individual human behavior and choices. An earlier chapter here already provides examples on how other planets/celestial bodies like the moon, sun, mercury, and lunar node affect the markets, but doesn't really get into how they apply at the individual human level. This is ok for now. This book uses Mars mainly in terms of how it affects the personality and characteristics of a human at an individual level, and also provides data that shows how Mars can influence events via the lunar node. Because of that, it must be insisted that the reference to Gauquelin as it pertains to any link with this exposition of 666 and the seven seals should only be based on the Mars effect. Because of the biblical implications of Mars research, a certain priority should be given strictly to Mars in terms of how it affects human behavior. Trying to incorporate all the planets at one time during such research would only add a certain degree of perplexity that could delay any validation of a Mars effect. While Gauquelin was a proponent of a Neo-Astrology -- building astrology from the ground up using statistical research -- this book, while supporting planetary influence on human behavior, would prefer to remain not in the entire field of astrology, but moreso in the field of what this book has covered in terms of planetary influence. The best way to understand what I am trying to say is imagining this book accommodating Gauquelin within its parameters, and not the other way around. This is not an insult to his work. This is done so that the religious community is not alienated during this process. Mars is the convergence between religion and astrology, while the research and implementation of a system would incorporate science into the mix. Its a very delicate, but achievable process. While religion is not astrology friendly, there is a certain transference of what they would define as God's allowance of certain things to happen which would manifest through them on earth since the Word of God is insisting on this allowance. This passive and anxious outlook should be seen as an opening or escape from religious resistance, which would only support further examination of Mars. And not to undermine Gauquelin's goal of building astrology from the ground up, I would only insist that this process began with how Mars is described in this book and how that description aligns with Gauquelin's findings and how such knowledge can better mankind. While many proponents of astrology may not recognize any validity in religious thought and therefore choose to take on a dismissive attitude toward such findings about any astrological phenomenon being based on a religious outlook and not the other way around, it would still be unwise to sabotage a situation that would draw intrigue on multiple levels.....astrological, scientific, and religious. Because astrology is a tradition that has been passed down from generation to generation with new outlooks coming into play and oftentimes not phasing out previous modalities, it's possible that much has been jumbled and mixed up from it's original framework. Its similar to how in language, new words come in and old words don't go out. Or how certain techniques in grammar, which were previously forbidden, are now standard with some schools of thought recognizing the alteration, and others completely unaware. We can see how this creates inconsistencies. However in terms of astrology, one can decide not to interfere with the traditions, but simply create a system from one point of view, and not just a system, but a workable one. During Gauquelin's career, he put forth a lot of time and effort in attempting to confirm a statistical significance for all the different planets, however, it was his Mars research that garnered attention from the scientific community, which was a major achievement on his part. So one can say there is a natural intrigue regarding the planet Mars that would in itself provide support for such an inquiry. Not to mention, the aerospace engineering projects involving a potential physical exploration to Mars which serve as a support mechanism. Even if these findings don't line up with astrology's traditional definitions regarding Mars's effect at certain points, this conflict bears more fruit for the entire field since there is a statistical and scientific attempt involved here that would only benefit the field as a whole. It would be easier to forgive an outdated system within a valid field, than to acknowledge any system within an un-validated one. One should also point to Gauquelin as someone who found that Mars is showing certain patterns that should warrant further study, and not simply someone who made correlation between sports champions and the location of Mars in a birthchart. There is a big picture of Mars's effect on humans that should also be applied to what Gauquelin achieved. It can be likened to seeing birds fly in a certain pattern and then tracking that pattern, but being just as intrigued by the fact that the birds are flying in a certain pattern to begin with. This outlook, analogously, allows to us to view Gauquelin not only from a data centered point of view, but also from a more generalized point of view that points to him as a pioneer in the research. Even though the spark didn't light a fire, it still sparked and nonetheless presented something to work with. The spark or stir he created should be the faint heartbeat for the writings in this book that ultimately brings the doctors back to the operating table, which is the research of the Mars effect and Mars 360 system.

Important info for the Mars 360 system

The Mars 360 system's strategy to circumvent extreme displays of Mars influence via allowing society to understand its natural influence on humans and also allowing humans a certain degree of expression may not be enough to circumvent every episode of extreme Mars manifestations which have a detrimental impact on the society. Its quite likely that an extreme episode of Mars expression by a human may not always be circumventable strictly by understanding the nature of Mars over the course of a person's life. Owing to that, and not to undermine the study of Mars with another element in astrology, I think it's important to be aware of a possible reason for terminal episodes of Mars, where the person can no longer see any value in keeping his Mars expression from displaying itself at full throttle. In an earlier chapter, I mentioned that the position of the lunar node may be key factor that could set off a dangerous Mars effect in an individual. Over the course of my study of planetary influence, what I discerned about the lunar node in an individual's chart is that its position seems to display somewhat of an opposite effect of the one that Mars gives, where the person under the influence of the lunar node will have a sense of preservation and intent about what defines the position that the lunar node is in, but along with this -- a limited result amidst all the energy and intent. A good analogy is how we would handle a delicate glass vase versus a cardboard box. We would be a bit more careful and studious in handling the vase because of the risk surrounding any mishandling of it that would result in the vase shattering should it fall to the floor. The reaction to mishandling something so delicate, analogously, as it applies to the position that defines where the lunar node is located could set off a Mars reaction where the person completely gives into the Mars energy in the way that defines its location in birthchart. Lets look at this example chart to explain what I mean.

If we look at the chart, we notice Mars in the 4th seal and the lunar node in the 1st seal. We established that the 4th seal relates to the orbital-frontal cortex and indirect communication, along with attitudes to foreign cultures, while the first seal relates to the immediate environment, groups, co-workers, siblings, and face to face communication. In this chart, based on how I described the nature of the lunar node to be one of heightened concern and fragility, a scenario that could set off an extreme Mars effect in this person's case would be a failure to maintain the situations of the first seal. Since this person, as a result of the lunar node in the 1st seal, would have a natural attitude of preservation and metaphorically see the tasks related to the 1st seal as a glass vase -- this person experiencing some sort of failure to deal effectively with 1st seal matters such as co-workers or groups, or maybe having said something to them that led to a betrayal or rejection from them, could in effect set off a Mars effect in the person, where the location of Mars in this person's case being in the 4th seal would set off a lack of preservation there and possibly lead to this person, as a result of Mars's effect, subsequently displaying an extreme degree of recklessness regarding indirect communication and attitude to foreign cultures. Should this be the case, then a mark of the lunar node would have to be incorporated at some point, but only as it relates to circumventing Mars, which should always be the foundational principle of the Mars 360 system.

The main source for quantifying 666 to Mars 360 comes from years of interaction on the streets of Boston, observing the astrology charts of many I have spoken to, along with their behaviors, attitudes, and beliefs and comparing that to the behaviors of people covered in the astrodatabank's biographies of different people throughout history to see if any of the commonalities between all the observations could be relegated to Mars's placement in a birthchart. Years of trying to resolve the related traits to a common point led me to the conclusion that Mars does have an effect on human behavior. My system is able to foster quantifying Mars's designation to do this through hypothesizing probability, statistical significance, and also grey matter implication via lateral thinking. While every common case could not be resolved to Mars's placement in a cut and dry manner, the effort to do so led me to the deduction of the traditional astrological layout from 12 different 30 degree sectors to reading them as 6 different 30 degree sectors, which aligns similarly to how Maslow divided the values of the human condition and aligns perfectly with the seals of Revelation and the characteristics associated with each one. That allowed for a system of forced correlation between Mars, human behavior, and 666, which might I add, also happened to comprehensively line up with Michel Gauquelin's research on Mars, a study that has not been officially accepted by the entire scientific community, but was the first serious scientific inquiry into Mars's influence on human behavior.

When reading biographies of people and their characteristics, along with tendencies that were heavily noted and comparing their chart with other figures who were described in a similar manner, if not related to overall personality, but significant event, and finding Mars being in a similar position allowed me to draw a conclusion that Mars was a culprit in either their personality or in what they may have done. It also helped that those whom I have interacted with who allowed me to see their birthchart also had traits that lined up with some of the traits outlined in the biographies of people with a similar Mars placement. The process to make these line up is what led to the final layout of 6 different sectors as a feasible system to observe Mars's influence on human behavior in a way that will show the placement of Mars to be an inference that others with the same Mars placement would have similar characteristics. Being able to connect the dots in this case is a testimony to how lateral thinking can lead to discovering things via forcing connections, which would not have been obvious though traditional step by step logic. This (lateral thinking used to draw a conclusion) can be aligned with divine revelation in way that doesn't insult contemporary intelligence. After some time of being able to observe a Mars tendency, which is usually consistent in a person, I was able to find what other tendencies, likes, dislikes, and opinions were related directly to that position of Mars in their birthchart. This was often done by observing what I thought was Mars typical in someone and then observing related behaviors, and seeing if others who had what I would consider the same Mars characteristics also had the same related behaviors. Over time in looking at these details, I was able to gather a big picture that involved Mars's influence and the related behaviors being divided into 6 types with a blend of two types sometimes manifesting in someone when Mars is transitioning out of one sector and is in the process of going into the next. This perspective from my point of view can be likened to how certain perspectives are formed by humans going through a certain amount of experience without them having to sit down and engage in complex mathematics, but still using only those experiences to make a point that many would end up agreeing with and even finding out on their own upon going though the same experience. Even in light of detractors in that scenario, it would still be a factor for common consensus, which is often a requirement for what's considered fact or truth...even in the face of statistical significance. My credibility in a scientific manner comes not from what I hypothesize about Mars, but from what that hypothesis lines up with in terms of previous research, such as the one done by Michel Gauquelin. He published a book called "The Influence of the Stars." In it, he suggests that a statistically significant number of sports champions were born with either Mars rising or culminating. The credibility also stems from the fact that my quantification of a biblical passage like 666 to Mars 360 automatically gives the inquiry into Mars as much a biblical significance as it does a scientific significance. It also further quantifies the genius of people like Abraham Maslow who was able to compartmentalize the values of the human condition.

Clarity on the Second Coming of Christ

In order to come to a more technical understanding of the coming of Christ a second time, lets evaluate what we have thus far. So far 666 has been discovered to be "Mars 360." This is the revelation of the lawless one. In an earlier chapter, I took the parameters used for calculating Mars 360 to 666 to also calculate Eclipses 360 to 888, which is a tradition of Christian numerology that designates 888 as the number signifying Jesus Christ. Because of this, it has been determined that the second coming of Christ can be relegated to an observance of eclipses, specifically the lunar node, which is the basis of eclipses and the point when the moon's orbit meets the earth's orbit and is most visible in the sky. This visibility via the lunar node, which essentially allows us to see an actual eclipse, should be held to represent the brightness that Jesus is referring to when he says "At that time they will see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with great power and glory." This keeps us from having to apply Jesus to being the actual moon or sun. It also fits that the previous chapter discerns the lunar node's influence on human beings at the individual level to manifest in cautious and studious behavior, which can in itself describe a holy outlook. The entire phenomenon can also be tied to the observation of blood moons, which in itself is a commemoration of Christ and also a testimony symbolic of Jesus's intentions to minister to the Jewish people as blood moons have been discovered to align significantly with Jewish feast days and significant events regarding Israel. This discovery was made by Mark Biltz. Blood moons are lunar eclipses that happen when the earth blocks sunlight from reaching the moon, thus giving it a reddish appearance. The only light that reaches the Moon's surface comes from the edges of the Earth's atmosphere. The visibility of these eclipses are also contingent on the lunar nodes. In regards to Jesus's return to earth in bodily form, it should be regarded first and foremost for Jesus's return to center around what He's already said in the gospels and what Paul describes as his second coming: "And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." — 2 Thessalonians 2:8 The spirit of His mouth is Truth and the revelation itself of Mars 360 should be considered the end of such energy operating inconspicuously throughout the world, now that its been revealed and can be seen. The spirit of Jesus's mouth does not necessitate that it be Jesus himself. The revelator of the lawless one, who also has the key to the bottomless pit, is in essence speaking with the spirit of truth, which is the spirit of Jesus's mouth. The brightness of his coming, when applied to the lunar nodes, fits how the Mars phenomenon, specifically for Israel/Palestine when national security is challenged when Mars in within 30 degrees of the lunar nodes, should become an observable system that actually mitigates the damage from Mars's influence by allowing everyone prepare in observation of it. In this way the lunar node as representative of Christ is allowing us to see Mars more clearly, which in essence mitigates its influence. This allows us a comprehensive outlook of Jesus's second coming being intertwined with the advent of the Mars 360 system and its advocacy via the beast of the earth/false prophet. It's also very possible that the revelator of the lawless one/ holder of the key to bottomless pit are both one and the same, even if the fallen star spoke with the spirit of truth -- which is the spirit of Jesus's mouth -- regarding the identity of the lawless one/666. This however disappoints perspectives regarding Jesus's second coming as a bodily return to earth, but nonetheless provides a sense of direction that can be correlated to Scripture. For Muslims, this outlook should carry out similarly in prophecies regarding Isa. While the Mars 360 system is condemned to the lake of fire, the truth of its inception as foresaw by the prophets, and the monitoring of Mars is binded to visibility itself. This binding is sanctioned and supported by the Word of God and should be considered what constitutes Christ's reign during the 1000 years. In order to understand how the condemned Mars 360 system should usher in 1000 years of peace, but yet have those seeking salvation be forbidden from participating by God Himself, one should understand how not believing before the fact comes into play and also the fact that Mars 360 is designed for the earth. By not believing before the fact, one needs to make up for that in order to access the fruits that such belief bears. By joining the Mars 360 system and accepting it, one is not only allowing themselves to be coddled in terms of being permitted to express negative Mars energy and not feel bad about it, one is also giving a certain credence to biblical texts which foresaw it. This constitutes an acceptance after the fact and disqualifies any hope of salvation related to believing before things happen. So basically, the only outlook one should have regarding the second coming of Christ is the spirit of truth identifying the lawless one and the visibility of being able to observe it, and also the elevation of Christian believers as a result of this. This spirit of truth/Jesus's mouth should be expected to come from the revelator of the lawless one, who is also the angel with the key to the bottomless pit who fell from heaven. Its also important to understand that the revelation of the Lawless one is symbolic of the key to the bottomless pit being given to the angel who falls. This initial transaction should not to be looked up on as demonic since the angel does not fall until after he gets the key. After 666 revealed, Christians are raptured out. The remaining faiths have their freedom to pursue their eschatology without any of it affecting the Christian dynamic. Those who were not believers, but want to receive Christian salvation are left simply with a task of avoiding the Mars 360 system, which has a term of 1000 years. After that, everything is finished from the Christian standpoint -- resisting Mars 360/Satan no longer tied to Christianity. All Christians with God for eternity.
